To the rink one fine morning and skaight.

With an ardor which naught could abaight,

He went off at a terrible raight, But the floor gave a hump. And he tumbled ker-thum

And fractured the back of his paight.

His widow (her first name was Kaight), She wept for him early and laight, 'Till she melted away One morning in May

In tears o'er his terrible faight.

Did you ever hear of Sam Shearer of Havana f says the Merchant Traveler. If not you have missed meeting one of the jolliest souls ever sent to break the monotony in this world of sin and sorrow. He is absolutely without guile, if Jim Stacy is to be believed. -and Stacy is a judge of such matters-and as for sorrow, it has passed over his head so lightly that though he is seventy, he don't lightly that though he is seventy, he don't look to be over fifty-five. Paul Hull met Shearer, and when he wrote up Havana he said that the old man knew more about the game of scinch than anyone clse in fillhols. This is a mistake, an error, an egregious blunder, as it were. His game don't run even. He has been known to make fifteen on the ace and deuce by counting low twice, but of late he basn't done it. According to the boys who came in Saturday he has been playing a rocky game—one that's so dead tough that he is about to out scinch forever mad go back to

Is about to quit seinch forever and go back to his first love—freeze-out. One night, years and years ago, it is said that Crazy Burroughs, Charlie Hudson and Shearer were playing freeze-out, with a gen-

Shearer were playing freeze-out with a gentleman who slung grips for a Chicago house. It was the Chicago man's deal and Burroughs' "aige." When the requisite pasteboards were handed around Mr. Shearer cleared his throat and remarked:

"Gentlemen, if this was straight poker I've got a hand you could hear holler."

"I want to state that mine couldn't be kept quiet while yours was doing such veiling," placidly remarked Burroughs, as he took a small chew.

"I pass," nurmured the man from Chicago.
"Well, say," put in Hudson, "I think you fellows are chumps for wanting it, but if you want poker on this hand. I'm in and give you fair warning to stand from under. it straight, old-fashloned poker?

Yes," answered the other two.

"Yes," answered module Tay.
"No straights go!" asked Cray.
"No!" very positively from the others.
"And no limit!" and Hudson.

'No limit," was the answer, and the fun "Gentlemen," said the man from Chicago, "gall your cards, and when I've dealt, as I

"gall your eards, and when I've dealt, as I am not in the pot, you'll please excuse me; I've got some writing to do."

"Certainly. "One card," was the response, and the gentleman from Chicago withdrew.

Then they began to bet. The pot kept growing bigger and bigger. Shearer put in a hotel, two corner lots, Taylor's saloon, the J. S. E. depot and Coleman's 'bus line. Burroughs saw him with an Iowa farm, half of the city of Marshalltown and a life insurance policy for $30,000. Hudson put up nearly all policy for $50,000. Hudson put up nearly all the west bluff, a half interest in a street rail-way and several shares in a mineral stock company.

Burroughs called first, Hudson next and a show.down followed.

Each had four aces.

They cussed moderately as become men of their cloth, hunted in vain for the man from Chicago, and then went out to get a taste of Waukesha water. They discovered afterwards that the man from Chicago lacked but the control of wards that the man from Chicago lacked but two buttons of being frozen out. He had rung in a doctored deck to keep up the interest and had jumped the game while they were plugging in invincible hands. Since then none of them have played poker or freeze-out. It would in-deed be a pity if bad luck in scinch would compel them to go back to their first love.

Rogers-Culbertson. Mr. George Rogers of Peregoy & Moore, Council Bluffs, and Miss Leafie E. Culbertson of Peru, Neb., were married last Tuesday merning at the residence of the bride's parents on Normal hill. Miss Emma McNemire of Denver, Colo., attended the bride, and J. M. Murdock acted as greensman. Many beautiful presents attested the wide circle of friends possessed by both parties. After a wedding breakfast Mr. and Mrs. Rogers left for a tour through the west.

A Card From President Lobeck. To Omaha Traveling Men-Gentlemen

There will be held at the Casey hotel parlars, Saturday, April 26, at 8 o'clock p. m., a general meeting of the members of the Omaha Traveling Men's club, at which meeting every traveling man, whether he is a member or not, is earnestly requested to be present.

The directors and officers of the club feel that this meeting should be well attended, and also say that it is for the traveling men of Omaha to decide whether the directors of Omana to decide whether the directors shall reat, furnish and equip club rooms or not. So far, owing to the slowness of the traveling men who signed the membership roll to pay their dues the directors have, as prudent men, not seen their way clear to furnish rooms as they would like to, and consequently have done nothing towards purchasing lixtures and renting rooms.

queutly have done nothing towards purchasing fixtures and renting rooms.

Of the 155 signers, who signified their intentions of being members of the club, ninety-four were traveling men and sixty-three were wholesale houses. Thirty-nine traveling own have paid their does and forty-one wholesale firms have paid their's. Six traveling men have withdrawn their names as members. Total receipts of dues to date are $600. Since the organization of the club we have scarce the organization of the club we have secured eight new members.

It is estimated that it will cost $1,500 per year to run the club successfully, and unless by next Saturday $1,000 is collected the directors of the control of tors do not feel justified in reuting and furnishing rooms.

It would seem that the gentlemen who were It would seem that the gentlemen who were so eathusiastic and called so loudly for an Omaha Traveling Men's club should be more prompt in paying their dues. The officers believe that if every and each traveling man who is interested in having a club at Omaha will try and be present next Saturday evening and do their duty, a successful club will be the result. But if no more can be done than has been done up to date, in a financial way, the best thing for the Omaha Traveling Men's club is to quit business and the officers to refund the money collected, the expense to date being light.

Gentlemen, in conclusion, I wish to state

Women Doctors.

Women Doctors.

The Women's Medical college of this city graduated forty physicians last week, says a Philadelphia paper. Forty years ago there was no opportunity for a woman to graduate as a physician in any institution in the country; and even twenty years ago a woman physician was next to a freak in her community and contemptuously frowned upon by the profession. Now, forty women are graduated from one institution in a day, and there is a general popular welcome of the softer sex to the practice of medicine. There is not only no reason why women There is not only no reason why women hould not be physicians, but there are many and pressing reasons why they should prac-tice medicine. While there are a few things in the practice that they might not be as well in the practice that they might not be as well adapted to as men, they are quite as well adapted to even the exceptional duties referred to as male physicians are to many delicate duties they now perform for women without complaint. In a large majority of the ailments to which humanity is subject women physicians, with equal intelligence and skill, are certainly the equal of men in professional pastulness, and there are may professional usefulness, and there are many complaints of their own sex which should especially command the services of women physicians. - The world has advanced with wonderful The world has advanced with wonderful rapidity during the last half century in the recognition of the rights and capabilities of women. It is only forty-two years since married women in Pennsylvania had no right over even their own property acquired by either inheritance or their own labor, and they were then practically unknown as clers and saleswomen; were little known as teachers, and the professions were regarded as entirely beyond their reach. Now the world has learned that woman is entitled to just an even chance in every calling to which she is at all adapted, and in medicine, law and science she is now teacher and praclaw and science she is now teacher and prac-titioner. The old prejudice against unsexing women by giving them my opportunity out-side of the kitchen, the laundry and the nur-sery, was the creation of unmixed ignorance, and today the only just complaint that women can make is against the yet prevalent custom of paying women less than men are paid for precisely the same service. Women are quite as refined now as they were when unknown in the great battles of life, and the whole ten-dency of the age is toward the only manly theory of giving women fair play all round.
