A Dangerous Cave-In.

The cave in at the intersection of Farnam and Fourteenth streets, which occurred last Sunday, was repaired Tuesday, but yesterday morning it caved in again making a much larger hole than before. It was at once repaired by filling it with large stones and dirt. Old citizens say a cistern was at this place years ago and from the appearance of the hole before it was filled in the wells of the citizen have fallen in, making a very usly and dangerous hole which is likely to give further trouble. This particular spot in the intersection of the streets is somewhat lower than the surrounding portions, and water stands there until it scake ions, and water stands there until it scaks

WAITING FOR A WINDFALL.

Chicago Ladies Claiming Valuable Omaha Property-Court Notes.

The next case to be tried before Judge Wakeley is docketed as Susan B. Meyers et al vs. Alexander McGavock et al. It involves the title to lots in the southeast part of the city covered by railway tracks and described as lot 8, block 303. The Union Pacific railway is also made a defendant in the suit. The case has a peculiar interest, for some young ladies in Chicago described as beautiful accomplished and altogether charming. They are named Susan B., Sarah E. and Luella G. Meyers. They are the daughters of a man who came west in early days and invested his money in Omaha realty and owned among other sites the lot in controversy. In 1864 he died intestate, his family being ignorant of the value of his Omaha possessions. The guardian of the children disposed of the prop-erty without the consent of his wards, it is alleged, and on this circumstance the suit is based. For the young ladies the world had been wagging along in its usual monotonous fashion. Susan and Sarah are teachers and Lucila is the youthful widow of a son of the family. They had their birds and flowers and music, and no doubt also their lovers, It Didn't Work.

S. C. Udell was locked up last night on the charge of assaulting his landlady, a Mrs.

Nemire, 1015 Harney street. It is claimed that if they wished to assert their claim they have the right to contest the fitle of the property in question. The news was a surprise to them, but they were not at all opposed to riches from any legitimate source. Hence the suit.

Hence the suit.

In the case of the state vs Kestner the defendant was allowed to plead guilty of assault and battery and with a rueful countenance paid into the treasury $50 and costs. Kestner was a chicken fancier and last fall he fancied some out in Walnut Hill with a string on them. The owner, Matt Gahlon, had equipped his chicken coop with a wire and bell attachment, which sounded the alarm when Mr. Kestner opened the door. In the interview which followed Kestner so grieviously maltreated the complaining witness as to lay himself liable to the charge of assault with intent to kill.

The Union Pacific railway has brought suit

The Union Pacific railway has brought suit The Union Pacific railway has brought suit against John A. McShane, David Neale and Fritz A. Johnson for the pessession of two quarter sections of land in Washington county. The plaintiffs allege that on December 9, 1865, John J. Dixwell and wife, the original owners, conveyed their title to that land to Thomas C. Durant, as president of the Credit Mobilier, the same being mechanical for the use of that corrorabeing purchased for the use of that corpora-tion. Afterwards Durant died suddenly with-out having executed the trust as to said land out having executed the trust as to said land and his heirs claimed the farms as their legal property. the rights and claims in equity of the Credit Mobilier to the property. The plaintiff in-sists that McShane and the other defendants hold the legal title to said real estate in trust for the use and benefit of the Credit Mobilier and of its grantees to the full extent and upon the same conditions as did Durant.
