OMANA, Nob., Feb. 17. -To the Editor of Tim Bin-'in copy to your query from Madi-son, I suggest this solution: Square the radius of the intrge circle, 100 foct, multiply by 3.140, which will give the area of the circle. The smaller circle being 100 foct in circumference, divide by 3.1410 and take haf of the quotient, which will give the radius. Square this and multiply by 3.1410, subtract the smaller area from the larger, and you have the area of the smaller circle. Subtract the smaller area from the larger, and you have the area of a fast hat the horse can grase on, not allowing for length of the, horse's neck, etc. C. E. McMONES, K. K. D. G. Co.

Of a new season, we desire to state in, the strongest possible manner, that we intend to keep the lead, which we have in the clothing and all other lines of goods we are handling. We have pre-pared for a bigger spring trade than ever, and the stock we are now getting in is accordingly. Our display this season will be the largest ever made in Omaha, and our prices will, as heretofore, be the talk of the town. To-morrow morning we shall have open and ready for inspection our entire line of Spring Overcoats. Don't fail to look at them, as it will be a treat to you to see the new styles, and a surprise to see the prices. No house here or elsewhere will show you an equal line, nor is there another house that dares to name such prices. line, nor is there another house that dares to name such prices. AT THE BEGINNING

Our assortment of fine Overcoats, made of the latest textures and newest shades, silk lined and otherwise trimmed in the richest manner, must be seen to be appreciated. We are showing as fine garments as any house in the country, only with this difference, that our large business enables us to mark them with a very moderate profit, and thus we sell them about 25 or 30 per cent cheaper than other houses.
