WAS SHOT AT THE HEN HOUSE

The Bos Discovers Where One of the Joneses Died.

BULLET HOLES IN THE WALLS

Made by Shots Fired After a Fleeing Victim Who Was Followed from the Direction of the Pinney Cottage.

An Important Discovery. A Hen man was accompanied to the Pinney farm yesterday by County Agent Mahoney. The farm was found to be in charge of Aibin Willison, a farmer of about 60 years of age but full of life and intelligence. He has a companion a boy about thirteen years old named Harry Doty. Mr. Willison formerly resided in Council Bluffs where live also two of his sons. William and McClelland. These with the father have rented the farm from Dr. Pinney, taking care of the property and stock and receiving in return two-thirds of the products of the

Mr. Willison, the boy, Mr. Mahoney and the writer walked over the yard, examined the barns, searched hay stacks, in fact looked everywhere in hope of finding a concealed weapon. But it was like looking for the traditional needle. No deadly weapon could

The party then made a search for bullet holes in the trees and outhouses, and finally made a discovery which shows beyond a question that the murder was committed with a revolver, and that one of the victims must have been shot when he or she was running away and was endeavoring to get behind the hennery for protection.

These facts are substantiated by the find-fng of three bullet holes in the east wall of that out house, none of which are higher above the ground than would be the shoulders of either Mr. or Mrs. Jones. The bullets which made these holes must have been No. 33, and could have gone through the body of the victim before leaving their ineffaceable marks upon the little building. The murderer could not have been far from his victim when the shots were fired, yet a short distance must have intervened between the party pursued and the hennery, because of the slightly enlarged opening at the place the builet entered the wood.

The course taken by the bullets shows that they were fired from the direction of the house. That they did their work effectually is not to be doubted and that they were fired by a skilled hand is equally certain, because a straight line drawn between the two end holes would not equal the width of the back of either of the murdered people. Between the lowest and highest shot there is a dis-tance of a couple of feet, but even that would be within the height of a man of even

The hennery is situated southwest of the Pinney cottage. From the southwest end of the latter it is just forty one feet distant. The distance from the south end of the front porch is sixty feet. The hennery is an un-painted frame structure about 10x8 feet in dimensions, and has not been occupied by fowl for some time. Interiorly the floor is covered with excrement, in which, beyond a doubt, one or possibly more of the bullets may yet be found. Time did not permit the examination necessary for the discovery.

One of the bullets strock the fourth board from the north end on the east side of the house, 4 feet 8 inches above the ground; another struck the fifth board 4 feet 3 inches above the ground, and the third struck the sixth board only 3 feet above the ground. None of these boards exceed six inches in width.

All these bullets passed through the boards, crossed the interior of the house and struck the west wall. One of them struck the tenth board from the north four feet six inches above from the ground, another the eleventh board, four feet seven inches above the ground, and the third struck an upright scanting about four feet ten inches above the ground.

One of these bullets passed through the west wall, the other two lodged there and it is thought dropped to the floor where they were lost in the shoveling to which that part was subjected, and where they may yet be

The fact that the bullets struck the west wall at a more southerly point than they did where they entered shows conclusively that they were fired from the direction of the New Developments.

Yesterday a BEE man revisited the Pinney farm to witness the examination of the well in the premises, in which it was thought the murderer or murderers of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Jones might have concealed the Reapon with which the horrible crime was committed.

The examination was made by a couple of experts under the supervision of Chief Detective Haze.

The well is 120 feet in depth. A bucket containing a lighted candle was lowered to the water. The candle burned brilliantly, and being thus assured that there was no danger to be apprehended from gases, one of the well diggers descended. There were three feet and eight inches of in the well, and this was of slimy, dirty character. It was all removed, how ever, by the diligent use of a couple of large buckets. Then the mud was scraped from the bettom and raised to the surface. There were several inches taken out. It was of a dark gray color. But in it were found no traces of a weapon of any kind. This discovery estab-lishes the fact that so far as the well is concerned it contains none of the secrets of the terrible crime. As soon as this fact was established the well-diggers and Officer Haze returned to the city.

THE BUSINESS MEN

The Forthcoming Meeting of the State Association.

The first annual convention of the Ne braska state business men's association will be held in Omaha on May 20, 21 and 22. The Nebraska state business men's asso ciation is comparatively a new, but a very prosperous organization. There are thirty local branches of the organization in the state, with a total membership of over one thousand retail business men. The objects of the association are offensive and defensive. They are the fostering of a more social feeling among its members; the prevention of wholesale houses selling at retail to private families; the keeping of a list of dead-beats and swindlers who prev upon the trade, and the maintenance of a reliable collection agency for had debts; regulating the peddling nuisance; watching the local and state legislation affecting trade; protec tion against the adulteration of goods: tection against unjust laws affecting trade and protection of each other's interests. the hands of an advisory board of which the president of each branch is an ex-officio member. The Omaha members of the board are William Flemming, E. T. Duke, C. R. Courtney, R. F. Hodgin and C. W. Thomp

At the proposed state convention each ne delegate for each ten members be sides the president, who is ex-officio a dele-gate. In addition to these every business man in the state who has an interest in the work is invited to correspond with the secre-tary of the association, R. F. Hodgin of Omaha, that arrangements may be made for the accommation of all of the delegates.

"We expect," said Secretary Hodgin, "to have nearly two hundred delegates and as many more visitors. The local association will entertain the delegates and will ask the jobbers of Omaba to join in the work. There is a growing interest in the movement throughout the state. One of the first aims of the association will be in the direction of better laws for the protection of the retail dealers, a class of people who are not recognized by the laws of Nebruska. Our state laws encourage dead beats. The exemptions are so liberal that the merchant who sells goods on credit has no remedy at all for the risk he meurs. Our aim is to secure the adoption of a reasonable garnishee law, the amendment of the exemption act and the passage of such other measures as will give the retail dealer some protection in his busi-

THE DENVER SHOPS.

Extensive Additions to be Made-

Other Railway Notes. The Union Pacific has finally commenced work on the construction of its new machine shops at Denver. A glance at the plans shows much more extensive contemplated improvements than anyone supposed, though with recent acquirements nearly 1,000 miles of the system centers there, which naturally demands a larger amount of repairing to be done at that point. All the building are to be constructed of brick. The round-house will have fifty stalls and a turntable sixty-three feet long. The main shops are to be 125x226 with an annex 61x71, in which will be located the ergine, boiler, dynamo and tooi rooms. Still another building, 95x275 and two stories high, will be used for a car shop; another, 50x250, for a paint shop, while freight car repairing will be carried on in yet another of the same dimensions. There comes in addition to all these buildings a store house 48x226 and an oil house 27x38. The contracts for constructing coal chutes, roundhouse, sand house and pits have been let and that portion of the work is now under way.

What Kimball Thinks of it.

The interstate commerce commissioners will probably not reach Omaha before Sunday or Monday. They were in Chicago Wednesday, but before arriving here propose visiting Des Moines and Sloux City. T. L. Kimball, third vice president of the Union Pacific, was asked yesterday what action his corporation would take to defend itself before the commission against the complaints that are expected to be filed by the state board of transportation. In reply he said: "I am inclined to think those charges contain contradictory, irrelevant and absurd statements enough to answer themselves. Furthermore, I don't understand that the Furthermore, I don't understand that the law contemplates such proceedings as are proposed without the railroads having some sort of notification, and so far as I know we have had no notice. It is my understanding that these commissioners are out under Senator Paddock's long and short haul resolution, simply hearing what people have to say-giving the kickers a chauce to

The Viaduct and Depot Plans. The viaduct plans are so far completed that a contractor can commence the work of construction any day. Matters are waiting now for the city council to pass an ordinance which has already gone through first and second readings, authorizing the depot company to close Tenth street and get to busi-ness. Van Brunt & Howe, the architects, are putting in all their time on the remodeled depot plans and will have them done in a few days. As the result of Mr. Howe's recent visit to all the fine union depots in the east Mr. Doran, the superintendent en-gineer of construction, says this will be the

A Little Behind. LINCOLN, Neb., March 13 .- Special to THE BEE.]-The interstate commerce commission will not reach Lincoln until Tuesday of next week. It is officially announced, the state board of transportation being the authority, however, that the date stated is the last day of grace, and that the commission will surely be here at that time. John M. Thurston is coming, too, and it is even intimated that Mr. Holdredge of the Burlington will appear. In the interim the board of secretaries will put in good time. The formal complaint, published in full by The Ber s day or two since, will be strengthened in every way possible. The attorney general also smells the battle from afar and is loading his gun to the muzzle. Benton and Steen are chewing their cuds indifferently. Hill is convalescing rapidly and will be on hand if possible, while Cowdery is rusticating at Youngstown, O., a trilling village in the Western Reserve, and his presence is a matter of some doubt.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

Kittle, an eight-year-old daughter of William Wenzel, who resides in North Lincoln, met with an accident just before 9 o'clock this morning that will probably cost the little girl her life. In company with several other children she started to school at the usual hour, and on reaching the Ninth street railway crossing undertook to cross in front of a rapidly approaching train. She suc-cessfully accomplished this perilous under taking, but unfortunately ran into a plung-ing team that had become frightened at the puffing engine. This startled her and she sprang back, only to be caught by an engine which had just started on the side track. The drive-rod struck Kittie squarely in the forehead, cutting a frightful gash and throwing her backward to the ground. She was taken to her home, which was near by, and a passing physician called in. The child's recovery is doubtful. Wenzel is a machinist and works in the Burlington your way!' "Organizing and banding together in every school district and neighborhood in the west-ern part of the state. The fact of the matter is, the alliance intends to be represented in the future or know the reason why."

"What does it want?" "That's a question that will take me some time to answer. The old grange, you know, was a social organization and went to pieces when certain polit-icians undertook to control it. The alliance is very different. In my county our very best and most intelligent farmers have gone into it. If I understand the concern aright there is a principle at the bottom of it and its members are bent on working it out. Now, the farmers want intelligent represen tation in legislative assemblies and especially on the state board of transportation; not necessarily tarmers, but officials who erve their interests and give them an honest deal in all matters that intimately concern them. I want to say that the alliance proposes to aid in the election of men who possess intelligence and will be able to grapple with the questions of the day intelli-gently. The day has passed for Tom, Dick gently. The day has passed for lon, Dies and Harry to put themselves forward as the gods of Israel."

"How does the alliance propose to do it? I wently the state of the late of the late see by the papers that its members will not attend the primary elections." "That's a mistake. Alliance men will be at the primary elections to a man. I tell you they are up and in arms, and organizing all over the state at the rate of forty a week. The alliance proposes to peat the proxy system. And moreover, it proposes to beat he present chattel mortgage system, usury, injust freight rates, discriminations, etc."

"The alliance won't put an independent ticket in the field, then? "Not a bit of it. The alliance proposes to do what it can in conventions and primaries. and if that won't do it will get in its work at the polls."

ralgia, fits, etc. AMUSEMENTS.

Arthur Rehan's very clever comedy company opened at Hoyd's opera house last night in "Lottery of Love" to a splendid audience and scored an unqualified success. Of all the many attractions that visit Omaha none receive a friendlier welcome than this one. Its coming is always looked upon as au extraordinary event, socially as well as artistically, in the amusement line. That fact is due chiefly to an established reputation Mr. Rehan enjoys for bringing an organization composed strictly of first-class talent and presenting plays made successful at Augus-tin Daiy's theater in New York before being sent upon the road. This time he offers that deliciously funny adaptation from the French named above, and a more thoroughly enjoyable performance could hardly be imagined. The comedy abounds in bright, witty dialogue, humorous lines, absurdly amusing situations and original complications. No better evidence of the appreciation felt by an sudience over the work of a company could be given than the hearty laughter and almost continuous applause prevailing throughout the three acts of last night's entertainment. The cast was strong, evenly balanced, harmonious in its treatment of the several characters, and kept the interest at a high tension from the beginning. As there is no star, surrounded by an indifferent, weak lot of amateurish sticks, it is impossible to speak of one without referring speak of one without referring to all. However, there are members never before seen here, and quite new in the profession, who deserve special mention. instance, Miss Edith Crane is having her first season's experience as a professional artist, consequently she must be accorded the distinction of possessing superior ability as well as grace and beauty to hold the position of leading lady in such a combination. Mr. Burr McIntosh, also a stranger to Omaha people, made himself quite popu-lar. He is a pleasing actor and is well liked. Miss Adele Waters, Mrs. Carrie Jamison, Miss Nellie Wright, Frank Jamison, Harry Halto and Clarence Heritage are already too well known to require further intro duction or additional praises. Any duction or additional praises. Any respectable comedy in their hands would have to be a go. They put life, vigor and enthusiasm into their efforts, throw their souls upon the action, and bring out every point just as it should be brought out. The same can be said of Miss Crane and Mr. Mcntosh. All in all, "Lottery of Love" proved to be as enjoyable an entertainment that has been witnessed in Omaha this sea-
