SAVING MEN A LABOR OF LOVE.

Grand Opera House Last Night-An Appeal to Young Men,

at the Grand opera house last night to a large audience. On the stage were Revs. Savidge, Clendenning and Bishop Newman. Mr. Murphy gave a short preliminary address, taking Mark v for his text, and the Rev Clendenning prayed eloquently. The choir, aided by two organs and several brass instruments, sang, "Take the Name of Jesus With You." Then a tall stout man with glasses arose and asked the ushers to take up the collection, stating that this was all that Mr. Murphy would receive for his services, at which a devout brother in the audience ejaculated, "Praise God," which created a laugh, but he amended it by asking the audience to 'Give ap big."

"Give sp big." The tall gentleman with the glasses then said that although Omaha had not got the world's fair it had got Francis Murphy. This brought out another laugh, and Mr. Murphy said "Bless God." Then it was announced that Thursday evening would be devoted to a prayer meeting, and Sunday afternoon to a meeting to be devoted especially to mee of meeting to be devoted especially to men, at which time Mr. Murphy said he didn't want to talk to any women at all. Mr. Murphy made a humorous and at the same time a touching preliminary address and introduced his friend, Rev. Mr. Nourse of introduced his friend, Rev. Mr. Nourse of Kansas, who has recently come to Omaha. Mr. Nourse said that Mr. Murphy had come to his house in earlier days and had eaten his "murphies." He had heard that Mr. Murphy's coming had been con-demned, and then Mr. Murphy said "God bless them," and Mr. Nourse said he knew he would say that. Mr. Nourse said that before he became a minister he had been a drunkard, and Mr. Murphy came to him and took him by the hand and called him their bill of extras, only leaves about $2,769.25 due the contracters on the entire work. clever comedians, fine costumes, nice music, "Marvelous." The choir sang a hymn and Mr. Murphy introduced Mr. Clendenning, who came to the front and told of a man whom Murphy had saved and whose influence was now being felt throughout the country. The choir sang again and Mr. Murphy in his characteristic way introduced a manly young fellow by the name of Wilson, who simply said: "I have heard the remark about the ministers, but I want to say that we are all in the same work." Then Mr. Murphy remarked that it was a labor of love to save men. If there was only dancing, colored lights and grand spectacula effects are the features that made "Bluebeard, Jr." one of the biggest stage shows ever seen in this country. An audience that packed auditorium, balcony and gallery witnessed its first Omaha production at Boyd's last night. There is so much to the actraction that one can hardly tell it all in a limited amount of space. Like every other burlesque extravaganza, the story, plot and dramatic

Then Mr. Murphy remarked that it was a labor of love to save men. If there was only one woman in the world, what would we do "for, sweethearts! "But," he said, "I love whisky. men all over the country doing the sam's thing." In reference to the prohibition question he said: "What do we want to go for the saloon men for? If we drive them out of Nebraska we inflict them upon somebody else." He spoke feelingly and lovingly of the clergymen of Omaha. He loves them all, he said: in fact, he loves every one, and he hoped his tongue would cleave to the roof of his mouth before he would speak a word against them. "Young man," he said, "be careful. Do not start in the drinking habit; no one will help you up. If a horse falls in the street a dozen men will help him to his feet, but they will trip over the fallen man. Do not learn to drink. You are spotted if you drink. Do not think that the president of the bank does not know that you drink. The posi-tion of private sceretary, the reportorial and editorial position is closed to you." Mr. Murphy then told of a young man in Pittsburg who was denied a position in a bank. The Death Roll.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 5 .- Senor Zertuche, vernor of the state of Oaxaca, died last night and police commission absent when Officer McBride of the police force waltzed on the carpet. The room was filled by about one hundred spectators, who had gathered to listen to the details of the case in which the officer was charged with insulting Mrs. C. M. Little, while in search of garbage which he supposed was located in the vicinity of the complainant's residence, at 703 North Seventeenth street.

As soon as the session was called to order the complaint was read to Officer McBride, after which he was asked, "What have you to say to this?"

"There is nothing in it," replied the officer. The first witness put upon the stand was Miss Sarah Reason, who was lying sick in an adjoining room on April 23, the day when McBride was charged with insulting Mrs. Little. The woman told her story, which was substantially the same as was published in the papers at the time. Mrs. Little, the prosecuting witness, being sick in bed, was not present. Sergeant Groves testified that on the day of Bride was supposed to be looking after gar-bage, he had given him permission to leave his beat that he might have his shoes re-

McBride was called in his own behalf and testified that he was given permission to go over to Cuming street and have his shoes repaired. He then stated that he was told that pared. He then stated that he was told that the house occupied by Mrs. Little was the home of disreputable women, and to find out he went around to the back door and as a blind he pretended to be looking after garbage, and when adding in this capac-ity he was invited into the house, but denied insulting either of the women, though he stated that Mrs. Little asked him if he did not want a kiss. stated that Mrs. Little asked him if he did not want a kiss. Upon this point McBride was questioned, and replied that he did not want any kiss, but if he did he would go home and get one. After this he stated that he said, "I an onto you," and then went out, got his shoes which had been repaired, and then went back to his beat, which was on west Farnam street. Sergeant Ormsby, who was at the house of Mrs. Little to take her statement relative to the matter, was informed by Mrs. Little that when McBride first went to the premises, after looking about her back yard, he entered the house and instead of talking about gar-bage, said, "I came after a kiss." To this Sergeant Ormsby stated that the woman became angry, and that McBride replied, "Oh am onto you.

The attorney for McBride attempted to make the sergeant state that he gave the story away to the reportera, but in this he was unsuccessful and was unable to make his point. Miss Reason was re-called and McBride's attorney asked: "Are you married?" "No," replied the witness, "but McBride tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married and tried to make me say that I was married the tried to be tried to make me say that I was married to be tried to make me say that I was married to be tried to make me say that I was married to be tried to be the tried to be tried that Ed Seavey, a consin of the chief of po-lice, was my husband." McBride again went upon the stand and once more detailed his trip to the house, adding that when he at to the house in the ning Miss Reason was on the bed and that went Mrs. Little was in another room with a young Ed Seavey testified that he had roomed at

Mrs. Little's, but never saw anything out of the way with either of the women, Mrs. Little or Miss Reason. Harry Warner was called and stated that Ed Seavey had roomed at his place at Twen-tieth and Cuming streets, and while there a woman was with him whom he passed off as his wife Was Miss Reason that woman !! ....

"Was Miss Reason that woman?"." "No sir, she was not." "The case against Dempsey of the Omaha house, charging him with selling liquor on Sunday, was continued one week. Superintendent Coulter of the police and fire alarm was called to explain why the alarm misled the department the day of the Wallace fire. He explained that it was the first time in two years that any box had failed to work, and that the diffi-culty in this case was caused by dust work-ing into the box to such an extent that it filled up the groove so that the ratchet would

Mr. Wehrer brought up the Paul street question again. He introduced a resolution instructing the archi-tect of the Paul school to change the plans so as to make the building one with three stories instead of two.

Mr. Poppleton took the same stand he has taken right along on this question, namely, that this was not the proper way to com-mence the movement toward the crection of this build. this building.

On motion of Mr. Rees the board adjourned until Saturday evening, when the Paul street building question will be taken up and thoroughly discussed.

The Floyd & Co. Failure.

One of the local grain brokers of the icty was asked last night if he had received any intimation of the reported failure of Floyd, the Chicago bucket shop man. He replied that he had been notified just after the close of yesterday's market that Floyd would close of yesterday's market that Floyd would close out all deals at the opening of today's market. "The firm of S. S. Floyd & Co." he con-tinued, "was one of the largest and most re-liable concerns in Chicago, and it is generally believed it was caught in the recent wild advance in the grain and provision markets. Later telegrams say that mat-ters will be satisfactorily adjusted today. It will be impossible to say what will be done in the matter, or what the basis of be done in the matter, or what the basis of settlement will be the

As far as can be logined none of the local grain brokers have suffored from the failure. Mr. Jacob Levin, the local manager of the MF. Jacob Levin, the local manager of the Western Union telegraph office, said he had heard of the failure, but did not know what the details were. Ho said the firm had a leased wire to Omind, and he understood the firm of Murphy & Co. of Chicago had made arrangements to take the lease off Floyd's hands, and to take all the commission busi-ness of the defunct firm ness of the defunct firm.

have been all right if he had not drank. He then implored the young men within his hearing to abstain from liquor. He spoke of his starving vife and family. He could not even make friends with the cat in the building. He was in a hospital and his good wife wrote to him, "We have not much to eat; we have not had much for some days, but have good courage," "I was discouraged to death," he said. "The superintendent came in and and guards were as pretty and shapely a lot of girls as has ever been seen in an extravaganza. The ballet, in which Mile. Morondo and said, 'Frank, don't be discouraged.' I said to him, 'Look at this letter.' His great strong face softened and he went awey after saying, 'You will go home today.' " He told in touching language of his home coming; of his loving wife who awaited him. Side by side they knelt together and he promised her that with God's help he would never touch liquor again. Then he appealed to the young men again and asked them for God's they received an immense round of applaus Other notable features that call for special mention were the wedding pageant, the light of Asia dances, the little Lords Fauntleroy and final transformation scene. This revealed ake to avoid the use of liquor.

Mr. Murphy gave a stirring description of a battle and the coming of Sheridan to the rescue. "It's a grand thing to be a man," he Mr. Savidge read the pledge and then the ongregation sang a hymn while Mr. Murphy passed among them urging the men to con to the front and sign the pickge. The audience was simply carried away by Murphy's cloquence. A prominent young lawyer said that his description of the battle was an oratorical effort of the highest class.

About one thousand people have signed the edge so far.
