A SPEECH BY MR. ROSEWATER.

An Invitation to Come Forward and Sign the Pledge Results in Many Additions to the Ranks.

The audience that gathered at the Francis Everything had been cut and dried for the Second waviers and the business went through with a rush. D. D. O'Connel, secre-retary of the Second ward republican club, M hy meeting last night was a representa tive one and one that packed all parts of the opera house, notwithstanding the fact that the evening was a very warm one and consecalled the meeting to order and nounced its object. M. H. field was made permanent chair nounced field wa quently the sidewalks more attractive, as far field was made permanent chairman and again explained the objects. Some Mor-rison skirmishers had been at work in the as physical comfort was concerned.

Two thousand voices joined in singing, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." At the conclusion of this Mr. Rosewater made his appearance upon the stage and as he was received by Mr. Murphy and the other gentlemen upon the platform the audience greeted him with generous applause. And then the choir and congregation sang, "Blessed He the Tie that Binds."

Mr. Murphy read from the scriptures, and Rev. Mr. Leard invoked divine blessing upon this delegation be instructed to stand by the candidate selected first, last and all the time, the meeting and those who were to speak, interspecsed with hearty "amens" from Mr. which was carried. But there is another side of this question. I was astonished and grieved a few days ago when I saw in a local paper a communication from a minister of the gospel, if I remember correctly, suggesting the most severe pun-ishment to be meted out to those who allowed themselves to become intoxicated. I think that is all wrong and cruch. I think the trouble with those who want temperance enforced is that they do not realize the heroic effort required on the part of some men to abstain from liquor. They do not realize that there are men with a craving for Equor so strong within them that it is nearly as necessary for them as it is for the baby over there to have its bottle.

In district court yesterday none of the cases on the docket wore ready for trial and the jury was discharged until Monday mornng. There will be no session of the court norow. On Saturday Judge Deemer will make a new assignment of cases. A week will be devoted to equity and two weeks to law. None of the criminal cases went to trial, the indicted parties all pleading guilty. This will give extra time for civil cases. Court will continue in session for about six weeks longer, as the next term does not open until September 2. Several of the civil chest-nuts on the docket will be disposed off before the summer vacation.
