JEWEL OF THE COBRA.

Explanation of a Wonder That Has Long Puzzled the Naturalist.

The natives of the jungle say som obras carry precious stones about with them, and at night coil in the grass to watch them glitter, Prof. Hensoldt the Indian traveler, says: "One night a native called me to see this wonder. lose to the water's edge stood an immense tamarind tree, and within fifty yards of it the coolie halted, nysteriously pointed to the root of the tree. A foot from the trunk I observed in the grass a greenish light, apparently proceeding from a single point. After a time I could see the corba colled near the foot of the tree, slowly swaying its head to and fro in front of the shining

"Unfortunately I had no gun and my guide, who seemed to feel that he was esponsible for my safety, entreated me so earnestly to let the snake alone that I acceded. Moreover, he promised to ring me this stone within three days. The coolie kept his word, for the second morning afterward he brought the stone. had climbed the tamarind before dark, and after the snake had taken up his position he had emptied a bag of ashes upon the stone. The frightened reptile, after chasing about for awhile trying to find its treasure, had gone off. The coolie remained in his safe position until daylight, when he descended the tree, dug the stone out of the ashes and here it was in my hand.

The cobra stone was a semi-transpar ent, water-worn pebble, of yellowish color, about the size of a large pea, which in the dark, when previously warmed, emitted a greenish phosphores centlight. I found it to be chlorophane. a rare variety of fluor-spar.

The mystery is not difficult to explain. Cobras feed on insects, and seem to have an especial liking for fireflies. Only the male fireflies fly about, and a close observer will notice that a constant swarm of the male insects will fly near the females, which sit on the ground and emit an intermittent glowing light. The cobra uses his phosphorescent stone as a decoy for the fireflies. Competition would lead to the snake's seizing and carrying off the treasure, and the habit has become hereditary.

Reminiscence of the Wild and Woolly Past in Albuquerque. There is a quiet, pleasant looking man at the Richelieu who experienced than his share of the "Rowdy West" during the early days. He is Judge C Favor of Albuquerque, N. M. He left the east and went to Albuquerque when the citizens used to have progres sive shooting parties, with a lynching for a special attraction, says the Chicago Tribtne. At that time no one who had slain less than two or three men could hold any position of trust. "The wild and woolly days have passed ' said Judge Favor yesterday, "and Albuquerque is quite a modern town. A few years ago the society leaders began to cut the acquaintance of horse thieves, and since then we have got along swimmingly. When I first went on the bench down there we had plenty of law but no justice. You could buy a jury for $20 and a gallon of whisky, and it was mighty difficult to convict a bad man. I'll never forget the first case I heard. One of the worst southwestern desperadoes was being tried before me for killing a man, The prisoner had stolen whole herds of horses and murdered more than one man, but the prosecution could not get any evidence. It looked at one time as if the man would go free; but providence made other arrangements. After a four-days' hearing the jury went out and brought in a verciet of not guilty. I learned their decision before it was given to me officially, and I also learned that four of the jurors had been 'fixed.' I was about to discharge the jury when we were disturbed by a violent storm. A stroke of lightning knocked the shingles from the court house and the rain poured into the room. I had just said something about justice when the lightning began to fool around. Suddenly a flash came down the chimney, skated up to the accused, left him a corpse, and then went away through a crack in the floor. It must have gone through a crack, for it left no marks in the room except the dead man. I had been in New Mexico for five years, yet that was the first time

I had ever seen justice meted out in an Albuquerque court room." Lowest Rates on Earth via the Burlington, to all points east and west. Ticket office, 1223 Farnam street. Depot, 10th and

Actor Robson's Tonsorial Skill. I was being shaved in the St. James hotel barber shop when I noticed Stuart Robson sitting next to me, with a waxed-haired, razor-wielder standing idly yet interestedly looking on, says a New York letter to the Pittiburg Dispatch. The famous funny man was shaving himself, and the sound of that blade traversing the stubblefield of his phy siognomy was like unto the gentle touch of a small boy, a short stick and a paling fence He won't let a burbe: divest him of that hiraute wire which a bons his face, and the greatest joke about this idea is that he doesn't know how to shave himself. He looks like he needed a shave, no matter how often the habit has been indulged in during the week. Another strange feature of this jug-glery is that instead of Mr. Robson shaving himself down, as other mortals do, he per-sistently pushes the sharp steel up against the grain of the beard. The barbers all stand back aghast and wonder how he sur-vives such an ordeal, but no one is more complicent than he when the job is done. The clever comedian then seeks the wash-bowl, allowing the bowl to be filled with cold water, into which he plunges his whole head and face, holding his breath as long as possible. After this the poor barber gets a chance

SINGULARITIES.

Mr. George Gellenbeck of Omaha has a canary bird with four well developed legs.

A Georgia lad, ten years of age has an unusually large head. He wears a No. 814 hat, and it is a difficult job to find one large enough for him in any of the stores.

A curiosity revealed at Holly Hill, near Daytona, Fla., was the hatching out of a couple of chicks by a cat from eggs left in the nest by a hen that got tired of waiting for them to do as had the other eggs. Mr. Lewis Moris of Fontainbleau, Mo., contributes the following to the singularity column. There was born at that place re-cently a calf with three legs and no tail. It is a handsome little thing, is healthy and can run as fast as any calf. Clarence Grimes of Moses Coulee, Wash. says be has discovered a rare snake-like lizard in what is known as James Burden's lake. The lizard is said to be an axo-lott which are found in great numbers in the lakes of Mexico. Quite recently two immense swarms of bees were smoked out of the chimneys of the Methodist church at Caluse, Cal., and at last accounts they are fighting a third swarm, which seemed determined to occupy that seetion of the sanctuary. Louis Mithoff, while gardening on his farm near Lancaster, O., was attacked by a huge rattlesnake. After a thrilling combat the venomous reptile was cut in two with a hee, when one half the body twisted around the handle and made frantic efforts to strike with its faugs. Miss Emily Bacon of Mount Meigs, Ala. exhibits a most peculiar phase of nature in her physical constitution. In the spring and summer months she is full of life and cheer-ful; in autumn she loses her spirits, and in winter she sinks into a helpless stupor and shows a disposition to creep away into some dark place. The canine sentinels now being trained in The camine sentines now being trained morthern France learn their duties quickly. Two soldiers start off leading a dog by his collar, and when a nile from the starting point one of the men turns back. In a short time the dog is let loose and he immediately tracks the other soldier back to the post rarely failing. Dogs will scent an ene a distance of 100 yards, growling and sniffling to attract the soldiers' attention.

As Mr. Kold, who has just removed into his elegant house at Moultrie Point, Fla., was in the act of making a fire the other morning he heard a strange noise that sounded as if rats were in the stove. He immediately got his dogs and club and pro-ceeded to investigate. Raising up one of the lids in the stove, he was surprised when a large owl jumped out upon him. It had got into the chimney, which is twenty-five feethigh, and went down through a five-foot stovepipe into the stove, where it was discovered by Mr. Kolb. An intelligent dog in West Chester, Pa., plays hide and seek with its owner, a little girl named Amy. She taught it the game and they both, it is said, find much enjoyment in playing it. Amy will tell the dog to re-lain in a certain place until she hides. She then calls and the dog starts on the search, finding Amy every time, no matter wher she hides. Then the dog will wag his tail show his teeth as though laughing, and lile away to the point originally designed for him by Amy, while Amy hides again, only to be found an instant afterward by the dog One of the most remarkable accidents recorded in history occurred near Mariborough house, London, England, recently. A gen-tieman was passing from St. James' park to Pall Mall when he suddenly received a vio-lent blow on his right shoulder, which caused lent blow on his right shoulder, which caused him great pain and to stumble forward as he walked. He noted a cracking noise at the time, but had not the slightest idea of the cause of the shock he had experienced. Reaching home he discoved and submitted to a critical examination, but nothing was dis-covered which in the least accounted for the great rain in both shoulder and arm. A sergreat pain in both shoulder and arm. A servant sent to brush the gentleman's coat next morning discovered a scorehed streak about eleven juches long and an inch wide extend-ing across the shoulder of the cont and down the back. The mysterious shock was explained; he had been struck by a meteor or
