

THE CITY.

Bank closings yesterday, $910,063.13. Dave Kaufman succeeded in securing bondsmen yesterday and was released from the county jail.

Sam Small, the evangelist, was in town Monday and registered at the Paxton. He said that he did not think the prohibition amendment would carry in Nebraska.

The joint committees from the Grand Army of the Republic past of the city and from the camps of the Sons of Veterans will meet at the Millard hotel this evening to complete arrangements for properly observing Decoration day.

Mr. Swanson, proprietor of the Clifton house, was acquitted of the charge of grand larceny. He was accused of opening a letter addressed to a boarder and appropriating $200. The evidence showed that he had authority to do so from the complaining witness.

A man, name unknown, but supposed to be Burke, is lying at the county jail. He was locked up after suffering the horrors of death tremors and has continued to grow worse. He is about sixty years old, of slender build and is light complexioned.

All the committees which have been appointed by the Ancient Order of United Workmen lodges in this city to make arrangements for the fitting observance of Decoration day in conjunction with the Grand Army of the Republic, will meet Thursday night at the Ancient Order of United Workmen hall in the Barker block to make full arrangements.

Swedish Carpenters Organizing. Of the 300 Swedish carpenters in the city, 150 met at Green's hall last night and participated in a rousing meeting. The object of which was for the purpose of organizing a union. Speeches were made by W. B. Musser of the Central labor union, J. H. Snyder of Carpenters' union No. 71, and H. J. Kibby, after which nearly all of those present signed an application to the Knights of Labor asking for admission into that organization.

For rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia, cramp and colic there is no remedy so superior to the genuine Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil.

Nebraska Jobbers. The jobbers of this city held a rousing meeting in the board of trade rooms yesterday afternoon to arrange for the entertainment of the Nebraska state business men's association on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. It was decided to give the guests a drive about the city on Thursday afternoon and a banquet Thursday evening. The committee of arrangements, consisting of Messrs. Bennett, Lutz, Heintzel, Minkler, Hunsay and Holden, was instructed to call on the jobbers and solicit funds for the entertainment.

A Pleasing Sense of health and strength renewed and ease and comfort follows the use of Syrup of Figs, as it acts in harmony with nature, effectively cleanses the system when constive or bilious. For sale in 5c and $1 bottles by all druggists.

South Ogden Stockyards. The organization of the South Ogden stockyards and land company was completed in this city yesterday. The capital stock is $1,500,000, equally divided between Omaha and Ogden. The company proposes to build packing houses, hotel and exchange buildings and extensive yards. Among the subscribers to the stock are George W. E. Dorsey, William A. Paxton, John A. McShane, James E. Boyd and S. D. Mercer. C. E. Mayo, now of Ogden, has been active in promoting the enterprise. As may be seen from the above, several of those interested in the Ogden scheme are heavy stockholders in the South Omaha yards.

The perfume of violets, the purity of the lily, the glow of the rose and the finish of Hebe combine in Puzon's wondrous powder.

Tramps in a School House. People living in the vicinity of the Forbes school, in North Omaha, have been much disturbed recently by the antics of tramps, who have been in the habit of turning the school building into a lodging house. Early Tuesday morning a number of these gentry who were sleeping there for the night, overturned the school house stove, and so great a racket did they make in extinguishing the fire that ensued that the neighbors were aroused and the mounted patrol called, summoned by telephone. The tramps escaped, however, before the arrival of the officers.

The Trans-Missouri. The Trans-Missouri passenger association is holding an important meeting in this city. Chairman W. W. Finley and representatives from every line interested are here. Among them may be mentioned John Sebastian, general passenger agent of the Rock Island, Chicago, S. P. Boyd, assistant general passenger agent of the Rock Island, Topeka; George Nichols of the Santa Fe, Topeka; J. E. Lockwood of the Fort Scott & Gulf, Kansas City; E. W. P. Moore of the W. J. Buchanan, John Francis and John W. Scott. They are holding their sessions in rooms at the Paxton hotel. J. P. Moore is secretary of the association. While these men declare that they have nothing but regular routine business under consideration it is well understood that an important matter to prevent a spread of the coming war over Trans-Missouri territory. They hope to keep up a strong barrier against reduced rates going beyond the river. Whether it can be done successfully or not is the question.

When on the High Seas. On the rail, on a steamboat, aboard a fishing smack, or yachting on the coast, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will be found a reliable means of averting and relieving ailments to which travelers, mariners and emigrants are peculiarly subject. Sea sickness, ship doctors, voyagers or sojourners in the tropics, and all about the globe, should have in their unobscured medicine chest a supply of this safe and reliable remedy. It is a sure and certain relief to all ailments which it eradicates, and it may be resorted to not only with confidence in its remedial efficacy, but also in its perfect freedom from every objectionable ingredient, since it is derived from the purest and most salutary source, and is free from the effects of unwholesome food and water.

The business of "The Gaudolers" exceeded expectations. The company is very large, and the opera will be presented here with a great amount of special scenery. It will hold forth at Boyd's opera house on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, presenting Gilbert & Sullivan's latest opera at all three performances.

O. H. ROTHACKER'S FUNERAL.

The Gifted Journalist Laid to Rest at Forest Lawn.

The funeral of O. H. Rothacker took place yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. The remains lay in a handsome casket at the undertaking rooms of Drexel & Maul, where they were viewed by members of the press club and the friends in business and professional circles whom the deceased had made in life. On the casket and grouped about it lay the floral tributes. The offering of the press club was a beautiful scroll of white and yellow roses over which, like a gauze veil, hung delicate sprays of fern. The edges of the scroll were of yellow roses and in imitation of gold. Across the front was the legend "Finis" over a pen of ivory of the valley and prairies. The scroll was flanked by sprays of purple hyacinth, E. J. and T. F. Brennan sent a large floral design in roses, ferns and geraniums representing a hand holding a pen. The floral offering of the Enterprise came a pillow of roses.

The honorary pall bearers were C. E. Vest, W. F. Heschel, T. F. Brennan, Elmer Frank, T. J. McGeath, F. E. Moore, A. E. Moynihan and F. R. Morrissey, while the pall bearers were R. B. Peattie, W. C. Gregory, J. C. Crawford, H. L. Eaton, W. Vaughn, Jr., and Fred Nye.

The members of the press club marched two abreast after the hearse, and carried containing members of the college and professional and business friends followed to the church.

At the church the casket was opened and the numerous floral tributes were placed about and upon it. A quartette, composed of Miss Bayliss, Miss Liddell, and Messrs. Walter Dale and B. B. Young, sang the hymn "Able With Me," after which Rev. Harsha read an appropriate passage from the Scriptures, and followed it with a short and eloquent address. He spoke as follows:

The Scotch have an old saying that "the night brings all home." In the morning the boys go out to the fields or to the mill or to the kitchen of the neighbors or to the noisy burns running through the rocks of the hills, and the girls go to the laundry house. And all through the day they toil in their widely separated places and spheres, casting many a wistful thought to the work-a-day home where father and mother await their return. And when the evening comes down upon the hills here they come back from their work—the boys from the lowlands, and the girls from the highlands, and under the dear old roof-tree where the most of them were born there are greetings and congratulations and laughter and tears. The night brings all home.

But this saying means more still to the sturdy Scotchman of the hills. The old man is fast describing the home-coming after life's wanderings and wanderings and toils. This will be at the evening of which our present painful and wearisome career as the day. People get widely separated in the struggle of life. They wander away from those who were their dearest friends at the beginning of their course. They sometimes forget the teaching of father and mother in the old home. They get into bad ways and follow evil courses and are led into grievous sins; but we believe that God's converting grace follows most of them until the evening and night brings them home. A mother's prayers are stronger than the devil's wiles. The gates of hell shall not prevail against the sweet influences of the Sabbath school. When evening draws on and the shadows begin to fall, and the doctor is called in to ease the throbbing of the temples from the fever and strain of life, and the poor overtaxed body shivers at the first touch of the night of death, O, then sweet memories of what was long ago taught come as on wings of white doves to comfort the shrinking soul and woo it to faith in the Christ, who died for us all! I never saw a man die yet who was not thinking of his mother. The love that gave us life lives over us when we die.

Let us hope that this was the case with the brilliant man whose death we mourn today. He was born on Christmas day a little more than thirty-three years ago. He came of sturdy and consecrated Presbyterian stock, of more than one generation's growth. He was one of the examples, of which the world is full, the rare minds are of slow growth. The faith, fervor, moderation and self-sacrifice of many who toiled and thought in secret found fascinating vent in him. His writings show that he never quite got away from the hallowing influences of having been born of such religious love and on the day which saw the birth of the Son of man. For instance, his belief in the miracles is shown in this stanza which I find among his papers:

And sometimes, be we weak or wise, We feel the splendid truth divine, Which emanates the water of our lives Into the redder flush of wine.

And, as showing his trust in an overruling providence, I find this: "The only way to be by mill—Send me circular, $1 per bottle 3 for $2.50. SARIETINE MED. CO. ORVILLE, CALIF." Santa: Abie: and: Cat: R: Cure

Behind the laugh there is a sob, Behind the thought there is a soul; We walk in fetters and are forced, That God alone can make the whole.

It is not for me or for any man to judge how far he practiced these sentiments in his daily life. Though he was supremely careless of the opinion of others, and so seemed to spread out his faults that all might see them, he was ever ready to acknowledge that they clung to him. Men thought him fitful when he was only intense. Men thought him cynical when he was only crying out against sham and hypocrisy. His splendid argument against Agnosticism has become a classic. It has been stated that he would not utter a misstatement on his death bed, but that, I am assured, is a mistake. He desired to converse with one, but when a friend started to summon one, he did not feel equal to the exertion, and an interval of a few minutes would let us trust that the sentiments which he so well put into verse were devoutly felt by him as he neared the dark river.

O White Christ, All-day Thine arms were stretched across the tree, All-day the fierce sun stilled its scorching heat, All-day the mob turned bitter eyes on thee, All-day life bade Thy falling heart-throbs wait, And then death came.

A spear thrust; And then the sudden darkness which doth fall Upon the eyes of him who dies, When there is never any thought at all, And life's rough rhyms are melted by the grace Of His strange close.

O White Christ, O gentle soul of God, O human One; Heaven's purest poet! Tender One and true; Forgive us all the black sins we have done; Forgive us, for our trust doth lie in You, O Father, in You.

All pain-thrilled words, All broken speech of anger, all false thought, All sudden turnings from the old set ways, All evil, all unkind, all unkind, all unkind, All follies and all wraths—we humbly pray, O Father, in You.

city was settled in favor of the plaintiff, the jury awarding him damages in the sum of $189.08. Charles Calkins has applied for a divorce from Amanda R. Calkins on the ground of cruelty. He alleges that they were married April 19, 1878, in Cameron, N. Y., and that Mrs. Calkins has frequently assaulted him with sticks of wood and divers other articles of bric-a-brac, and has put poison and powdered glass in his food. He became afraid of his life and left her and now prays to be divorced forever. Mrs. Theresa Bertrola seeks to be divorced from Thomas Bertrola. They were married in Italy in 1877 and in January, 1888, the husband deserted the wife and three children and has failed to support them. The Union bag and paper company has brought suit against the Omaha chemical works, Herman Rebeck and Julius Rosenberg, to recover $48,699 on account of goods sold and delivered. William Kolbe has commenced suit against the city for $2,250.70 for damages sustained by having his property flooded. He alleges that the flooding was caused by a defective sewer on Dorcas street, which caused the water to back into his branch and flooded his premises, causing the damage specified.

If a corset is perfect in other respects and has the usual metal eyelets, the laces will break at the most annoying times; for the eyelets cut them.

There is a better eyelet; made of loops of corset lace; soft eyelet we call it. It costs no more, is neater, more such as a woman would make for herself, besides the convenience of not wearing out or cutting the laces.

The Ball and Kabo corsets are eyeleted with it. You can get these corsets and wear them two or three weeks; and, if you do not like them, return them. The makers pay the merchants to sell them so.

MAY SHOWER

We offer today about six thousand Men's and Youths' fine suits at fully one-half what you would have to pay for the same goods elsewhere. We promised something big in the way of a suit sale and you know we never do things by halves. Today and throughout the following week you can expect one dollar to do the work of two dollars without fear of disappointment. This is not a petty sale of a few styles for the purpose of making a noise. Its a grand showing of entirely new and this season's goods--every garment made for the finest retail trade.

The few samples in our windows give only a poor idea of the value of these goods, the prices on them do not tell one-half how cheap they are sold. You must go inside the store and examine the goods. Every coat is finished open at the bottom, you can see what the quality is, examine the linings, trimmings and the general get up of the garments, see how they fit, then you will have an idea what bargains you are getting.

It would be useless to enumerate any particular style or styles in this sale. As we said there are about six thousand suits and one is as big a bargain as another. The prices range from $4.90 for a good All Wool Cheviot Suit, up to $15.00 for tailor-made extra fine Fancy Worsteds. There are all styles, light and dark colors, sacks and frocks, also fine Corkscrew Prince Alberts, silk faced, at $9.50 for the coat and vest.

Don't hesitate to come inside if you see a big crowd on the first floor, we have a second and third floor, all full of goods, and plenty of salesmen on each floor to wait on you. MAIL ORDERS--In order to give our outside patrons an opportunity to secure some of these bargains, we have, of the larger lots in this sale, a limited quantity of samples. We will send them with rules for measuring, but cannot guarantee the filling of the order, as the goods are likely to go fast. However, you can try. We send goods C. O. D., with privilege of examining and trying on. If they are not in every way satisfactory you need not take them.
