REFORM IN THE COURTS. The Omaha Bar Making an Effort to Have it Continued.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Omaha bar association yesterday morning in the large district court room. Mr. A. J. Poppleton presided and spoke as Exercising the power conferred upon me by article 5 of the by-laws of this association I have thought it advisable to call a meeting at I think all members of the association will agree with me in the opinion that the term of court now drawing to a close has been the most satisfactory in the dispatch of business of any held for several years past. This result has been reached by the action of the judges, to some extent, upon the suggestions of this association. It is reasonable to believe that further consideration and investigation, by committees of this association, may lead to the suggestion of still further changes whose effect will be to facilitate and dispatch the business of the administration of clation is to pass suitable resolutions of thanks to the judges of the courts for the changes made and for their co-operation and action upon the suggestions of this association as well as their own independent efforts improve and facilitate the administration

There are several subjects which, in my judgment, need attention, and it is well to organize committees early so as to give ample ime for consideration and action.

I think that either the standing committees, or special committees to be raised by the association, should be charged with the consideration of the following subjects with reference to changes in the court rules and changes in legislation to be urged at the next ession of the legislature:

1. The practice ought to be so revised, if possible, as to allow defaults upon judgments and unliquidated claims to be taken before the clerk in vacation, with power in the clerk to assess damages. As the statutes now stand this cannot be accomplished. If changes can be effected which will sanction this practice it will take from the trial docket a considerable percentage of the cases.

2. The bar has become so large and the

2. The bar has become so large and the cases so numerous and the work of the clerk so pressing and varied that it is exceedingly difficult to keep ones self advised of filings in the clerk's office relating to cases pending. As the practice now stands no notice is required of the filing of papers, and the only means whereby an attorney can inform himself is by application to the clerk or an examination of the annearance docket. And insentation of the annearance docket. ination of the appearance docket. And inas-much as the clerk's force is not sufficient to keep the appearance docket written up to date, it results in great confusion and uncer-tainty, and no lawyer is able to inform himself exactly how his case stands in this particular. A simple rule requiring attorneys when filing papers in the court to serve a copy upon the attorney of record of his antag-onist would clear up all this confusion, and relieve the clerk and his office of an immense relieve the clerk and his office of an immense amount of personal interview and personal solicitation which, even when practicable, is very unsatisfactory and must occupy the time of the clerk's office to an unjustifiable extent. Where papers are filed before an attorney for the opposite party is retained, provision should be made that upon being retained and notifying the counsel of the opposite party of his retainer that copies of all papers filed up to date should be served upon him within a time to be fixed by rule. to be fixed by rule.

3. It is of the first importance, as I think, that the law in respect to the selection and the empaneling of juries should be so recast, as to secure a greater variety and, if possible, higher character of juries.

4. Some species of inferior court should be created to take from the dockets of the district court appeals in minor criminal cases and perhaps civil cases. This subject was before the association soon after its organization, and while there seemed to be a general sentiment in favor of the creation of such a court, and the the opinion seemed to prevail that there was no constitutional obstacle to the creation of such a court, the association was not able to agree upon a bili for that pur-

In my judgment, this association should pass a resolution urging in unequivocal lan-guage better pay to the judges and an in-crease of the number thereof. It ought also crease of the number thereof. It ought also to throw its influence in every way possible in favor of the adoption of the amendment which will be submitted in 1891, giving to the suprome court an additional, number of judges. I have myself the fixed opinion that the only fault with that amendment is that it does not add a sufficient number of judges to the present court, nor does it provide for an adequate salary.

The supreme court of this state, since its organization, has accomplished an astonishing amount of work, but it is no secret in the profession that its power to keep pace with the business has at last, from sheer necessity, failed. failed. The court is now about 300 cases, as I am advised, behind in its work. This means that every case taken to the supreme court at the present time must wait at least a year after it is docketed before a decision can be reasonably expected, and that this delay is constantly increasing. Oral arguments in that court have been shortened to thirty minutes on each side. In the main I think this a desirable change, but it is not to be denied that many cases reach that court in which it is altogether inadequate.

The remedy, and the only remedy, is to give to the court juges enough to keep pace with the increase of business.

To my mind, the great scandal of the administration of justice in the United States supreme court and in most of the state courts is that the number of judges provided is totally inadequate to keep pace with the business upon the dockets. It amounts to a denial of justice and is utterly indefensible.

Every lawyer at least, believes that the construction of the laws and the administration of justice is the most important function.

tion of justice is the most important function of the government, and yet the judicial de-partment in the federal government and in nost of the states is treated as if it was of minor consequence.

The influence of this association ought to be thrown positively and decisively against such thrown positively and decisively against such an assumption.

These are only some of the subjects which I think ought to be brought before the association. I leave it to the body itself to originate such other measures and consider such other subjects as it may think advisable.

Mr. Poppleton's remarks were vigorously applanded. He then read the following list of standing committees for the ensuing year:

Judiciary—James W. Savago, J. B. Hawley, W. R. Kelly, I. S. Condon, W. D. McHugh.

Hugh.
Legislation—J. M. Woolworth, William S.
Curtis, J. H. McIntosh, F. A. Brogan, H. C.

Inquiry—Isaac Adams, Warren Switzler, A. C. Wakeley.
Mr. Charles Ogden then offered the following resolution, which was ordered referred to the committee on judiciary. Resolved. That in the system of placing on trial list cases that are not at issue or likely to be at issue, before the close of the term, en-cumbers the docket and that a rule is hereby recommended to the judges to prevent this syll.

recommended to the judges to prevent this evil.

Resolved. It is the sense of this association that there be recommended to the judges a rule whereby only cases at issue, not exceeding three in number for each day, shall be placed on the calendar for trial, said list of cases to be placed thereon by the clerk in their order from the list of cases noted for trial; that, whenever any case is reached for trial on the dated fixed therefor and the parties are not ready, the same shall be marked dismissed, unless good cause is shown, or the cause is continued by consent; provided, that by consent of the parties and the trial judge, said cause can be placed at the foot of the assignment of the day for which it is fixed for trial. Resolved, That the present dismissal docket be dispensed with and that a dismissal docket shall be furnished wherever cases which were fixed for trial and not tried by reason of the default of the parties shall be placed thereon and the seme shall work a final dismissal at the regular call at the end of the term, unless good cause be shown.

Resolved. That a committee of five be appointed by the chair to confer with the judges and accomplish the changes herein suggested.

Mr. C. S. Montgomery offered the following which was adonted.

Mr. C. S. Montgomery offered the follow-ing, which was adopted: Resolved, That the thanks of the members of this association are hereby tendered to the judges of the district court of the Third judicial district for their successful efforts to reform and perfect the rules of practice and for their rigid enforcement, which, in the opinion of the association has, during the present term, greatly facilitated the dispatch of business.

Resolved, That this association will support and sustain every effort of the judges to so improve the practice or reorganize the courts as to clear the docket at each term of the court. The association is in favor of increasing the number of judges to such a degree as will insure the speedy transaction of all business brought before them.

Resolved, That the judges are under paid and that their salaries ought to be increased. Mr. E. W. Simeral offered a resolution to the effect that lawyers endorse on their filings whether the case is of law or equity. The resolution was adopted.

General Hawley wanted the docket divided so that the odd numbers would go to one judge and the even to another. This would complete the understanding of the members of the hear as to just what index would have the the bar as to just what judge would handle the various kinds of cases. The suggestion was referred to the judiciary committee

It is worth your seeing, if for nothing but how to sew on buttons to button easy and never come off, and how to make buttonholes wear forever.

Women differ in their ways of thinking and dressing as well as in other ways. This waist is for women whose minds are made up that they won't wear corsets.

There's much to be said on both sides; but did you ever hear of a woman who hadn't made up her mind in some way? and is there any possible use in trying to get her to change it? She will and she will; or she won't and she won't.

You can get the Ball Waist and wear it a week or two or three; and, if you don't want it, take it back to the store and get your money. CRICAGO CORSET Co., Chicago and New York.
