Death of C. E. Friedmann

The Danbury (Conn.) News of the 4th inst, contains the announcement of the death of C. E. Friedmann in that city Friday evening of last week. The deceased was well known in this city, having been connected with the real estate firm of Odeli Brothers about four years ago, but was compelled to give up his position on account of the lung trouble that at last terminated in his death. Deceased was a native of Germany, coming to this country when quite young, In 1865 he went to Danbury, where in 1878 he married Miss Fannie Allen, who survives him. Until 1873 he occupied a nosition in the Danbury National bank and then became the bookkeeper at the News office, where he remained until 1880, when he accepted a position with the lithograph firm of Stahi & Claus in New York. His illness did not develop urtal after he came west, and in the spring of 1883 he was obliged to leave the Bluffs and returned to Danbury. The ch-mate there was unsuited to him, and he re-turned west, and then went to Pine Bluff. Wyo., where he lived upon a ranch belonging to L. C. Baldwin of this city. He was greatly benefited for a time, but his health again failed and three months ago he went back to Danbury to die.

Mr. Friedman was a man who made many friends and he had several warm ones in this city. He was a young man of considerable ability, agreeable personal appearance and thoroughly conscientions. Previous to his illness he was the life of his social circle and was much sought after. Two years ago life to him was full of promise. The change worked in that time has been very great and very saddening. He suffered sorely, but bore his affliction with Christian fortitude. He has crossed the river and is at rest.

Police Improvements.

Arrangements are being made at the police station to remove the headquarters of the police department to the second floor. Heretofore the police and marshal's departments have both occupied the lower floor and the chief has had an office up stairs, but this witi now be changed. The police alarm and telegraph apparatus is all to be placed up stairs and an officer will be on duty at the station all of the time to receive the reports of the patrolmen, act as patrol conductor and of the patrolmen, act as patrol conductor and answer special calls in case of an emergency. A telephone is being put in and all changes made to make the police department entirely independent of the marshal's force.

This is a change that has long been needed, and will be appreciated. There has never been a patrol conductor, and the result has been that officers have been obliged to leave their beats to bring their prisoners in the wagon, which necessarily left beats in the outer part of the city unprotected for nearly an hour at a time. The same was true when an hour at a time. The same was true when a call was sent in for a policeman, as the jaller was obliged to go out and call in a patrolman from the nearest beat to answer the message.

It is desired to give the very best police service possible, and it will require some time to perfect the proposed improvements.

Since the appointment of fair of Police Cary, nowever, a change has seen inaugurated and he has taken the matter into his own hands. He decided that in-astronolips the patrol house belonged to the ter into his own hands. He decided that in-asmuch as the patrol house belonged to the police department the marshal had no right to keep a horse there and as he also maintained that the city was not to be expected to keep horses for either the marshal or himself, he ordered a stop put to it, and yesterday the extra stalls were tora out. Hereafter the patrol house will be used exclusively for the purpose for which it was built and will be kept to proper shape. Some needed repairs are being made, in-cluding a new floor, etc. This lopping off of iseless expense is strictly in accordance with the reform and retrenchment resoluions adopted at the citizens' convention and lugurs well for the new administration.

A Valuable Thoroughbred Lost. Early Thursday morning a fine gray horse was discovered apparently mired in Big Lake, fully 200 yards from the shore, just north of the city limits. About S o'clock some of the residents of that locality attempted to get him out, but were not successful. The case was finally reported to the authorities, but as it was outside the city they decided that they had no authority o take any steps in the matter. City Marshal Templeton offered to go out and see what he could do if some one would voluneer to go with him, but owing to the storm his offer was not accepted. About 7 o'clock in the evening a party went out, however, out the horse was dead.

but the horse was dead.

It transpired yesterday that the animal was a thoroughbred racing stallion, owned by M. L. Roeder, an Omana insurance man, and was valued at $1,000. He was a four-pear-old and was recently purchased in Denver. How the animal reached the lake is not known, as he was loft warmly blanketed. in his box stall Wednesday morning and no was gone on the following morning. Whether he was stolen or not is a matter of conjecture, but he certainly must have come across the bridge during the night. As nearly as can be learned the horse must have become jost or dazed, as he wandered about in the lake for several hours before finally becoming mired. In the half were a muzzle that he had on when left in his stall. The water was not more than eight inches deep, and under it was about as much ice, ough which the animal had broken, and nking into the mud was unable to get out. r. Roeder was in the city yesterday and identified the animal as his property. He feels very badly over the loss, as the horse was prized very bighly. It is surmised that the borse was stolen and managed to slip his halter after being led across the bridge.

Raiding a Robber's Roost.

A day or two ago the police were notified e be on the lookout for a lot of knives that were stolen from a store at Malvern last Sunday night. Last evening a raid was made on the place kept by George Ger. spacher, just below the Northwestern crossing on Broadway, and Gerspacher and his step-son, Johnnie Sullivan, were arrested. Later in the evening Frank Allen and Thomas O'Hara were arrested by Officer Beswick. They had been in the second hand store of Thomas Deerwester, where it is alleged Deerwester, where it is alleged they were trying to arrange for a disposal of he stolen property. Deerwester is regarded by the police as a "fence," and has been in trouble several times on this account.
O'Hara and Allen were accompanied by one
Lew Davis, who escaped from the officers. The other two were landed in the county fall. It is believed that this trio did the stealing and "planted" their booty at the Gerspacher dive, which is a resort of the toughest element of the criminal classes, and where the thugs make their headqua-

It was deemed best to also arrest the other inmates of the place, and about midnight the patrol wagon was again called out and a woman named Kincaid, who frequents the place, was arrested and taken to the station, where she was subjected to a close questioning by the officers. What she divulged was not made known.

The police are determined to break up the resort kept by Gerspacher, and regard the present as a very good time to begin. O'Hara, one of the men arrested on suspicion last evening, was recently convicted of the larceny of no overcoat from a Lower Broadway saloon, but by some means managed to

WYOMING GOES WILD.

The News from Washington Received

with Unbounded Enthusiasm. CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 28 .- | Special Telegram to THE BEE. |-- Wyoming is delirious with joy. The people of Chevenne were in a fever of anticipation all day vesterday. The press dispatches during the early afternoon gave no adequate conception of want was in store for Wyoming and finally became of such a character that the outlook seemed very dubious. Various wild rumors were soon set affoat and the newspaper offices were besieged for information. When the news that the bill had passed the house flashed over the wires it spread like wildfire from one excited group to another. In an inconceivably short space of time flags tegan to appear on the buildings and soon the town was bedecked as it seliom has been efore. Following this came fire crackers and bombs, and soon the ordnance from Fort Russell added to the turmoil, Church bells, the fire alarm bell and all locomotive, factory and shop whistles gave piercing evi-dence of the general joy. Banners were strung across all the main streets and every vehicle in town was covered with bunting. The Union Pacific band appeared early in the game and with a drum corps contributed temporarily to the musical features. The people themselves were wild with excitement, which increased with every minute. The business streets were througed with the entranchised. Ladies contributed their quota to the numbers and added to the genral enthersiasm.

Early in the evening a big benfire was built on the corner of Seventeenth and For-guson streets, which seemed to be the gathering point for the crowds. The artiflery was set to work early and shook the town with reverberations. Small boys and young men began to appear in gaudy costumes swathed in the tri-color and decorated with bus hats and huge red, white and blue rosettes. Mottoes and signs appeared on every side indicative of the altered condition of things. The city band, high school band. Grand Army of the Republic drum corps and Checkers, the Chayenne marks and the Chayenne marks and the Chayenne marks. Zuaves, the Cheyenne guards and the Cheyenne gun club, with a host of citizens in plug hats, joined in an impromptu parade. Salutes were fired by the gun club, and the sir was lurid with skyrockets and roman candles.

An overflow meeting was held in the opera house. County Commissioner Hoyt presided. Addresses were made by ex-Governor Baxter, General Thompson, Attorney General Donzeloma, Gibson Clarke, Thomas B. Adams and Governor Warren. Their sentiments of joy were applicated to the echo. Clayenne never enjoyed such a day. The long pent-up feeling of the people fairly overflowed and there was more handshaking and all around hillerity than has ever before been known here. Its effect on business and the future is aircady apparent.

TIRED OF PARTISAN METHODS.

Growth and Power of the Organization - Relations with the Rail-

South Dakota's Lawmakers,

PIERRE, S. D., March 26 .- [ Special to THE BEE. | -- The Farmers' ailiance of South Dakota has the best organization for practical purposes that exists among the states of the northwest. There are now organized over 800 alliances in the state, with an average of twenty members each, thus making a total membership of over 16,000. The membership is rapidly increasing. Eleven organizers are now in the field, and their reports are exceedingly gratifying. There is steady increase in the organization and in their numbers. Said one of the leading members of the legislature to me: "It is the most important item in the politics of Dakota today. The convention which formed the constitution was dominated by the farmers, and the present legislature, more especially the house, is in the hands of the alliance men." The secretary of the Farmers alliance was a member of the house, and was one of the most useful men in that body.

The alliance has been in existence here only four years. It first came into prominence in politics two years ago, under the direction of Mr. Loucks, who is its president. The farmers then indicated by their action their intention to take a hard the property of the control of in the renovation of the politics of the state. One of the real causes of the growth of the organization was political—a dissatisfaction not with republicanism or democracy, but with the active management of both parties. With the political attention, the financial condition of the farmers co-operated to produce a feeling of growing discontent, the alliance become a necessity. Ls purposes were far superior to the grange which preceded it; they had in view the improvement of the farmers both financially and through poli-tics. The farmers took hold of the political movement in Bismarck a year ago, in what was known as "the farmer's legislature," and again in South Dakota during the past summer. At the republican convention at Huron, it was determined to accomplish whatever was done within the lines of the two existing parties, by democrats electing democrats, and republicans electing republicans who were favorable to the purposes of the alliance. The platform of the Huron republican convention was very nearly in accord with the views and wishes of the members of the alliance. With few points of difference, the entire republican member ship of the alliance were willing to stand upon the republican platform. The alliance also had strength in the democratic organi-zation. Differences of individual judgment would lead to differences of opinion in re-gard to nominations and policies; but on the whole, the result of the full election was that while the farmers got the platform the politicians got the most of the offices. Thus Mr. Nardell, the alliance candidate for United States senator, was defeated. But the outcome is that the men who were elected both in the state offices and the legislature have happily disappointed the alliance, and have acted far more in accordance with their desires than they had hoped for. The recommendations made to the legislature baye been in the direction of the desires and pur-poses of the alliance; and the action of the legislature, giving relief to the people through remedial legislation, is approved by the farmers of the state. The legislature wil not be as satisfactory as it ought to be, mainly on account of the action of the senate which has killed the usury bill, the exempion law, the provision for the taxation of nortgages, and so on. In the house the riews and wishes of the alliance have comnanded attention, and much of the best leg-slation has originated with that body. But the purposes of the farmers' alliance of South Daketa are not distinctively political. They are so only for the ameliora-tion of the condition of the farmers and la-boring men of the state. Whatever short-comings there may have been in the action ther of the legislature or of state officer the farmers of the state, through their alli-ance will find a way speedily and decisively to correct them. Politics apart, and as a purely business organization, the alliance is a success even beyond that body in our own a success even beyond that body in our own state. It has, for example, organized a business company, with the purpose of bringing within the reach of the farmers, the heavier articles used by them, such as coal, oil, machinery, and so on. The sales of these articles, which are furnished at cost price, have amounted to $350,000 in South Dakota the past year and will probably amoroxymate one pullion durwill probably approximate one milion dur-ing the present year. The alliance also has an insurance department for life, for fire and against hail, and in its fire insurance business presents the best record among the companies doing business in the state. The state auditor attests that the standing of the insurance companies of the alliance is above

While there is the usual disposition among the farmers to restrict the railroads, for which the logislature has the most ample constitutional authority, at the same time there has been no attempt made and no dis-position manifested by the present legislaure to do so. This is due to two reasons: First, the state now has 2,400 niles of railroad and desires a good doal more to stimulate rapid settlement to the Missouri river and beyond it to the Black Hills; and, secondly, the railroad companies operating in the state have been very generous in transporting coal and grain to the few destitute counties free of charge. The Chicago & Northwestern company has contributed in this way fully $100,000 to those counties. The railroads have dealt fairly and generously with the people; the farmers throughout the state fully appreciate this fact, and there is no disposition for offensive legislation. The legislature has passed a law for the taxation of railroads; all railroad property is assessed by a state board on its value as other property is assessed. While this tax will add very largely to the resource of the state it is at the same time very satis-factory to the railroad companies. Under the constitution of the state the leg-islature of South Dakota is a pretty large body. The house must have not less than seventy-five members nor more than 135; and the senate not less than twenty-five nor more than forty-live. The present leg-islature has the maximum member ship, 180 members The consensus of opinion among the best members of opinion among the best members o both houses is in favor of the present num bor. Every county in the state has at least one member of the house. Both houses are fine bodies of men, and have proven to be more conservativa than might be expected of so numerous a representation in a new state. Under the constitution each regular session, except the first, must not exceed sixty days; any bill may originate in either house, and the governor may disapprove any item of a bill making appropriations of The theory upon which the constitutional convention apportioned the membership of the lower house, was one member for every 600 voters. Assuming that every organized county had a sufficient number of voters, each was given one representative, giving fity members on that basis. The seventy-four additional members were apportioned to the counties according to their respective appropriate the highest population on the same basis, the highest number for any one county being eight, and the lowest one. Kansas, with nearly the same area as South Dakota, lacks only five members to have the same number: Himois with one-third the area has thirty-five more with one-third the area has thirty-five more members, Indiana with haif and Iowa with two-thirds the area of South Dakots, have only nineteen less. New Hampshire and Verwont, each with one-night the area have, the former twice as many, and the latter fill more members of the house; Massachusetts with one-tenth the area, has 111 more members; Connecticut with one sixteenth the area, has 104 more members; New York with 60 per cent of the area, has only nine more more members, and Pennsylvania with 55 per cent of the area, has eighty-two more members. In states where there is found the least legislative corruption there is almost generally the corruption there is almost generally the largest membership. Small hodies are more easily controlled than are large ones by lobby late and corruntionists. A large legisla ture is a more representative body; it comes hearer the people, and not only is less sus ceptible to corrupting influences, but is less liable to err in judgment. It seems to ren-der possible a more equal distribution of der possible a more equal distribution of power. One hundred and sixty seven members is not a too large body to represent 403,003 people. The closer the representatives are to the people, the more careful they will be not to vote for extravagant appropriations of the people's money. The legislature met October 15, organized the state government and elected the state senators and allowers to the United States senutors, and adjourned to the theory of January. It has therefore been bession three months, and in legislative sesion but two months, which is a moderation the first legislature of a new state. For the first legislature of a new state. Both of the Dakotas have enacted prohibition laws which are Draconian in their provisions. I may hereafter give a summary of these enactments, which in the case of South Dakota can claim the favorable opinion at best of only a little more than half the votes of the state. In the case of South Dakota, the debate which was animated and pragranted introduced in the state. mated and protracted, turned on the adop-tion of an amendment offered by Mr. S. S. foung, who is the speaker of the house, ormitting the keeping and use of innoxica-ing liquor in the family residence. The friends of the measure made a long and des-perate fight to secure a provision with which it is certain the measure could never have become a law. I am able, through the cour-tesy of Mr. Young, to give extract from his speech, which alone saved the measure from certain defeat. Mr. Young quoted the words as they stand in the orig-inal bill, as follows: "Every lessee or owner of a building who shall permit or knowingly suffer to be used." therein any intoxicating liquor, ** shall be guilty of a misdemeanor," punist able by fine and imprisonment in the count jail for the first act, or for every successive offense by imprisonment in the state prison etc, Mr. Young said: "Gentlemen, in that paragraph in my deliberate judgment is contained a provision which would have ship wrecked the cause of prohibition. * ** I take it that after a few owners of family residences had served a term in your state's prison, possibly there might be a reaction in the sentiment of the people of this state that would have been disastrous to the cause which this law is intended to promote. the purpose of remedying that evil, this house by a large vote adopted the following words as an amendment to section 6. 'Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the use of intoxicating liquors in a building by the actual resident occupants thereof, if such building be a family residence used as such, and not a place of common and public resort? That amendment for the purpose of protecting your prohibitory law from its most serious danger has been assailed all over this state, and it has been declared that it would be rumous if it became a part of the law. The amendment contained a statement simply of the truth in regard to this matter-that it was not the sentiment of the house that upon any pretext could the home be invaded, its members be arrested and subjected to severe penalties, and even imprisoned for permitting the use of intoxicating liquors therein. Upon this proposition I squarely stand: that no prohibitory law was ever en-acted or can be enacted that can invade the home of any man in South Dakota and ar nome of any man in South Dakota and ar-rest him or punish him for the use of intox-icating liquor. I want to say that while the evil of the traffic is gigantic, while the sa-loon is the center and source of corruption, social and political, at the same time we recognize the fact that when that law comes to to the threshold of your home it is as power less to enter therein with its iron arm as is the breath of a feeble man to withstand the blast of the flercest storm that ever swept over our prairies. We must not be unmindful of the fact that forty-five hun-dredths of the people of South Dagota have not been steady friends of this law, and are even opposed to it, and that many a cause that is right in itself has been shipwrecked by being entrusted to those whose misguided real would lead them to resert to extreme measures. That amendment which received the sanction of nearly one hundred votes of the members of this house, guaranteed a right not only to owners of the family resi-dence, but to the members of the family and in my judgment that right is substantially preserved in the senate amendment which is now before you."

With this modification, the measure is now a law, and after July I, we shall have the opportunity of seeing what effect the most sweeping legislation that it is possible to secure will have on a population equally divided in sentiment upon its extreme provisions.
