genuine in the petition for the re-location of the county seat. The attorneys for the peti-tioners then asked the board to count and consider an additional petition of some seventy persons who desired their names counted in favor of a special election. This the board refused to do by a vote of 2 to 1. The peti-tioners then offered to prove the genuineness of every signature on the petition and that each and every person was a legal elector of the county. This the board refused to allow them to do by the same vote as before-2 to 1 The petitioners then offered to prove by the gaged in this season The changing around of the men may have had something to do with the awful lambasting, still that is a lame excuse, and the correct way is to acknowledge the corn-Denver was about eight men too many for us. Possibly Captain Andrews' pets might have whipped one or even two of the visitors, with the partiality of the umpire, but it is doubtful.

However, as to the game.

It opened up with much glitter and dash on the part of Omaha, and most everybody thought we were sure of a victory. Willis took his base on balls, but was forced out at second by Canavan, and Canavan, on Kearns' out at first, made second. Then Wally Andrews gave his trousers an extra hitch, and pulling up a telephone pole by the roots walked up to the plate and hit one of Mr. McNabb's twisters way out against the right field fences for a couple of bases.

Of course Canavan came home, and "hey! ov! hey!" cried the people in cestasy. Walsh retired the side by a pop-up to also got his base on balls. That was horse an' horse on the pitchers. Then, just like Willis, he was forced out at second by Treadway, but the similarity in the innings closed right here, for Canavan took in Curtis' fly and fired the ball across the diamond in time to eatch Treadway, too. That was brilliant, and a few more bales of hey! hey! hey! was launched upon the ambi-ent atmosphere.

McNabb, who by the way pitched a splendid game throughout, quickly fanned Urqua-hart and Hines in the second, and Moran flew out to Curtis.

Dave Rowe at this juncture made his debut for Denver, and the first ball pitched he sent whizzing out into right for a single. But a sharp double pluy blasted his hopes and he was as most here. was as mad as a moist ben.

This is the way it was done

White hit to Walsh, and Joe threw to Kearns, catching David at second, and Kearns threw to Andrews and both were out. That was McGlone went out from Canavan to first. In the third Clarke started the music with a safe hit to right. He stole second in beauteous style, and on White's fumble of Willis' hit, he ran home, while Tit went to second.

Then the spectators clapped their little ands some more and laughed long and heartily.

They were so tickled. Canavan, who had left his good eve at the optician's for repairs, hit the air three suc-cessive body blows and and and were Kawara

"RANDY'S" DEBUT.

How Lord Churchill, "Caught" the House of Commons.

All remember the sensational debut of Disraeli as a parliamentary orator, how he said when jeered: "Never mind, the day will come when you will hear me.

Lord Randolph Churchill had an eas ier time. His path was metaphorically strewn with roses.

His maiden speech was delivered in the house of commons in the spring of 1874. Gladstone had attacked the Indian policy of Disraeli, who had not yet been made earl of Beaconsfield. The great liberal leader was never in better vein than on that occasion, and he slashed right and left in the most savage way. It was about the time that the oneen was being made empress of India, and this act gave the opposition an opportunity which finally ended in their rival's over throw.

No one seemed ready to answer Mr. Gladstone's attack, and there was the usual subdued murmur when a deliber ate body does not quite know what to do. All at once a boyish-looking young fellow took off his hat, arose and began to speak. He looked extremely slight and youthful, and every one supposed it would be the usual thing with a debutant-a few words disconnected, some halting and indecision and then a breakdown and an ignominious failure.

To attack Gladstone! Why, it was Apollo attacking Great Jove. So every one took a comfortable seat and got January, signed by 300 citizens, asking for relief. The commissioners paid a visit to the place on February 28, and now decide that the complaint as filed is not one that properly ready to laugh. But the time for laughter did not come. With perfect coolness the youthful speaker answered the statements of Mr. Gladstone. Then suddenly changing his style and argumdnt he began a defense of the conservative policy and its leader.

comes under their jurisdiction, and they have dismissed the case. This leaves the citizens of LeMars in practically the same position they were before they filed the complaint. He listened an instant, and an appearance of interest came into his face.

Churchill went on, and when he wound up with a brilliant peroration, the English parliament perceived that Superintendent Bales of the Alton road the conservative side had an addition found his twenty-two-year-old son, Frank, that would be valuable, and the house lying in his bed unconscious, bound and rang with delighted cheers. drove one at White, who snatched it up like a piece of pie, and by a quiet, ac-curate throw caught Willis at the plate. An drews hit a long high one to Tredway, and Tredway took it in, and the Denvers came in for another whirl at the bat.

Whitehead made a hit, but was thrown out in an attempt to steal second. Then Kearns threw Lobeck out, and Canavan attended to Mr. McNabb, Andrews making a phenomenal left-handed catch of this throw that brought down the stands. Again in the fourth Omaha got in a run, then they quit, and the other fellows did the waltzing round the lines.

Walsh and Urquahart hit safe, Walsh reaching third on the latter's drive, and stealing home, after Lobeck had thrown Ur-quahart out at second. Hines and Moran fell easy victims, and here begins our tale of in the visitors' half McClelland led off with a two-bagger, and on Tred's out at first he reached third. Chark then recovered Curtis' hard hit in time to throw him out easily, but he threw wild to Wally, and Mac scored while Curtis stopped at second. Dave Rowe then happened along, and catching oue just where he wanted it he drove it like a shot out toward Urquahart. Urquahart made for it, but he caught his feet in his glove, the ball got by him, Curtis scampered home, and David too, and the grand stand howled in derision

White was thrown out at first by Canavan, and it looked as if 'it wouldn't be anything worse than a tie after all. But appearances are deceptive. Like Curtis, McGlone hit to Clarke, and again Dad threw wild to Wally, and Mac kept on going till he reached second. A pass ball sent him to third, and Urquahart's easy fly let him home and the batter to

Lobeck ended the inquisition by striking out

The fifth was a blank for both sides, as was the sixth for Omaha, but not for Denver. Oh, no; they only collared a quintette of little pearly tallies, enough to win an ordinarily well played game.

Curtis hit safe, and on Rowe's double went to third. Kearns' fumble gave White a life, and on McGlone's single drive the two first came in and White to third. Whitehead hit to Clarke, and Clarke threw McGlone out at second. Lobock followed with a long fly to Willis and Willis missed it, and Whitehead and the batter crossed the plate. NcNabb flew out to Clarke

It was one, two, three from this on to the dreary, dismal, melancholy close, so far as Omaha was concorned, but in their half of the eighth Denver, just as a sort of a cap for the simax, made three more home runs

White went out to Kearns. McGlone hit safe and stole second. Whitehead was extinguished from Kearus to first, then Hines missed a fly from Lobeck's bat than any child should have caught, and McGione reached second. McNabb made a three-sacker and second. McNabb made a three-sacker and Lobeck scored, and on McClelland's safe rap McNabb scored. Then Tredway, with his big Indian heart bursting with compassion, struck out and the game was over, The score:
