THE MONTANA ELECTION CASE AGAIN

Vance Creates Amusement by Reading a Rhyming Telegram Rejoicing Over the Democratic Victory at Butte, Washington, April 15 .- Among the petitions presented and referred was one by Mr. Dawes from the Boston Executive Business association for the privileges of purchasing ships abroad for ten years.

Among the bills reported and placed on the calendar was one providing for the return of second class mail matter

Mr. Sherman offered a resolution, which was agreed to, directing the secretary of the interior to communicate to the senate the report of Jesse Spaulding, government director of the Pacific railways, as to the general management of such railways.

Mr. Wilson of Iowa offered a resolution, which was agreed to, calling on the secretary of the treasury for information as to whether, since the adoption of the treasury resolution of September 28 in reference to the transit of Chinese through the country and their departure therefrom, any Chinese entered for transit under such regulation failed to depart from the United States in due course.

Mr. Butler effered a resolution, which was referred to the committee on contingent expenses, modifying one hitherto agreed to, so as to authorize a select committee of the five civilized Indian tribes to investigate the status of the negotiations in regard to the Cherokee outlet, with power to send for persons and papers and to visit the Indian terriconnection with the resolution he sent to the clerk's desk and had read a letter from Chief Mayes urging that this course be adopted, while Mr. Jones of Arkansas intimated that the object of Chief Mayes was procrastination. Mr. Hawley gave notice that he would call up the Chicago world's fair bill next Friday. The Montana election case was then taken up and Mr. Morgan addressed the senate. He referred to the recent democratic successes in Helena and Butte as a response to the attempted fraud in seating the republican claimants. If those elections, he said, had gone the other way, there would have been to trouble in referring the case back to the people. Now he supposed that was impossible. He declared that if Montana were now coming asking for admission as a state "with all that filth clinging to her skirts" she would be kicked from the threshold, and he insisted that no man had a right to claim a seat as senator from Montana unless on a certificate from the governor of that state. The cer-fif-cates had to be signed by the governor and countersigned by the secretary of state. The republican claimants had not such certifi The democrats had certificates signed by the governor, but unfortunately not cour tersigned by the secretary of state. It woul not be very long, he said, until the little cloud in Montana which seemed no bigger than a man's hand would sweep like a cyclone and tear the republican party all to fragments.

REPRESENTATIVES PROTEST. Sixteen Republicans Kick on the Sugar and Wool Schedules. Washington, April 15.-A protest signed by sixteen republican representatives has been presented to the committee on ways and means against the sugar and wool schedule as published. These representatives urge upon the committee that a reduction of 25 per cent on sugar and an increase of the duty on low grades of carpet wool from 2½ to 3 3-10 cents a pound is as great a change as should be made. The manufacturers of ingrain carpets say the change of duty proposed in the schedule will increase the price of their product from 50 to 99 cents a yard, and will practically wipe out their business, silencing 40,000 boms and enforcing idleness upon 30,000 workmen. The signers of the protest, it is understood, are from all sections of the country, and while there is nothing to that effect contained in the document, an understanding exists among the protesters its present shape they will not vote for the bill in committee of the whole house. Another republican member, Coleman of Louisiana, says that unless further advised by his constituents he will not vote for any reduction on sugar.

The republican members of the ways and means committee were in session this after-neon considering the sugar and wool schedules. The bounty proposition as applied to sugar was presented definitely by the sugar manufacturers. They will accept a bounty in place of the present duty if they can be assured it will be continued for fifteen years. Amendments to the Chinese Bill. Washington, April 15.—Senator Evarts today presented amendments which he proposes to offer to the Chinese enumeration bill. He proposes to make the certificates sufficient evidence of a lawful right to remain in the United States instead of the "sole" evidence and to except all children of Chinese parents born in the United States from the provisions of the bill. Another amendment strikes out the third section, which provides for the rest and deportation or imprisonment for five years, of Chinamen found after September 1, 1820, without the proper certificate. If this section is not stricken out Evarts will move to make the term of imprisonment six months Section 7 requires that Chinamen leaving th United States shall surrender their certificates for cancellation. To this Everts will propose the addition that any Chinese person other than a laborer who has or may here-after lawfully enter the United States and who has departed or who hereafter departs, shall be entitled to return upon evidence sat-isfactory to the collector of customs that he or she had been heretofore in the United States and is not a Chinese laborer, and the collector of customs shall issue a certificate to such person on re-entry which shall have the

THE EVANGELICAL SOUABBLE. A Case in Court Decided Against Bishop Esher's Son.

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—The case of Esher versus the Evangelical publishing company vas called for trial vesterday in the United States circuit court here. This case is but a part of the general fight now going on between the majority or foreign party of the church, headed by Bishops Esher and Bowman, and the minority or American party, headed by Bishop Dubs. The plaintiff, who is a son of Bishop Esher, and son-in-law of Bishop Bowman, brought this action of libel last fall by reason of several articlewhich appeared in the Evangelical, the organ of the minority, in reply to certain articles which he had published, commenting on the former trial of Rev. H. B. Hartzler, editor of the Evangelical. Yesterday the plaintiff did not appear and the court entered a non-suit. This put the cost of the case on the plaintiff and the defendant had a great number of witnesses, who came from Chicago. ber of witnesses who came from Chicago, Cleveland and other distant points. These will amount to several hundred dollars. It is said Esher will enter a new trial.

SIOUX CITY WINS AGAIN.

Omaha a Three Time Loser to the Iowa Corn Huskers.

POOR PLAYING BY THE HOME TEAM.

Cleveland, Walsh and Kearns Decidedly Amateurish-Off for Denver-Other Games-Turf and Diamond Notes.

Sioux City wholloped Omaha for the third successive time yesterday afternoon, and the band played Annie Laurie.

The score does not come within a mile of conveying the rotten playing of the local team, but a glance at it would leave the impression that it was a model struggle.

Three to two is not a bad defeat under any circumstances, but it is frightful enough when you take in consideration that the Omahas had men on bases in every inning but one, and that not a single tally was earned by the visitors.

Cleveland, Walsh and Kearns were decidedy amateurish. That tells the whole story. Fanning and Erquarhart, the battery, put ip a beautiful game-a game that will win nine times out of ten, despite the preponderance of hits on the wrong side of the score sheet. Erquarhart's catching was as fine as was ever seen on the home grounds. Nothing got by him and his throwing to second was as for his full meed of praise. He pitched a heady game and fielded his position like a Clarkson. Wally Andrews was perfection at first, and mashed the ball hard to boot.

None of the balance of the team did any thing worthy of mention, unless it was Can avan. He attended to his territory cleanly, in addition to lining out one for a couple of The Sioux Citys all played well. They are a great team—industrious, hardworking, gentlemanly fellows, every one of them. They simply dallied with the Omahas. Here is how the runs were made: In the fourth Reddy Hanrahan—whose hair has turned as white as the beautiful snow, by the way, since last season—led off with a bewhiskered three-bagger to far center. Then Genins drove a slow one down to Cleveland, who shot the ball into Erquarhart, nearly catching Hanrahan, who was presumptive enough to try to score on the fungo. Of course Genins reached first all right. He stole second and ran across the plate on an unpardonable error by Cleveland. Crossley wafted, and Burdick flew out to Walsh.

In the next inning Omaha went the Corn Huskers one better.

Andrews commenced the hilarity by a safe one to center, but Walsh had to come along and force him out at second. Joe then retrieved himself in a degree by purioining this bag. Canavan was retired by Brosnan to Powell, but Billy Burdick, being seized with a benevolent streak, presented Fanning with a base on balls. Erquarhart's magnificent two-sack drive sent them across the plate. A few timid cheers rent the vernal atmos-here at this exploit. Strauss threw a wet blanket on the remainder of the proceedings by going out from Hanrahan to first. During the remainder of the game, amidst an olla podvida of fumbles and other early yegetables, the Omahas gathered in naught but an unbroken chain of goose eggs.

"We'd better tie the game, I think," said Chimpanzee Cline, as the resolute Corn Huskers came in for their tilt in the seventh.
'Just as if they could tie and win the game whenever they saw proper, the nasty man! aid a lady in the grand stand. Well, they tried it.

After Genius and Crossley had been sent Atter Genns and Cross and Atter Genns and Cross back to the bench Siebel was sent to first on four wide ones. Cline's timely hit sent him to third, and on Cleveland's second clumsy error in allowing Glenn's easy grounder to go through him, the tall pitcher ran home. In the ninth they won the game. Siebel went out from Walsh to Andrews, out Cline made another hit, only, however, to be forced out on Glenn's hit to Walsh, who tossed the ball to Kearns, and with a grimace the lopsided specimen from equatorial Africa shambled in to the bench. Glenn stole second and Kappell drove him home with a hit to left, and thus the beautiful dream faded away.

Let your dove-like eyes rest upon the following statistics, and if you can derive any comfort from them all well and good: The score:

Departure of the Team. The Omahas, in charge of Manager Leonard, leave for Denver this morning. On Thursday the championship season opens and the boys have a tough job on hand to wrest any laurels from the Rocky mountain sluggers. If they do not brace up and play with a little more vim and confidence they need expect nothing better than defeat. There is good stuff in the team, but their exhibition games upon the home grounds have been simply cowardly. Perhaps a change in the captai might bring about better results. Kearns is an industrious ball player and will undoubtedly show up in a satisfactory manner ere many more days roll round, he is certainly unfit for the responsible position of captain. He is not assertive enough, and fails to take advantage of many points in the game, where a little healthy lung exercise would accomplish wonders. But here's good luck to the whole outfit, anyway, and if they succeed in taking one game each from Denyer and Kansus City, all will be gladly overlooked and forgotten Minneapolis 11, St. Paul 5. KNOCKED THE EDITOR DOWN.

A United States Marshal Loses His Temper, but Quickly Apologizes. Buffalo, N. Y., April 15.- Special Tele gram to THE BEE.]-Charles H. Pierson and United States Marshal Robert R. Watts engaged in a slugging match last night. They met just outside the academy of music. Watts took exception to an article about him that recently appeared in the Tidings, of which Pierson is city editor. They began to abuse each other, and during the discussion Pierson told Watts that he was a liar. This infuriated the marshal and he retaliated by landing a stinging blow on the editor's eye, remarking that he would teach Pierson to print libelous articles about him. The vanquished Pierson started for the police sta-tion, declaring his intention of swearing out a warrant against Watts for assault and battery. This frightened Watts and he started on a run in the direction of the police court, catching Pierson just outside the door and apologizing for his action. Pierson's friends endeavoyed to persuade him to refuse to accept the apology, to go ahead and get out the warrant, but on condition that Mr. Watts make a statement in the local papers to the effect that he was sorry for his rash and in-jurious act the apology was accepted. Chicago, April 15.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-Charges of a serious and unusual nature against a benevolent society are being investigated in the trial begun this morning in Judge Clifford's court against the Knights of Honor. Hannah Hansen, the widow of a carpenter named Gilbert Hansen, is the plaintiff, and she is shing to recover $2,000, the amount of an insurance certificate in the order, which she glaims her husband held as a member in good standing at the time of his death. The woman is said to be penniless, and Captain Wallers, the bluff old seaman who many years ago distinguished himself in connection with the wreck of the Lady Elgin, is paying the expenses of the litiga-tion for her. The plaintiff alleges that although her husband had been for years a subscriber to the widows' and orphans' fund of the Wicker park lodge, yet when he fell sick the lodge refused to give him any sick benefits owing to changes made by the secre-tary against Hansen. The secretary after Hansen's death, made the assertion Hansen was not dead, but hiding, and that the coffin in the poster's field, if rulsed, would be found full of stones and not of bones Captain Peterson and Carl Anderson were appointed a committee to investigate. went to the potter's field the other day, raised the coffin, broke it open and found in it a corpse which they had no trouble in identifying as that of Hansen.

I declare I never saw so perfect a resemblance between two men before in my life. Taken altogether the whole business was as queer if not a little queerer than I ever net with before. It happened this way: When I came back to the store after having lunch last Saturday noon I found a little not on my desk saying that P. J. Neal of San Francisco would call on me in an hour or so. After about that length of time had elapsed and while I was busy at my desk in came the counterpart presentment of our ex-Judge Berka. He tossed his overcoat across the railing around my desk and reaching out his hand remarked

"How de-do, Mr. Morse, I am Mr. Neal of Neal Brothers, San Francisco. My brother told me I could make money by buying a bill of silks of you. I'm en route home from New of silks of you. I'm en route home from N York, where I've bought a lot of tinware." "'I don't remember having heard of your name or your brother's before,' said I, 'but all the same, I can sell you goods mighty cheap. Then he remarked:

cheap. Then he remarked: check before I do anything else. "Now, the fellow looked so exceptionally nonest -looked me straight in the eye all the time that I remarked:
"Why, I'll cash the draft for you myself-that's all right, pleased to do so.'

"'I'm afraid it's too big for you,' he re-marked; 'it's for $7,000.' "'Well,' said 1, $7,000 is a pretty big one to be carrying around wanting cashed, isn't it!' and I laughed, but added, 'I'll step over to the bank with you."

"Going over to the Omaha National, I in troduced him to Mr. Wallace with 'Here, Mr. Wallace, is a gentleman who wants you to cash a good sized draft for him.' You shifted it all onto Wallace. The draft was from the Pacific bank of San Francisco on the National Bank of Commerce, New York city, and was endorsed on the back 'Pay to P. J. Neal.' Over the endorsement was 'Pay o bearer written in a different hand from he endorsement. After looking it over, Wal-ace remarked: "'I don't think any bank would make so big "I don't think any bank would make so big a draft payable to bearer, but the signatures of both the San Francisco and New York banks I pronounce genuine and the draft per-fectly straight.' Then he added, 'But you gentlemen call again.' We went out, Neal saying that he would go back to his hotel, the Payton do some writing and call again is no Paxton, do some writing and call again in an

He never called. To satisfy my curiosity I went over to see Wallace, knowing that his putting us off was simply in order to get time to telegraph San Francisco. "Well, he had heard from there and they answered that they had "issued no draft for $7,000 payable to bearer." Then Wallace and shook hands—and we shook hard, too.

"I then called at the Paxton, but Mr. Neal had not been seen since the evening before, when he registered. He probably skipped the town on the first train after he left me "Mr. Wallace has two theories about the draft. One is that the fellow found it and himself added the 'pay bearer,' or that it had been given to him legitimately and that he had raised the figures, as he (Mr. Wallace) reiterated that it was certainly genuine in

The Paxton register leaf of last Friday contains this "P. J. Neal (Neal Brothers), San Francisco," written in what is probably as fine a business hand as can be found anywhere.

ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION.

A Union Pacific Watchman at Denver

Filled With Buckshot. DEXVER, Colo., April 15.—[Special Tele gram to The Bee.]-An attempt was made ast night about midnight to assassinate Henry Milier, a young man employed as watchman for the Union Pacific company along their new line of track along the Platte river, above the Larimer street viaduet. The spot where the trouble occurred is outside the city limits. Miller had been patrolling up and down his beat during the night and a few minutes before the shooting occurred a number of men visited the locality and acted in a threatening manner. At that time the young man had two friends with him and the crowd went away, after which Miller's friends also departed. They had not gone far when a man approached the watchman and

What are you doing here?" "Guarding the grade," was the answer.
"You had better get out of this,"
was the reply, and the stranger walked off.
He had not gone far when he tarned around and fixed both barrels of a shotgun he carried at Miller. The weapon was loaded with buckshot, and from the looks of the poor fellow's back every bullet must have taken effect. The friends who had left Miller only a few minutes be-fore returned and carried the wounded man to a tent near by and the patrol wagon was summoned. Later on the man was taken to the county hospital. Miller is not danger ously wounded, but it is quite likely that one of his arms will have to be amputated. The cause of the shooting is said to be due to the fact that the Union Pacific has put in a high embankment near the mouth of Dry creek, which is known as a most treacherous stream, and people living along the line of the creek declare that their lives are now in jeopardy in consequence. Sheriff Barton this morning dispatched several deputies to the scene of the shooting with instructions to sift the matter to the bottom and if possible areast the coulty the and if possible arrest the guilty man.

There are Rougon-Macquart characeristics in the genealogical tree of the German emperor which give a key to the vagaries of his conduct, says London Paul I, was the grandfather of the late Empress Augusta, and therefore a direct ancestor of William II., of whom George IV, was the great-grand-uncle, and George III, the greatgreat - grandfather. His is twice descended from majesty Frederick, prince of Wales, and four times from Josiah the Pious, of Saxe-Gotha, who was certainly "peculiar," and transmitted some of his peculiarities to the late grand duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, the great-grandmother of William I. She was a flighty and a self-willed person. There was flightiness in the Brunswick Wolfenbuttles, and a whole hive of bees operated in the Emperor Paul's bonnet. Yet Paul had a cleverness and was carefully educated by French sayants. He had feverish activity. Though traveling in his time was difficult and fatiguing, he rushed, as Comte du Nord, all over Europe with his wife in a post chase. Austria, Italy, Switzerland, France, Belgium, Holland, the minor courts of Germany and Poland were visited in less than no time by him. The Comte du Nord went so fast that those who were with him said they saw nothing until they came to Paris but the clouds of dust which his post chaise and train of carriages raised on the roads. He had a dozen ideas a day. Caprice alone governed his actions mounting the throne he exiled his mother's last favorite, Zuboff, to Siberia. Soon afterward he recalled him and loaded him with favors. slightest neglect of his orders was heavly punished. Everyone was, in passing efore the imperial palace, bound to saute it, even when Paul was not there. He hated the pot-hat, which he thought a sign of Jacobinism, and his police were instructed whenever they saw one to knock it off the wearer's head. He could be polite, amiable and even witty; but nobody could enjoy these good qualities, because he was so changeable One of the signs of respec signs of that he exacted of his subjects was that they should, whenever they met him in the street, get out of their carriages to salute him. The rule applied to men, women and children. He went about incognito at night like Haround Alraschid to see that his police were doing their duty, and was fond of having his troops called up at night in the midst of winter to review them. He could be humane and generous, or, according to his freak, the reverse. The incoherence of his orders and actions was such that nobody

he was likely to do the next moment,
