THE TRIPLE LINE COMBINATION.

The Visiting Railway Magnates Make an Extensive and Minnte Examination of the Bailroad Yards of the City.

A party of Lehigh Valley railroad officials from Philadelphia arrived in Omaha yesterday morning and remained until 3 o'clock looking about the city. Among other places visited by them was the BEE building, which they inspected from basement to roof, and which impressed them as being the largest, most substantial and finest newspaper office on the American continent.

American continent.

The party was composed of Charles Hartshorn, vice president; Robert H. Sayre, second vice president of the road in question; W. C. Alderson, treasurer; Effingham B. Morris, president of the Girard trust company, Philadelphia; Eugene Delano of the Brum Brothers banking company, and W. A. Lathrop, general superintendent of the Lehigh valley coal company.

and greater results for the future."

Mr. Hartshorn declined to discuss the present railroad situation, though deplored the unsettled condition of rate matters. His company is interested in the Omaha, Winoma & Northwestern project, but he refrained from giving an expression regarding the progress made in that enterprise.

Mr. Sayre, however, said the Lehigh had concluded to build a direct line to Buffalo. It now uses the Eric tracks from Elmira to Bufnow uses the Eric tracks from Elmira to Buffalo. The new line will be built from Geneva, N. Y., which is reached by the Geneva, Ithaca & Sayre, a branch of the Lehigh. The proposed route will nearly parallel the New York Central and West Shore roads. The Lehigh has already terminal facilities and large docks at Buffalo for handling its immense coal trade. While he would not admit it, this might be taken as an evidence of the fact that Mr. Sayre's corporation proposes to push its scheme and get the line opened through to Omaha as quickly as possible. It is proposed to establish, in connection with the two systems of rail communication, a line of lake steamers to ply between Buffalo and Green Bay, Wis. The party denied having any intention of investigating the subject of terminal facilities here. Nevertheless, they availed themselves of the six hours' sojourn to familiarize them-selves with the situation.

The news from Chicago that another cut has been made in freight rates, reducing the lumber and packing house product tariffs to 10 cents was not very pleasing to officials here. Mr. Cable said that if the demoraliza-tion was continued, bankruptey and receivers When asked about the Alton's motion for Baker's Denial.

Since Howard Baldrige was appointed assistant United States district attorney there have been heard constant mutterings from friends that Dave Mercer was treated very contemptibly in the deal. It is now alleged that Baker assured Mercer that he was his choice and that he would secure the position; that Baker even went so far as to ask Mer-cer where he would have his office. Certain intimate friends of Mercer were told the secret and when the news of Baldrige's appointment came were considerably astounded.

Mr. Baker was seen regarding the matter, and said that he had made no promises. He simply spoke favorably to Mercer concerning the matter and told him that his name would be one of the very few that would be sent to the delegation as desirable assistants. Baker enclosed the names of Mercer and Baldrige to the delegation, and the latter was selected by

NEBRASKA BUSINESS MEN.

Preparations for Their Convention and Reception in May. A meeting was held at the Young Men's Christian association rooms Wednesday afternoon at which arrangements were made for the coming convention of the State Business Men's association, which is to be held in Omaha May 20, 21 and 23, The wholesale firms of the city were largely epresented at the meeting and with the ocal branch of the association began the preiminary work.

Secretary Hodgin reported that the board of trade had donated the use of its exchange room for the meeting, and that President Martin of the board would probably deliver the welcoming address to the delegates at the opening of the convention. The wholesale merchants of the city, one representative from each firm, will constitute the committees on reception and entertain ment, aided by the local branch of the state association.

The Merchants hotel has been designated as headquarters for the delegates and all delegates and business men who attend the con-ention will be given special rates at nearly The railroads have agreed to make a re duced rate for business men attending the convention. Each delegate who pays full fare to the convention, will, upon the presen-tation of a receipt from the railroad agent, be entitled to a return ticket at one-third rates. All of the local branches of the association throughout the state have arranged to send delegates to the convention.

Western Towns.

There is a vast difference between slow plodding eastern towns and cities and the pushing, bustling and enterprising towns of the west. One of the most promising young cities in the west is Pierre, the capital of South Dakota. Within the last six months there has been expended for buildings and improvements over $400,000, and there is over $250,000 worth of business blocks contracted

WHERE IS WILLIAM?

Constable Stein Anxious to Attach Mr. Meldrum's Property.

William Meldrum, the merchant tailor, who for several years has been located at 1413 Farnam street, has disappeared, and several creditors are quite anxious concerning his whereabouts.

He has not been seen either about his place of business or in Omaha, so far as can be scertained, since last Friday. On Monday last Peter Vincelli, foreman of Meldrum's shop, whose wages had run behind to the amount of $72.60, swore out papers and secured Constable Stein to levy an attachment on the stock. An appraisement was made of the goods on hand, which amounted to $113.75. Thereafter a case was filed and trial set for 10 o'clock next Monday. Since then Stein has been hunting Meldrum, but withart success. It is said that several other small claims are held against him, one of $50 and another of $40, as wages to a couple of journeymen Sidewalk Inspector Bermingham says that from April 1 to April 15 sixty crosswalks were hald at a cost of $528. During the same time 1,250 lineal feet of new walks were laid, and also 3,800 feet, board measure, were used in repairs. At present the inspector and his assistant are at work on the cross walks in the northern part of the city.

The former has been instructed by Chair-man Balcombe of the board of public works not to lay any crosswalks where the sidewalks are not continuous.

EXETER'S EXPERIENCE.

Another View of the Effect of Local Prohibition.

EXETER, Neb., April 14.-To the Editor of THE BEE: In THE BEE of April 7 appeared a special dated Exeter, Neb., April 6, which grossly misrepresents the facts n reference to the saloon or its absence upon the town. Were the article in question one in which our town alone was interested we vould not ask space to deny it, since its misrepresentations are so bold as to refute themselves where the facts are known. But for the sake of others who wish to know the

It would take too much spare to show the falsity of the statements in detail, but we shall give below a few samples of the misrepresentations of "The Ber special." Here is a specimen: "During the years 1886 and 1887 thirty-seven families left town, etc."

Suppose they did. As these and a number. Suppose they did. Are there not a number families in all the towns and villages of the west who frequently remove from one locality another, especially going west?

The plain inference of the article is that these all left because in the years named there was no saloon. This is not true. Most of them left for other reasons, and those who of them left for other reasons, and those who left because the saloon was voted out were no help to the town, and no one longs for their return. Furthermore, other families have come in to take the place of those who have gone, and the town has suffered nothing by the exchange. Nor did our population decrease during the period.

The special speaks of new towns springing up to compete with Exeter and divide our trade, but it forgets to state that it was during the "no license" period that these towns were started, and that upon this period the competition fell the heaviest, while new buildings, of necessity, must be built in those towns, and consequently, work was given to these who wanted it, and that when the boom of these towns was past the equilibrium was of these towns was past the equilibrium was restored, and all this before the return of the license policy of Exeter.

The special does not state that in the years 1886-7 (no license), we had short crops for lack of rain, and in the years 1888-9 (license), we had very large crops and farms were in demand at an increased rental value. These facts an honest writer would not have omitted. But as the special was to be nameless he could afford to suppress the truth and state falsehoods with equal facility. In proof of this take following from the special: "Our business men and all dependent on country trade stand almost solid for high license, etc." Now the facts are that many of our busines Now the facts are that many of our obsidess's men and those dependent on country trade voted at the recent election for the no license board, many of them openly working for the ticket while no business man openly worked for the saloon ticket on election day. The saloonkeepers themselves had to defend their own cause at the polls and no respectable business man came openly to their relief.

We have taken some trouble to investigate the effect of the recent election on real estate, and we cannot find that property has declined since the saloons were noted out, with the ex-ception of one saloon, whose owner has been in rather hard luck and finds it necessary to put his property prematurely upon

The statements of The Bee special upon this point are unqualifiedly false with the single exception above given, so far as we can learn.

Many of our business men and those de pendent upon the country trade declare that the statemets of the special about the falling off of trade and business are equally false off of trade and business are equally false.

Some of the business men declare that there is a balance in favor of the "no license" period, especially in the absence of bad accounts. The special rattles the old chestnut about "more drunkenness." This also we deny and can furnish plenty of proof of the truth of our statements.

But why pursue this tissue of misrepresentations further! We would be perfectly willing to submit the matter to an investigation of the accounts of liquors tion of the accounts of liquors received during the two periods. But an exhibit of the facts thus revealed would be what such prevarieators as the 'Special' would be glad to avoid, and to an unprejudiced mind would furnish a powerful argument in favor of "no license."

We are assured that the writer of the we are assured that the writer of the special is a strictly temperate man. Here we must agree with him for from the few grains of truth contained in the article, we are sure that he does not use it to excess.
