

VETOED THE TAX REFUND.

The Fair Association's Exemption Overruled by the Mayor.

SUSTAINING THE CITY ATTORNEY.

The Improvement Fund to be Divided Between the North and South Sides—The Council Proceedings.

The exemption of the Omaha Fair and Exposition association's grounds from the matter of some $6,000 in taxes was short-lived.

The representatives of the various south side and north side improvement clubs have lauded the council's action for the past month in their efforts to secure a equitable distribution of the improvement funds for the present year.

The bill of Fanning & Co., for cleaning Leavenworth street from Fifteenth street to Thirty-third street, amounting to $530.49 was allowed.

Sidewalk Inspector Birmingham presented a petition for the removal of the sidewalk on the corner of Broadway and Tenth streets.

The city attorney presented a report on the matter of apportioning the funds received from the street car companies for pavements distributed by the companies in laying tracks on paved streets.

The petitions of J. Callahan and H. T. Clark for a reduction of taxes were on recommendation of the city attorney rejected.

The city comptroller reported that he had examined the reports of the various city officials and found them correct with the exception of the report of the police judge.

For rhumatic and neuritic pains, rub in Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's Ointment, Liniment, and Talcum. Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's Salicylate. You will not suffer long, but will be gratified with a speedy and effective cure.

Mr. Thomas Breen of London is visiting his son, Walter Breen, secretary of the Omaha Mortgage and Loan company.

Gov. F. E. Warren of Wyoming is a guest at the Hotel Hamilton.

John J. King of West Point is registered at the Hotel Hamilton.

J. H. Pope of Silver Creek is at the Casey.

J. C. Hale and daughter of Craig are registered at the Casey.

H. P. Sutton of McCook is stopping at the Casey.

Ed. Edgewood and wife of Pawnee City are guests at the Millard.

Mrs. E. C. Harris and Mrs. T. A. Sears of Norfolk were at the Millard yesterday.

Miss Dutton of Hastings is stopping at the Millard.

At the Merchants—John Matheson, Litchfield, Neb.; Frank E. Hastigan, Crete; S. C. Potter, Uta; N. Y. L. M. Arnsby, Central City; C. McMenemy, Blair; T. Tingelhorn, Lincoln; O. P. Smith, Chicago.

Special Officer Pettit of the board of health presented a request for street car transportation.

The report of the fire and police commissioners recommending the rental of the town property at Chicago via fact, the vestibule express trains for all points east.

The electric light company was instructed to remove the electric light now at the police station to the corner of Fifteenth and Jackson streets and to discontinue the light now located in the center of Jefferson square.

The city engineer was authorized to employ an additional clerk at $75 a month, shall do all abstracting work for the city as a part of his duties.

The insurance committee reported that the council had no authority to grant aid to the various charitable institutions of the city and the petitions for such help were accordingly rejected.

ANGLO-AMERICAN MASONS.

Organization of a Royal Arch Chapter in London.

THE SECRET RIDE IN THE DARK.

How the Suspected Man Saw the Husband of Mrs. Reed Proceeding to Her Home Armed and on Horseback.

The exemption of the Omaha Fair and Exposition association's grounds from the matter of some $6,000 in taxes was short-lived.

The representatives of the various south side and north side improvement clubs have lauded the council's action for the past month in their efforts to secure a equitable distribution of the improvement funds for the present year.

The bill of Fanning & Co., for cleaning Leavenworth street from Fifteenth street to Thirty-third street, amounting to $530.49 was allowed.

Sidewalk Inspector Birmingham presented a petition for the removal of the sidewalk on the corner of Broadway and Tenth streets.

The city attorney presented a report on the matter of apportioning the funds received from the street car companies for pavements distributed by the companies in laying tracks on paved streets.

The petitions of J. Callahan and H. T. Clark for a reduction of taxes were on recommendation of the city attorney rejected.

The city comptroller reported that he had examined the reports of the various city officials and found them correct with the exception of the report of the police judge.

For rhumatic and neuritic pains, rub in Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's Ointment, Liniment, and Talcum. Dr. J. H. McLaughlin's Salicylate. You will not suffer long, but will be gratified with a speedy and effective cure.

Mr. Thomas Breen of London is visiting his son, Walter Breen, secretary of the Omaha Mortgage and Loan company.

Gov. F. E. Warren of Wyoming is a guest at the Hotel Hamilton.

John J. King of West Point is registered at the Hotel Hamilton.

J. H. Pope of Silver Creek is at the Casey.

J. C. Hale and daughter of Craig are registered at the Casey.

H. P. Sutton of McCook is stopping at the Casey.

Ed. Edgewood and wife of Pawnee City are guests at the Millard.

Mrs. E. C. Harris and Mrs. T. A. Sears of Norfolk were at the Millard yesterday.

Miss Dutton of Hastings is stopping at the Millard.

At the Merchants—John Matheson, Litchfield, Neb.; Frank E. Hastigan, Crete; S. C. Potter, Uta; N. Y. L. M. Arnsby, Central City; C. McMenemy, Blair; T. Tingelhorn, Lincoln; O. P. Smith, Chicago.

Special Officer Pettit of the board of health presented a request for street car transportation.

The report of the fire and police commissioners recommending the rental of the town property at Chicago via fact, the vestibule express trains for all points east.

The electric light company was instructed to remove the electric light now at the police station to the corner of Fifteenth and Jackson streets and to discontinue the light now located in the center of Jefferson square.

The city engineer was authorized to employ an additional clerk at $75 a month, shall do all abstracting work for the city as a part of his duties.

The insurance committee reported that the council had no authority to grant aid to the various charitable institutions of the city and the petitions for such help were accordingly rejected.

TRIES TO ABSOLVE HIMSELF.

Alleged Murderer Frank Tries to Fasten the Crime on Reed.

BISMARCK'S GREAT CAPACITY.

Not in the Way of Statesmanship, but for Beer and Tobacco.

In the course of a dinner party at his house in Naples recently, Minister Crispien gave his guests a little sketch of the first evening of his late visit in Friedrichsruhe, says the New York Sun.

The relations between the murdered man and Mrs. Reed, according to Frank's story, were of the best character and furnished grounds for Reed's jealousy.

Speaking of his dismissal from the Reed place, Frank says that Mrs. Reed came to him and said:

"Tony, you must go away, I don't wish you around here any longer, as the husband's name is going to kill somebody."

The same warning Frank claims came to him through Charles Strobel, who, with his wife, live in Mrs. Reed's house, who remarked at the time: "There is going to be trouble here I am afraid, if we don't watch."

On the night of the murder, Frank says he had a dinner party at his home at the corner of the walls and the farm houses in the neighborhood, showed where, as he was going to Handy's, he met a man in a suit and a woman in his left hand a gun.

He says he is perfectly positive as to Reed's identity and minutely describes his clothes and appearance and the locality where they passed each other on opposite sides of the road. At the same time, he admitted that it was a dark night.

He repeats this story two or three times without material variation. It is considered strange, however, that they should have come so near together late at night on a country road without speaking or in any way saluting each other.

CHRONISER MOURNED. A Former Wife Discovered Living Near Albridge.

A large number of persons called at Healey's undertaking establishment to see the body of the peddler who was murdered at Elkhorn.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

ANOTHER PLAYING A PART.

Abe Lisk's Lively Tongue but Unfortunate Forgetfulness.

DARK AS TO THE MURDER DATES.

But Full of Information as to Shellenberger's Round-the-Country Ramblings After the Great Crime.

Yesterday Marshal Abbey of Nebraska City arrived with Abe Lisk, the fourth suspect in the Jones murder case.

The marshal had managed the fellow at the outset but thought he could run as fast as he could if occasion required and had the bracelets until this city was reached.

The officer and prisoner were met at the depot by Detectives Belmont and Haze and accompanied in the patrol wagon to the city jail.

Lisk is a long haired, low browed, greasy looking fellow, but is a willing talker. He remembers distinctly every detail of his experience since February 11, but has forgotten almost everything occurring prior to that time.

"Do you know Joe Shellenberger?" he was asked. "Yes, I have a slight acquaintance with him."

"How long have you known him?" "I have met him off and on for the last three or four years."

"When did you see him last?" "I think it was on February 13 that I was separated on a farm four miles this side of Lincoln."

When Lisk made a statement of how he and Joe had left Nebraska City together on February 11, they started on foot looking for work, being in need of money.

"I can't tell the date. It was after he had been working on the ice. He had been paid off with a check and I was around with him since trying to get it cashed. It might have been the 23 or 31 of the month, but I was told that according to the boss' books, it was the 4th. But I can't swear to date on it."

"When did you see Shellenberger again after the night he had the check?" "I met him down at Beck's house."

"Had you been home between those dates?" "I don't remember."

"How long had he been away several days and you do not know it, could he not?" "Yes, I guess he could. I ain't going to state nothing but what I can positively swear to."

"Then Joe would have a hard time to prove an alibi by you, wouldn't he, Abe?" "I don't know."

"How did Joe act at that Sunday, the 9th of February, if he was in Nebraska City. I can prove where I slept every night."

"What work did you do?" "Oh! jobs of all sorts of common labor, printing, sawing and all kinds of work."

"Where did you put in most of your time when not at work?" "In Joe Hootley's saloon."

Lisk admitted furthermore that about the time that Shellenberger was arrested, a certain Nebraska City attorney sent for him and talked with him about Joe's leaving Nebraska City and returning to it on two different occasions.

After that interview, he became convinced of the fact that the time he was arrested was a mistake.

Lisk admitted furthermore that about the time that Shellenberger was arrested, a certain Nebraska City attorney sent for him and talked with him about Joe's leaving Nebraska City and returning to it on two different occasions.

After that interview, he became convinced of the fact that the time he was arrested was a mistake.

Lisk admitted furthermore that about the time that Shellenberger was arrested, a certain Nebraska City attorney sent for him and talked with him about Joe's leaving Nebraska City and returning to it on two different occasions.

After that interview, he became convinced of the fact that the time he was arrested was a mistake.

Lisk admitted furthermore that about the time that Shellenberger was arrested, a certain Nebraska City attorney sent for him and talked with him about Joe's leaving Nebraska City and returning to it on two different occasions.

TRIES TO ABSOLVE HIMSELF.

Alleged Murderer Frank Tries to Fasten the Crime on Reed.

BISMARCK'S GREAT CAPACITY.

Not in the Way of Statesmanship, but for Beer and Tobacco.

In the course of a dinner party at his house in Naples recently, Minister Crispien gave his guests a little sketch of the first evening of his late visit in Friedrichsruhe, says the New York Sun.

The relations between the murdered man and Mrs. Reed, according to Frank's story, were of the best character and furnished grounds for Reed's jealousy.

Speaking of his dismissal from the Reed place, Frank says that Mrs. Reed came to him and said:

"Tony, you must go away, I don't wish you around here any longer, as the husband's name is going to kill somebody."

The same warning Frank claims came to him through Charles Strobel, who, with his wife, live in Mrs. Reed's house, who remarked at the time: "There is going to be trouble here I am afraid, if we don't watch."

On the night of the murder, Frank says he had a dinner party at his home at the corner of the walls and the farm houses in the neighborhood, showed where, as he was going to Handy's, he met a man in a suit and a woman in his left hand a gun.

He says he is perfectly positive as to Reed's identity and minutely describes his clothes and appearance and the locality where they passed each other on opposite sides of the road. At the same time, he admitted that it was a dark night.

He repeats this story two or three times without material variation. It is considered strange, however, that they should have come so near together late at night on a country road without speaking or in any way saluting each other.

CHRONISER MOURNED. A Former Wife Discovered Living Near Albridge.

A large number of persons called at Healey's undertaking establishment to see the body of the peddler who was murdered at Elkhorn.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

She had been intimately acquainted with the murdered man and had known him before his last marriage. He was fifty-three years old and had two grown-up sons, but no daughters.

When she saw the face she immediately recognized it as that of William Chroniser. She was so affected by the sight that it was some time before she could talk.

MABEL'S GRANDMA. "The world is even as we take it. And life, dear child, is what we make it."

This is sense, even if it is not Shakespearean. Indeed, it is the opening stanza of an anonymous poem. It was the sentiment of an old lady who had granddaughters named Mabel and Mary.

Advertisement for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, featuring the text 'DR. PIERCE'S PELLETS' and 'Purely Vegetable and Perfectly Harmless.'

Advertisement for 'Always Ready Relief for Pain', describing it as a cure for various ailments.

Advertisement for 'Time is Money', featuring a list of diamond and watch prices.

Advertisement for 'The Omaha Medical and Surgical Institute', listing various medical services.

Advertisement for 'Easter Presentation Gifts', promoting jewelry and gifts.

Advertisement for 'G. S. Raymond, Jeweler', located at 15th St., Omaha, Neb.

Advertisement for 'Emerson, Hallet & Davis, Kimball, Pianos & Organs, Sheet Music'.

Advertisement for 'Etchings, Engravings, Artists' Supplies, Mouldings, Frames'.