Block Ver. us Brek.

The council has been debating of late what material small be used in the future in paving the structs. After spending nearly half a day is session as a committee of the whole, they have decided that they will do some paving the coming year, but have not determined just how much. It was agreed to see the property holders on certain streets and get their views on this question, and if they favor paving, to see what material they city, where there is little heavy traffe, for brick. None of the aldermon, however, are in favor of wooden paying, as it not only wears out quickly but is unhealthy and expensive in the end. The only thing to recommend is the first cost, and property owners are already beginning to realize that it is far from being a permanent paying. The rapidity with which the blocks are decaying on streets that were paved three years are, together with the fact that eastern cities have declared against them, has set many of the citizens to thinking quite seriously, it is evident that the streets naved with blocks will have to be repayed before the last assessment for the present paying becomes due, and this has called for considerable figuring on the part of several property owners. While brick is the choice of the majority.

coines use, and this has called for considerable figuring on the part of several property owners.

While brick is the choice of the majority, it is annarent that the brick thus far used is not the proper article. It is a question whether really first class paying brick can be manufactured here. Trials thus far made, while they resulted in the production of much better material than the ordinary hard building prick, have not turned out anything that can compare with the celebrated Galesburg brick. The local brickmakers claim to be able to produce an article that will give satisfaction, but it is not yet forthcoming. The $30,000 pinut that was promised in case certain contracts were let has not been put in, and there is no indication that it will be. The paving question is one that will soon have to be solved permanently, and it is of sufficient importance to attract considerable attention. It is worthy of careful consideration.

stood that the position will not again be offered him. Since it became doubtful whother or not a new organization could be effected the charter members of the old board have been rather uneasy. It was argued that if Zevely was not dismissed, and the new hoard did not materialize he might possibly hold them for another year's salary, and they did sot take kindly to the idea. For this reason thay were quite auxious to have the relation sewered, that they might feel relieved of any responsibility. This had very material weight in leading to the discharge of the secretary. It is stated that the burnt now has fifty members ready for business this year, and they will shortly meet to elect new officers.

Good Manner'.

It is in subtle ways in which social selfishness crops out. The old-fashioned division of society was into superiors, equals and inferiors. One of the rarest things in American society is genuine courtesy toward superiors, says the Chautanquan. Todyism there is plenty of, and it is a distinguishing habit which it is unnecessary to condemn selfishness the deference which is du superiority. Let a person of a little mor culture, a little better position larger experience, be throw among us and we too often assume a cold dignity. The gloriou doctrine of the equality of all men we quote in self-defense. Unselfishness would atter this manner and tell us to the honest thing—and the manner. would after this conner and tell us to do the honest thing—and the only polite thing—give his worth its due and ourselves the opportunity of gathering what we can from his broader life. This principle is constantly ignored in our villages and towns. The sharp lines which are drawn between cliques are really often, if not as a rule, the fault of those who feel their social position to be less than that of another set and who assume a rigid formality when thrown into their company. The manner which shows deference combined with soil respecting independence is one of which shows deference combined with self-respecting independence is one of the most charming good society sees.

The great strain on this principle distributedly comes from association with equals. A man is polite to his daily associates in proportion as he hays aside his own claim for consideration and substitutes theirs, but it must be spentiments, natural universe distributed as the consideration and substitutes theirs. taneous, natoral, unpretending unself-sinces.

In the matter of evening dress it is safe to say that there will be no radical change as far as the average man is concerned, but a very pretty and novel suit is apparently destined to become popular among very swell young men during this spring says the Chicago Tribune. very little that is old fashioned about the cont.

The material is a dark blue undressed worsted. The front is made with a shawl roll and is faced with quitted silk. The skirts are similar to those of a cutaway coat. The cuffs are covered with finely-quilted silk. The waistcoat is double-becasted, embroidered, and made of white satin. The shirt is frilled and embroidered. The linen collar worn with this dross suit is peculiarly interesting. Although turned down it stands as high as an ordinary stand-up collar. The bow is tied by the wearer and the ends are left outside the collar. On this account the the has to be made specially for the neck it is to grace, else it would not rest neatly outside the collar.

A BAND OF HUMAN VAMPIRES

Horrible Fractices of a Religious Sect in Kansas City.

CALL THEMSELVES SAMARITANS

And Advocate the Brinking of the Blood of Members of Their Order Who Will submit to the

A Kansa, Cuy Pad. For some time rumors of a new re-ligious sect, which has found birth in the territory adjacent to the Blue river, just cast of this city, have been alloat and have reached the cars of the police, who have been asked for humanity's sake to interfere with the rituals, says a Kansas City special to the Denver Re-publican. The matter was reterred to the humane officers, who gave the reports no credence, as they were too hor rible to believe.

According to these reports the rituals were founded upon the scriptural injunction to do good to the sick. This injunction has been followed to the extent that the sect has degenerated into a band of human blood drinkers, those who are well allowing themselves to be bled for those who are ill.

The district in which these horrible rites are practiced is within the new city limits and the chief of police sent Human Officer Marran to investigate he case, which was reported in the folowing letter received by Humane Seclowing letter rescived by Humane Secretary Huckett:

"Mr. Huckett: There is somethin I think ought to be called to your attension at once which I think is bad for a civilized community, their is John Wrinkle and his 2 children He has been sick and he is crazy on religion. his little girl Minnie is 13 year old and his boy Jonn is 11. Wrinkle has bern that people drink blod at the sloughter houses for their health an he said he believed lin the bible that it preached that the well should make sacrifises for the sick.

"He did blead his little boy and girl until they are recks and he did drink the blod. It has leaked out an unless

"He did blead his little boy and girl until they are recks and he did drink the blod. It has leaked out an unless somethin is done by you the neighbors will take the matter in their own hand and that quick too He lives in a little piece of land near the new city limits, yours respectfully GEORGE WEST.

"D. s. send some officers."

Officer Marran's investigation of the matter proved that the letter to Secretary Huckett had not told half of the herrible practices in vogue among the nerible practices in vogue among the nerible practices in vogue among the beople who believed in the savage rites. About a vear ago there appeared among the people of that fielghborhood a mannamed Silas Wilsox, who went about the country preaching the decrine of doing good for the sick. It was not long until he had a sufficient number of adherants to his theories to warrant him in founding a sect which he called the "Samaritans." Gradually he widened his teachings to his little band, until he openly advocated the drin'ing of blood for all diseases, giving as authority for such action the fact that the bible taught that the blood was the lite. Almost adily pilgrimages were made to thority for such action the fact that the bible taught that the blood was the lite Almost duily pilgrimages were made to the packing houses by those who were ailing, and there they drank the blood of the freship killed beeves. It appears, however, that Wilcox was not satisfied with the blood of these anibe done except to protect the children from the habit.

An investigation into the rites of the sect shows the following facts: The band of Samarizans numbers about twenty and holds regular weekly meetings at the house of the different members. At these spectings the sick or alling members ask for assistance from the well ones, and these are detailed to give their blood according to their condition of health and strength. When a member becomes very sick the well ones take turns in supplying him with the life-giving fluid. They claim that they have as much right to do this wher the blood is avoluntary contribution as the physicians have to transfuse blood from one person to another.

Self-Playing Cards.

Self-Playing Cards.

Self-Piarmy Cards.

The Listener of the Boston Transcript noticed a very odd placard in a Washington street widow hast exeming it read: "Self-play-cards." At the time he hadn't curiosity enough to go is and find out what self-playing cards are but the further away he got from the sign the more his curiosity was aroused, and the more he was impressed with the notion that the inventor of these articles had got hold of a very good thrug. Real self-playing cards that would sit up at the table and play themselves would be an unspeakable boon to thousands of people. With such an invention an invitation to a card marty would not be quite so desolating as it generally is now. The cards could be set at work playing whist or cuchre, and the gaests, with a great load off their minds, could go in and have a good time. That eccentric friend of the Listener's who, when he and his wife get an invitation to a whist party, accepts it, but with the provise that is wife is to play whist while he goes down could be mightly preused with this new arrangement, because it would let him out of the wood-sawing—and he isn't at all fond of sawing wood. And after all, what would there be more absurb about games of cards played entirely by machinery than there is about hiring men—human machines at that—to play our athletic games for us? The eards could be set at work

TAPPED ON HER ARM.

"James V. Dorpman and daughter, Lodge Pole, Neb.," is written in a bold hand on the register at the Ridgeway house, Market street and Delaware nouse, Market street and Belaware accounce, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. Mr. Dorpman is a tall, well built man of sixty years, with a long beard, strongly tinged with gray. His daugh-ter is about eighteen years old. She tor is about eighteen years old. has a pretty, intelligent face and the brightest and bluest kind of bright blue eyes.

When Mr. Dorpman and his daughter first came to the Ridgeway house they attracted the attention and curiosity of the guests by their strange behavior. Whether in the parlor or in the diningroom Mr. Dorpman always sat or the left-hand side of his daughter and tapped her left arm constantly with the fingers of his right hand, as though playing on a typowriter. His fingers skipped nimbly at random from the girl's wrist almost to her shoulder and back again. At intervals he paused and the girl smiled, nodded her head, or clae tapped her left arm in the same manner with the fingers of her right hand, the old man closely watching their movement.

The strange actions of the couple were subjects of continual commentand speculation among the guests. Finally some one noticed that the father and daughter were never heard to exchange a word. They always sat quietly when in each other's presence, and were always drumming on the girl's left arm as if it were a pianoforte. The girl kept away from the other guests of her sex, and was never seen in conversation with any one. At the dining table Mr. Dorpman gave the orders to the waiters both for bimself and his daughter. When Proprietur Butterwroth met the young woman on the stairs last Thursday and said, affably, "Good morning."

both for himself and his daughter. When Proprietor Butterwoth met the young woman on the stairs last Thursday and said, affably, "Good moraing," she never answered the salute. The strange actions of the couple occasioned such widespread comment and carriestly among the guests of the house that finally Proprietor Butterworth approached Mr. Dorpman while he was standing at the organ counter one day, and after a few mioutes of general conversation asked him to explain the cause of his constant tapping on his daughter's arm.
"So you've noticed that, ch?" said Mr. Dorpman with a laugh, "Well, that is how I talk to Hattie. She is deaf and dumb."
Mr. Butterworth asked him how he was able to converse with his daughter by amply drumming on her arm.
"You'll think it is easy after I tell you," he answered. "You must remember that we came from an obscure part of Nobraska, settled there with my wife a quarter of a century ago. Eighten years ago when Hattie was born, there was not a house within a mile of us, nor a city within sixty mites. As the child grew older we discovered that she was deaf and dumb. We were at a loss how to communicate with her. We were far away from a civilized cummunity, and no one we knew was familiar with tho sign language of the deaf mutes, so that the bady grew up to be a child before we could devise some were far away from a civilized cummunity, and no one we knew was familiar with the sign language of the deaf mutes, so that the baby grew up to be a child before we could devise some scheme to talk to her.

"Finally my wife hit upon a novel idea. She got a clever young fellow who worked for us to tattoo the alphabot on Hattie's arm. The letter "A" began just above the wrist and the letter "Z" ended just below the shoulder lade. Hattie was then six years old.
In less than a year by this means my wife had taught her the sliphabet.

"Then we began to spell out words touching each letter very slowly with our fingers. As the child learned we became faster, and when Hattie was twelve years old we were able to talk to her as rapidly as a person can spell out words on a typewriter. Hattie, too, learned to answer us by drumming on her tattoed arm. Of course for several years at first, when we wanted to talk to her, or she to us, she had to roll up the sleeve of her left arm. Gradually her sense of touch became so fine that she knew without looking just where each letter was located, and her mother and I, by constant tractice, were enabled to strike these letters with her sleeves rolled down.

GAS FOR COOKING AND HEATING.

The ideal fuel is gas. It gives the greatest degree of heat, is always unde-control and is absolutely without dust and there can be ac accidents from it; uso Scientific investigations have shown that food cooked by it retains 20 per cen-move of its untritive properties than it cooked in the old way. You never ate a good steak unless you have tried one cooked by gas. The Council Bluffs Gas and Electric Light company have made it desirable in point of economy to use gas for cooking and heating. Instant Loss of Sight.

A middle-aged man, with slightly gray hair and moustache, standing in the Post counting-room last evening, his criphed legs reinforced by a pair of crutches, was suddenly, without a second's premonition, stricken stone blind, says the Washinton Post. He was Mr. Henry Dodge of '911 Fourth street. He had just got a copy of yesterday's paper, and had scarcely rested his eyes on it when the paper drouped from his hands and he covered his eyes with them and cried: "My God! I'm struck blind."

He leaned on the counter and sobbed his shoulders shaking, and tears from his sightless eyes streaming through his fingers.

Mr. Dodge wears on his breast the bronze emblem of the Grand Army of the Republic. A wound he had received in the army had injured his spinoral and ceived in the army had injured his spinal cord.

From the effects of the wound he has never recovered, and some time age he suffered a partial stroke of paralysis. His sudden blindness probably is attributable to the same cause. He feit no pain, he said, but his eyes were as sightless as though they had been plucked out. Policeman Boyce was summoned and Mr. Dodge was taken home in a cab.
