A Hartwell Boy, Eleven Years Old, Inflicts Serious But Not Dangerous Wounds on Three Other Children.

HARTWELL, Neb., June 3 .- Special Telegram to Tun Bun. |- Yesterday morning a little after 4 o'clock, while the children were going home from school about three miles south of this place, the eleven-year-old lad of Newton Morris got into a quarrel with the sons of G. Mikesell, eleven and six years old. The cause of the quarrel could not be learned, but the Morris boy became so much excited that he ran into the house, procured a shotgun, and followed them about eighty rods on the road, laid the gun on the fence, took aim and called to the seven-year-old lad of George Edwards: "Get out of the way; I want to kin them d-d pups." He fired from a disttance of about thirty or forty paces, inflicting a scalp wound in little Edwards, but Dave Mikesell received two shots in his breast, one in his nose and in the right cheek, and his little six-year-old brother received a shot in his side. Dr. C. A. Braegmann was called, and he pronounced the wounds not dangerous.

Effects of the Big Storm.

TERAMAH, Neb., June S .- Special Telegram to Tug Bes. |-Last night this locality was visited with the most terrible rain storm ever known here. The rain came down in torrents and it soon became apparent that Tekamah creek would not long be confined to its narrow limits, and shortly after midnight the church belis pealed forth to warn the people of the danger. The swollen stream was soon outside its banks and spread over almost the entire town. In Main street the water ran like a torrent and men or horses found it difficult to get from house to

The mill dam, which for a time kept back the swelling tide, at last gave way and the waters thus set at liberty rushed down with frenzied fury, carrying destruction in its

Bridges gave way under the tremendous pressure and joined with the waters in the mad rush upon the town. A barn containing a span of horses and a buggy, together with several hundred bushels of corn and oats, came floating down the stream and lodged upon the bank, and the horses were rescued

The most serious damage perhaps is the loss of the mill dam owned by Mr. Thomas Crouch, and as it is quite possible that it will not be rebuilt the community at large will feel an interest in the loss. All hands are busy today in pumping water from the cellars, and beyond the serious meanvenience it is thought that the damage sustained by business firms to the stock will not be very great, although the water ran from one to three feet deep in many of the stores. Later reports place the damage to the Tekamah milis at $800, and the full damage to the city and citizens will reach $2,500.

BLAIR, Neb., June 3. - [Special Telegram to The Bee.]-A very hard wind and rain storm struck Blair and vicinity last night, doing a considerable amount of damage to the fruit trees and crops in this county. It is reported that nearly all the corn planted on the bottoms and in the valleys is washed out and the fences a total wreck. More water fell last night than at any other one time for several years. The wind blew down a house and barn belonging to N. Lawrence, living four miles northwest of Blair. There were ten in the family, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence and baby sleeping down stairs and the other children up stairs. The house and barn are entirely demolised. Mr. Lawrence was not and worked until daylight trying to ue his family in the rain and darkness, and then went for the neighbors to help him get out those who were held down by heavy timbers. Mrs. Lawrence has her collar bone broken and a boy aged fourteen his skull frac tured. The balance of the family are bruised more or less. The family are now at Jake McCracken's, a near neighbor. The doctors can't tell whether the injuries to the boy are FREMONT, Neb., June 3 .- [Special to THE BEE.]-A very hard wind, rain and electric storm prevailed in this vicinity last night with some damage. IN THE FIELD OF SPORT.

The Team From the Flour City Knocks Out the Black Sox.

The Omaha cranks flocked to the ball park yesterday afternoon, laboring pretty gener ally under the impression that Omaha would down the leaders in the pennant race.

But the fates decreed otherwise, that is, the fates assisted very decisively by Elmer Cleveland's rotten work. What this young man wants to do is to quit "blowing them off" and to go in and play ball, otherwise he should be given a permanent place on the bench at a salary of 'steen dollars per day. He has the stuff in him, there's no doubt about that, but it should be speedily developed, or Manager Leonard should allow him to take a walk.

His bluffs are losing too many games. But the story of the fight.

In the first, Canavan opened up the fun by getting first on four wide ones, but that was all it amounted to, for Walsh, Kearns and Phalen fell easy victims to Hudson's deceptive

The Minnies fared no better. Cackling Carroll struck out to the extreme hilarity of the crowd, and Foster and Minnehan sent flies to Phalen and Kearns respectively. So far, so good.

It was the same thing over in the second for both sides.

Andrews popped up a little one to Ryn, Willis its twin to O'Day, and Cleveland was attended to by Hudson to first. Ryn struck out. Hingle got first on a fumble by brilliant little Walsh, then Cleveland threw O'Day out and Walsh did a like service for Hudson. And the third also was unproductive for Miller fired Urquahart out at first, roster cought Fanning's high fly, but Canavan caused a ripple on the surface by cracking out the first safe hit of the day. It might as well remained unmade, however, for Walsh went out to Foster. For Morton's men, Miller died at first, Dug-dale struck out, but Carroll reached first on balls and Foster made a hit. Minnehan's out to Willis-a superb catch-

Again in the fourth was it nix for the Black Sox, and it looked like a no score game on account of the sogghess of the ground, but right here the fates and Mr. Cleveland entered into a little plot for the discomfiture of the Andrews family, and their admiring relatives in the grandstand and on the bleach-

Dumby Ryn led off with a single after two Dumby Ryn led off with a single after two strikes had been called on him. Then Cleve-land juggled Hengle's tender little one, which not only allowed Ed to reach first in safety, but gave Ryn third. Still Elmer wasn't sat-isfied, so he ran back of third and made a recherche muff of O'Day's fly, which let the mute home and Hengle to second. Hudson then followed with a warm one past see then followed with a warm one past sec-ond and Hengle took third. Miller then lined one out to Kearns, and Kearns squeezed it, and by one of those magnificent throws for which Tommy is becoming justly famous, he caught the Minnies captain at the plate. Dugdale's out to Cleveland ended the inning. Things looked blue.

The Black Sox, however, came in anything but daunted, and in a moment the stands were in an uproar.

Willis laced the first ball pitched out into whils faced the first ball pitched out into left for a bog, and Cleveland sent the next to right for another, on which Tit took third. Urquahart perished at Hudson's hands. Fan-ning then drove a not one to Miller, who throw Dugdale and caught Willis at the plate That is the umpire said he did, but he didn't. The decision was a bad one. Now by the way, before it is forgotten, let it be remarked here that Mr. Blogg is decidedly off with his balls and strikes and gave Omaha by far the worst of it yesterday. He may im-prove, but its doubtfui. But the game.

Canavan and Walsh both supplementing the good work already accomplished by a safe drive each, Cleveland and Fanning crossed the plate with the tleing runs.

The fifth was a goese egg for both.
But in their half of the seenth Minneapolis forged one run ahead.

Hengle was hit with the ball and scored on Hengle was hit with the ball and scored on Hudson and Milled's hits, after O'Day had been retired to Kearns.

A neat double play by Walsh, Canavan and Andrews prevented further disaster.

Again was the game tied in the ninth, and the spectators cheered long and loud.

Cleveland made a hit, and then after the next two men had been put out, scored on Canavan's three sacker. Jimmy, however, was left. Walsh flying to short.

left, Walsh flying to short. But the audience did not have long to gloat ver this bit of good luck, for after Carroll's ut Foster hit safe, sprinted to second and scored on Minnehan's long sacratice. The

A Bill Offered Amending the Law Regulating the Bottling of Fermented Liquors-Thanks

From Louisiana.

WASHINGTON, June 3 .- In the senate to day among the memorials and other papers presented and referred were resolutions from the Louisiana legislature extending thanks to congress and the president for the relief afforded the sufferers from the recent Mississipyl floods; the senate bill for preventing adulteration of food and drinks was reported and placed on the calendar; the resolution offered by Mr. Edmunds for investigation by the committee on fisheries into the manage ment of the fish commissioners' office. After some debate the resolutions went over till to-

Mr. Blair, from the committee on education and labor, reported the senate bill to provide for the obligatory attendance at school of children in Alaska, and the senate bill, without recommendation, to organize bureaus of information relating to employment, occupa-tion and means of livelihood. Placed on the ion and means of livelihood.

The silver bill was then taken up.
Mr. Pugh then addressed the senate. His peech was largely devoted to criticism of the

At the conclusion of Mr. Pugh's speech tho silver bill was temporarily laid aside and the following senate bills were taken from the calander and passed: To amend section 3,354 of the revised statutes so as to make it read: "Any person who withdraws any fermented liquor from any hogshead, barrel, keg or other vessel upon which the proper stamp has not been affixed, for the purpose of bottling the same, or who carries on the busi-ness of bottling fermented liquor in any browery or other place in which fermented liquor is made, or upon any premises having communication with a brewery, or warehouse, shall be liable to a fine of $500, and the property used in such bottling or business shall be liable to forfeiture; provided, however, that this section shall not be construed to prevent the withdrawal and trans fer of fermented liquors from any of the vats in any browery by way of a pipe line or other conduit to another building or place other conduit to another billions of place for the sole purpose of bottling same; such pipe line or conduit to be constructed and operated under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue subject to the approval of the secretary of the treasury, and all locks and seals prescribed shall be provided by the commissioner of internal revenue at the ex-pense of the United States; provided further, that the tax imposed in section 3339, revised statutes, will be paid on all fermented liquor removed from a brewery to a bottling house by means of a pipe or conduit, at the time of such removal by the cancellation tion and defacement by the collector of the district, of the number of stamps denoting the tax on fermented liquors thus removed. The stamps thus cancelled and defaced shall be disposed of and accounted for in the manmer directed by the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury; and any violation of the rules and regulations therein after prescribed by the commissioner of internal revenue with the approval of the secretary of the treasury in persuance of these provisions shall be subject to the penalties above provided by this

"Every owner, agent or superintendent of any brewery or bottling house who removes or connives at the removal of any or connives at the removal of any fermented liquor through a pipe line or conduit without payment of the tax thereon, or who attempts to defraud the revenue as above, shall forfeit all liquors made by and for him and all utensils and ap-paratus used in making the same."

To provide for the expertation of fermented liquor in bond without the payment of an internal revenue tax the bill provides that from and after January, 1891, fermented liquor may be removed from the place of manufac-ture or storage for export to a foreign country without payment of tax in such packages and under such regulations and upon giving such notices, entries, bonds and other secusuch notices, entries, bonds and other security as the commissioner of internal revenue, with the approval of the secretary of the treasury, may prescribe, and no drawback of the tax shall be allowed on fermented liquor exported on and after January 1, 1891, unless entered for exportation prior to such date.

to such date. The house bill to authorize the president to The house bill to authorize the president to cause certain lands heretofore withdrawn from the market for reservoir purposes to be restored to the public domain subject to entry under the homestead law, with certain restrictions. The bill refers to the lands at the head waters of the Mississippi and St. Croix rivers in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and the Chippewa and Wisconsin rivers in Wisconsin.

The silver bill was again taken up and Mr. The silver bill was again taken up and Mr. Farwell addressed the senate. He declared himself in full accord with the purposes of the bill, but said he was in favor of going still further. He would use for money all silver offered and not a stipulated sum as provided for in the bill, and he would coin it at its market value. If the price of silver should advance to par with gold, as the friends of the bill claimed it would, then free coinage would come as a gold, as the friends of the bill claimed it would, then free coinage would come as a matter of course. "What objection could there be," he asked, "to putting into a silver dollar 100 cents worth of silver?" Two things were necessary. The national bank system should be preserved and the sub-treasury system abolished. When sub-treasury system abolished. When these measures were adopted the people could get all the money they need. The issuing by the government (under the pending bill) of treasury notes, with silver bullion behind them as security, furnished a circulation that was absolutely safe and could not be redundant and would still some circulation that was absolutely safe and could not be redundant and would still sup-ply monthly the retirement of national bank rrency. The national bank system should be perpetuated by substituting other bonds than United States bonds to secure the circulation. United States bonds to secure the circulation. The people would then utilize all the best bonds of the country and would procure such circulation as the business of the country demanded. The treasury notes to be issued under the bill would add largely to the circulating medium. He did not think that it was within the province of congress to determine the amount of circulating medium, but some law, like the national banking law, should be the means by which the people could deter-the means by which the people could determine that matter for themselves.

His object in favoring the abolition of the sub-treasuries was to have all the money of the people in the channels of business, as it was before the passage of the independent treasury act in 1840 (The money new in the treasury act in 1840. The money now in the sub-treasury would add largely to the volume of the currency for business purposes. He would not advocate the deposit of government revenues with national lands without adequate security for national lands without adequate security for the whole amount deposited. Another reason for the change would be that the money would be handled by the national banks with-out any cost to the government and the sav-ing thus effected would aggregate several hundred thousand dollars per annum. He did not favor the repeal of the independent treasury act for the purpose of benefitting the banks.

At the close of Mr. Farwell's speech and without further action the senate adjourned. Washington, June 3 .- In the house today, on motion of Mr. Parker, the senate bill was passed authorizing the sale of timber on certain lands reserved for the use of the Me-nominee tribe of Indians in Wisconsin.

THE LIZARD COULDN'T STAND IT. Lincoln Whisky Drives One from an

Irishman's Stomach. Lincoln, Neb., June 3.—[Special to The Brie.]—Dr. Stadhope of this city reports a curious case in which an Irishman was relieved of a large lizard that has evidently made its abode in the man's stomach for over two years. The doctor will not give the fellow's name but is willing to tell the circum tauces. He says that about two years ago the Hibernian, while drinking after night from a spring, realized that he had swallowed some thing else besides water.

In a few weeks he experienced a severe pain in his stomach for which he could find no relief except in drinking large quanities of milk. The Irishman finally made up his mind that he had only a short time to live and resolved to make the most of the few months remaining. Yesterday he got on a glorious drunk and the lizard in his stomach also became paralyzed and decided to quit its abode. It was vomitted up. The doctor has the animal on exhibition. It is in light color with dark stripes and about five inches long.

Lincoln, Neb., June 3 .- [Special to THE BEE.]—Marshal Melick has got a case in hand in the district court through his ambition to cultivate a pretty lawn at his residence on P and Twenty-eighth streets. The marshal employed D. W. Mosher, the florist, to sod his yard, and Mr. Mosher, it is claimed has been digging sod on property be-longing to Messrs. J. A. Campbell, E. V. Davis, Henry Turnell, C. Bullger and G. F. H. Schwake. These gentlemen ciaimed that they warned the florist that he was appropriating private property, but he would not listen to them. They therefore commenced suit, not only against Mosher, but against Marshal Melick, claiming $1,000 damages. Governor Thaver was at the state house

He Swallowed a Dollar.

About 12 o'clock the other night James Clemens, a prominent young farmer who lives just outside the city, swallowed a silver dollar, writes an Athens, Ga., correspondent. Clemens was lying across a bed at home and had a silver dollar in his mouth. Being tired, he suddenly dropped off to sleep. He awoke very soon after with a most exeruciating pain and it developed that he had swallowed the money. He arose immediately and came to the city. Dr. W. A. Carlton endeavored to draw the dollar from the throat by means of an instrument, but owing to the nervous condition of the patient he was forced to postpone the operation. The money had passed down the throat and lodged in the esophagus. The next morning the doctor returned to his patient, accompanied by Dr. John Gerdine. Clemens was placed under the influence of ether, and after a difficult and dangerous operation the dollar was brought up through the mouth. Clemens

The Business Woman. The typical business woman of today s an object of admiration to men and of wonder to members of her own sex. says the New York Pres. Men would not marry her, but they enjoy hobnobing with her and drawing out her ideas, which are generally novel. If they are not always thought practical it is because other women, who have not been real business women, have created a lack of confidence in the minds of men.

The typical business women likes men, and talks to them like brothers. When she is talking, if she happens to be seated; she turns sideways on the chair, crosses her legs, and places one arm akimbo on the back; when standing she crooks her elbows, and with a quick little movement of her thumbs she places them in the imaginary armholes of her imaginary waistcoat, She is almost always good hearted, has ready sympathies, and if she acquires money, puts her hand in her pocket to help the needy with more than manly alacrity.

Appearance of Marie Antoinette. "Nature adorned Marie Antoinette with all the gifts that made her an object of admiration. In shape she was tall, and her movements were swan-like in carriage and deportment; in elegance such as to lose none of her majesty. Her hair was blonde and silken, its warm tints reminding the beholder of the wavy tresses of a Titian; a lofty, oval forehead. like to the fair daughters of the Danube; eyes of liquid azure, in which the calm and the tempest of the soul made the look by turns sleep or undulate; the mouth, Austrian by her family, a mingling of pride and of a smile; turned up; her color heightened by the chill climate of the north; an irresistible grace shed like a youthful vapor over all her features; which did not allow her to be viewed but through an atmosphere of fire or incbriation.

Trials of the Reporter.

The reporter is more sinned against than sinning. And if he sometimes of-fends, how invaluable he is, how untiring and devoted is his search for the news which has become as necessary to us as our daily bread, says a writer in the Illustrated American. Think of the energy and persistence which he shows in obtaining the details of any great calamity. Every hour of suspense would be agony to the relatives of those who were possible or probable suffererers. A single name looks like a small thing. yet what mountains the reporter must overcome ere he can attain to it.

Syndicates in Germany.

Germany took the lead as the country of syndicates in 1889, says the Illustrated American. Ninety-two are known to have been formed there, while the United States had 58, Austria 38, Great Britain 31, France 6, Russia 7, Belgium 8, Italy 2, Sweden 4, and Denmark 1. In addition, eleven international trusts were formed to control copper, zinc, nitrates, rails, mirror glass, sugar, dynamite and hotels. A great many other syndicates and trusts were undoubtedly formed, but their existence was not formally recorded.

deem Nebraska. Kate Field's Washington, June 4: What is Nebraska doing to counteract the effect of prohibition literature which s deluging and will continue to deluge that state until the people decide at the polls whether they will remain men by sticking to high license, or become slaves, hypocrites and cranks? There is a marvelous difference, I find, between one and the same thing. The man or woman who accepts a fee for lecturing against impossible prohibition is a miserable creature steeped in sordid sin. The man or woman who gets paid for calling this other man or woman a discrace to humanity, and labelling alcohol under all circumstruces "The root of all evil," is the noblest work of God. By this same token, the prohibition organ that fills its pockets by maligning the universe—cranks excepted—and rais ing a philanthropic fund to increase its own circulation, is likewise a godly spectacle. Here is the way the philanthropic organ begins to appeal: Dear Friend: We wish to urge upon your immediate attention a very simple and practicable way of accomplishing a two-fold result that cannot but be of inestimable value to prohibition: I. SCROFULA

Is that impurity of the blood which produces unsightly lumps or swellings in the neck; which causes running sores on the arms, legs, or feet; which develops ulcers in the eyes, ears, or nose, often eausing blindness or deafness; which is the origin of pimples, cancerous growths, or "humors;" which, fastening upon the lungs, causes consumption and death. It is the most ancient of all diseases, and very few persons are entirely free from it.

During the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries epidemics swept over the civilized world, almost depopulating it. Small pox alone never entirely ceased, and every few years it becomes a great epidemic, even as late as the eighteenth century, says Dr. Cyrus Edson in the Forum. Almost every person sickened of it once in his life. An immense number were blinded. Of infants, one-third died before their first year, and one-half before their fifth year. Asiatic cholera, the black death, typhus fever and other epidemics also wrought fearful havoc. Sanitary art, now become sanitary science, stands an able protector against such as these. Armed with the effective weapon she places in our hands, we no longer dread such fearful visitations. Yet this science is but in its infancy. When it has reached its full growth, the
