BRIEF DREAMS OF PARADISE

In Which Revel the Foolish Victims of the Morphine Habit. THE EFFECT OF THE NARCOITIC. How it Controls Men and Women in Every Walk of Life and Some Who Reside in Omaha.

That's a peculiar question to ask a druggist. We never sell morphine except on prescriptions, you know. People can't buy the drug the way they buy whiskey or beer. Gradually the dose is increased for the drug fiend on himself and demands more and more every day...

HOUSEKEEPING IN PARIS.

The Burden is Lighter on the French Capital Than Over Here. The burdens of the housekeeper in Paris, writes Lucy H. Hooper, are a good deal lessened by the fact that so much work is done of the premises. There is no washing nor baking nor stairland hall sweeping exacted of your own servants...

Patti as a Fellow Passenger. As follows travel Maud Patti is simply charming, writes a correspondent of the New York Morning Journal. A brilliant conversationalist, her natural charm of manner wins the entire sympathy of her hearer and her sweetness of temperament prevents self now becoming ever apparent. Quite free from conceit, no one would have thought that the quiet, pleasant woman at the captain's table was the greatest songstress of the age and one to whom crowns and laurels were bestowed...

Judge Fuller's Military Mustache

Judge Fuller's military mustache is more like a cavalry officer than the presiding judge of the United States supreme court, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Even seated on the bench, with the golden eagle flapping its wings over his head, and clad in the silk robes of his office, there is little of the judicial about his appearance. It is the heavy mustache, nearly white, that distinguishes the chief justice from his brethren and gives him a war-like appearance. He is certainly the handsomest man on the bench; men and women agree as to that.
