The American Cycling Misses. The team of American women cyclers have not finished up with the Englishmen set, it wull appear, as the following from an English exchange shows: "At the Artillery delit hall, Sheffield, a twenty hours' contest between Misses Jessie Wood, Lottle Stanley, Louisa Armaido, May Alles and Lilite Wilhiams, members of the American team, was held during the past week. Commencing on Christman Evo, racing was continued afternoon and evening, the final being held on Saturlay, Despite many attractions in the town and the fact that there had scarcely been time for advertising the meeting, very fair houses were secured during the week. The andi-ence took the kreenest interest in the racing, whilst many who had expected simply a pro-cession were astounded at the determined manner in which the fair riders roce and skillfully managed their wheels. The hall, though a very large one only gave a track of twelve manner in which the fair riders rode and skillfully managed their wheels. The hall, though a very large one only gave a track of twelven laps to the mile. During the contest several members were not in their usual form not having recovered from the effects of a serious spill in the North; in fact, Miss Armsindo had not left her room more than three days ere commercing, but they pluckily rode though at a disadvantage, on Saturday. Miss Wood, who was four miles behild the leader, rode in magnificent style, but she was unable to reduce it more than seven laps. At the conclusion of the racing the contestants were follows: As an example of the speed. Miss Wood rode thiry. Four miles in two hours and ten min-tes, and this on a flat and very small track. The score was approximately as follows; Miss Missley, 384 unles; Miss Allen, 302; Miss Wood, 306; Miss Williams, 304; Miss Armaindo, 326-the two last retining.
