Clan Gordon No. 63. Order of Scottish

Clans, has now a membership of nearly one hundred and three new members will be Initiated at the next meeting on the 15th inst. The regulia of the clan has been ordered from Sterling, Scotland, and will arrive in Omaha about the middle of this month. The regalia is a very pretty one, consisting of a plaid of the Clan Gordon tartan, of fine Scotch wool goods, which encircles the body of the clausman under the right arm and over the left shoulder, when it is crossed and buckled with a large Scottish lion-rampant silver brooch. The ends of the plaid, which are fringed, hang gracefully from the left shoulder, one in front and the other behind. to a point a little below the left knee. The head dress is what is known as the Belmoral bonnet, and is similar to a Tam O'Shanter It is of a deep indigo blue and has two longribbons attached to the back of it, which flut ter in the breeze when on the march. On the left side of the bound is a large rosette, sur rounded by the Scottish thistle in silver, which also forms a pocket for the eagle feather which completes the headgear of clansman in undress uniform. The Gordon tartan is very popular for ladies' costumes, It is a dark shaded green, with yellow cross-barred stripes and is the same as that worn manfully and fought so bravely at the "Re lief of Lucknow" during the Indian muting in 1857. They also distinguished themselves in the Egyptian campaign with General Gor-don, and in the Crimean war, where, in the battle of Balaklava in 1854, "the thin red

"The Arguments."

Columbus, O., Sunday Capital: The celebrated "Masonic cases" that have been pending in the common pleas court of this county during the past two years, finally came to a hearing before Judge Evans, sitting as chan-

The plaintiffs, members of the United States jurisdiction, were represented by Judges Harrison and Gilmore, and the defendants, members of the northern jurisdiction, by Attorneys Allen Andrews of Ham-ilten and John S. Sater of this city. It was fully expected that the cases would or tried on their merits as both parties had at a large expense of time and money taken estimony aproad, to be used in their behalf at the trial, but recently the northern jurisliction attorneys came into court and asked ermission to withdraw the answers they had iled in the cases and substitute a general denurrer to the petition of the plaintiffs. This etion being for the purposes of the demurrer square admission of all the facts and comlaints set forth in the United States jurisliction plaintiffs. The northern jurisdiction lefendants by their demurrers and arguents raised the questions of the jurisdiction of the court and its power to take cogniance of cases of this kind.

In behalf of the northern jurisdiction Atorney Andrews argued that the court had no urisdiction over the affairs of secret socieies. He compared a Masonic lodge to a social club," or a "whist club," and if a tember of such were expelled he could eadily join another. He said it was sought o expel the accused gentlemen, not on acount of any crime they had committed, but imply to get rid of an element not in harnony with the membership. In regard to the odge being incorporated, he argued that the odge, when incorporated, possessed two "enities," one being the social, fraternal and Masonic, and the other the incorporation under the civil law; in other words possess-ing a dual existence. He said if the plaintiffs ossession of their rights in the incorporated entity. He cited cases where churches and dubs had expelled their members and the ourts had refused to exercise jurisdiction

He said that all authority in Masonic matters rested in the grand lodge, and that all authority possessed by the subordinate lodges emanated from the rand lodge, and that the grand lodge had sole jurisdiction over the question at issue and not the court. He closed with an appeal to the court to sustain the demurrer, and allow the north jurisdiction element in leodale lodge to expel that of the United States jurisdiction, Judge Gilmore, in behalf of the United

Judge Harrison followed in a powerful, elo quent and masterful argument in behalf of the plaintiffs. He claimed that the courts could, by well settled principles of law, inter-fere in the affairs of secret societies and proect the valuable interests and property rights f members therein. The church mem pership was based upon religious dectrine the Masonie lodge on fraternity, charity assistance in distress. He sketched the ersulity of Masonry and showed the fallacversality of Masonry and showed the fallacy of Attorney Andrews' statement that if the plaintiffs were expelled they could readily join another lodge. It could not be done, and therefore their valuable interests were endangered. He showed that prior to D. N. Kinsman, a thirty-third degree of the north-ern jurisdiction, introducing discord inte Goodale lodge, by preferring charges against the thirty-six plaintiffs, all was harmony, and under the wise rule of officers who were members of the United States jurisdiction, the lodge prospered as it had never done before or since, and that "the element not in harmony with the member-ship," as was shown by the pleadings, was the northern and not the United States juris-He showed that no foundation xist for Mr. Andrews' theory that the lodge possessed two "entities," or as he put it a double barreled existence, a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde affair. He showed that the northern jurisdiction claimed to teach and to be governed by monarchial principles, and that the United States jurisdiction practised a representative form of government narmony with the institutions of this narmony with the institutions of this country, and he was inclined to think that it might yet become the province of the courts to inquire into this matter, and ascertain if a chool existed in this country for the inculca tion and dissemination of monarchial doc-trines and practices that in their tendency night prove dangerous to the civil libertle of this country. He charged that a cor spiracy had been formed by members of th northern jurisdiction to crush out the United States jurisdiction, and that to do so the per-sonal characters and just rights of plaintiffs laintiffs had a right to a separate trial in their lodges, and it was not just or right, or authorized by Masonic or civil law, to charge the thirty-six members with an Et alleged offense for the pur-pose of disfranchising them and thereby se-cure their expulsion by thirty-six northern isdiction voters in the lodge. By the ne rule the thirty-six northern jurisdiction otes, after expelling the United States juris nembers who do not belong to either rite disfranchise them and expell them in a body, and appropriate the property and funds of the corporation and lodge to their own social Opposing council had endeavored to show plaintiffs had not exhausted all their edy within the order before coming into t. The truth is that there is no remedy the matter since the plaintiffs were charged, and that the time for the court to interfere is efore and not after expalsion in order to proerve to plaintiffs their valuable interests and operty rights in the corporation. The argument was closed by Mr. Sater, a hree degree member of the same rite.

"The Master Mason of Minneapolis," says he Masonic Chronicle, "appears to have hugely enjoyed that 'all day's discussion of the Scottish Rite question at grand lodge this year,' which, it says, 'resulted in some speaking that, apart from the merits of the matter discussed, would have won applause on the floor of any body, Masonic or other-"According to our reading of that self-same

The report of the supreme recorder for the month of February, just issued, shows the membership of the order in Nebraska on March 1 to have been 6.644. The total membership in the supreme lodge jurisdiction on that date was 233,066. New York is the banner state in point of members, having a membership of 31,352. Missouri is next, having 21,913, while Illinois is close behind with 20,912. The jurisdiction of Ontario has a nembership of 19,345, while California is fifth n line with a membership of 18,069. Massa-chusetts is next with 17,022. Michigan has 5,775, Pennsylvania 15,607, and Kansas has 4,345. LABOR NOTES.

Shorter Hours for "The Finest." Omaha police force will soon be materially in creased. This will prove a great satisfaction to the officers. As the force now stands the men are compelled to work twelve hours zw day. Chief Scavey promises that in case the additional twenty-five are put on the number of hours will be reduced to eight or nine.

The jour carpenters of Omaha mean business on the eight-hour proposition. Each meeting is largely attended and much enthusiasm is manifested. In speaking of the situation as it now stands, a member of the car penters' union had the following to say:

penters' union had the following to say:

We are going to organize at present. When we get fairly organized we expect to appoint a committee to walt on the contractors and come to some agreement if possible. There are so many irresponsible contractors here who take work far below what it can be done for, the consequence is they cannot pay their men living wages; and responsible parties can not touch it for these prices.

We want to encourage better work namship, establish an apprentice system, and close the door to every laborer that comes along to drive nails, or lowa farmers to come and work through summer, take the bread of the residents' mouth and take the money out of the city in the whiter.

There is one point to be gained. That is that no man can work by our side who does not do anything for the cause. We will either have this city strictly union or break it up. If men cannot see what is for their own good, they do not deserve any letter. There are so many poor workmen in the city, and under the present order of things the most of the good men are leaving. We want to call a nait to that, and encourage good men to come.

The plasterers and hod carriers have been holding regular meetings for a few weeks in separate halls. The principal sublect discussed was the eight hour system. Of course, it will be impossible for the hod-carriers to take any final action unless the bricklayers assist them. The latter, however, are very silent on the subject and have little to say. It is rumored that they will endorse the eight hour system as soon as the season is fairly opened.

The painters are unusually busy at this season of the year, not more so, perhaps, than the paper hangers. The faithful housewife can be seen at all hours inspecting the many new styles which the enterprising dealers are showing. It can be said of the wall paper manufactories that they have kept pace with the times, and the lines of goods this year far surpass that of any previous effort.
