The National Capital.

The City of Washington is an object of perennial interest to all patriotic Americans. Not alone because it is the great throbbing heart of the mightiest and grandest republic the earth has ever known, but also on account of its material magnificence. All Americans take pride in its beautiful avenues, majestic architecture, stately homes and well stored galleries and museums as things of grandeur and beauty in themselves, apart from the historic interest with which they are invested. It is a hope and aspiration of all "Young America," at least, to some time or other visit the capital of his country.

The Baltimore & Ohio R. R. offers unequalled facilities in aid of this desire. All its through trains between New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore on the east, and Pittsburg, Cincinnati, St. Louis and Chicago on the west, pass through Washington. Its fast express trains are vestibuled from end to end and heated with steam. Pullman's latest and best productions in the way of sumptuous drawing room sleeping cars are attached to all its through trains. The present management of the B. & O. have made vast improvements in the last two years, and the road is today one of the foremost passenger carrying lines in the country. Through tickets via B. & O. R. R. can be procured at all the principal ticket offices throughout the United States.

A Revolutionary Powder Horn.

Charles F. Rockwell of this place has an ancient powder horn which has an interesting history. His grandfalher, Jabez Rockwell, was a revolutionary soldier, having enlisted in the continental army at the age of 16, says a Honesdale, Pa., dispatch to the New York Sun. The regiment he was in was recruited in Connecticut under the direction of Benedict Arnold. He fought under Arnold at Saratoga, where he was wounded. After recovering from his wound he was transferred to the division of the army under Washington and Lafayette. He was among the hardy patriots who suffered in the terrible winter quarters at Valley Forge. The vicissitudes of the campaign had resulted in the losing by a large number of the soldiers of their powder horns. From the heads of some of the cattle obtained by foraging about Valley Forge, the camp butchers had saved the horns, and there was great strife among the soldiers who had lost their powder horns to obtain possession of one of these. There were so many applicants that no satisfactory division could be made of them. One day, as General Washington was riding by the camp, the situation was explained to him and he was asked to suggest some way by which the horns could be fairly disposed of among the men. He took a paper and wrote a number between 1,500 and 2,000 and said that the ten soldiers who guessed the nearest to that number should have the horns. The guesses were made. The number Washington put down was 1,776. Jabez Rockwell was one of ten who were near enough to the lucky number to get a horn, his guess being 1,750. He carried the horn through the rest of the war and it is the horn now in possession of his grandson.
