Dr. Cappell yesterday received a new electrolysis for the removal of facial blemishes and superfluous hair. It is a compact little piece of electric machinery driven by a Mc-Intosh sixteen-sell battery. Electricity has been used for the removal of superfluous hair for the past thirteen years, and its success is so well established that there can be no doubt of its efficacy, the operation is not painful, the hair never returns and it leaves no scar, A fine platinum pointed needle is introduced to the root of the hair and electricity is ap-plied until the root of the hair is killed.

Another Cloud Burst.

A most disastrons cloud burst occurred about 6 o'clock yesterday morning just east of Underwood, in this county, about nineteen miles east of the Bluffs. An immense volume of water poured down the ravines to Mosquito creek, which runs through the town, and in five minutes the flood was twenty feet above low water mark.

The heavy showers of the preceding two or three days has already raised the water in the creek about five feet, but when the flood came the water raised at the rate of three feet a minute until the whole valley was submerged and a madly whirling waste of waters swept through the town. Several of the inhabitants fled to the higher ground back from the creek, and others who were un-willing to abandon their homes and household property were driven to the second stories or to the roofs. The residence of Joseph Harrier was swept away, and the rail-road bridges on both the Rock Island and Milwaukee railroads east and west of the town were also carried away. The farmers on the bottom land along the creek were unable to get all of their stock out. of the way of the rapidly rising water, and several head of cattle and hogs were drowned Word was immediately sent to this city p telephone to notify people along the creek of the impending danger. Green's packing house at Greendale was telephoned as soon as the news was received from Underwood. Mr. Green stated that the creek at that point showed no signs of a rise, but he heeded the warning, and his cuttle had barely been driven to the high land when the pasture were flooded to the depth of two or three At Underwood the water washed away nearly a quarter of a mile of the road bed o both the railroads that run through the town The depot was flooded and the water swep through the freight cars standing on the side tracks. All telegraphic communication was cut off, and a single telephone wire was the only means of communicating with the Bluffs. The operator there stated that all communication to the east, both by telegraph and telephone, was shut off, as the wires were down The telephone poles to the east were twisted out of position and leaned over so that the wire was but a few inches above the water in some places, and it was given out that they would not stand very long. Manager Atkins gave orders to prop them up if possible so as to keep the line open. Telegraphic communi-cation was possible over the Milwaukee wires as far as Weston, ten miles east of the Bluffs.

The operator there stated that there was eight feet of water under the depot, and three feet on the tracks at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but said that the water there had fallen fifteen inches in the past hour.

The railroad officials here denied that their bridges were swept away, but admitted that several miles of roadbed had been washed out.

Telephonic communication from Underwood, however, reported that the Milwaukee bridge at that point was gone, and that i miles of track had suffered the same fate. was stated that fully ten miles of track was under water, and that it was fully fifteen feet deep in front of the Underwood depot. It was reported that the Rock Island, whose road runs parallel with the Milwaukee from here to Neola, a distance of twenty miles, had fared no better. Mosquito creek empties into Pelican lake just south of Manawa, and at noon it was full to the top of the banks. Late in the after-neon the announcement came that both both railroad bridges at Chautauqua had been swept away, and the highway bridge at Park's Mills was reported to be almost ready

About 4 o'clock residents along the lower end of the creek received word that another wave would be along about sundown. The bridges over the creek south of the city were almost submerged and the prespect of their withstanding the flood was not encouraging.

At Underwood the water began to fall about 10 clocks and at 3 o'clock it began to subside astitution for the deaf and dumb at 5 o'clock. No lives were reported lost, but the damage oproperty will amount to thousands of dol-

THE BEE reporter visited the vicinity of creendale and the paper mill during the vening when the flood was apparently at its eight. The force of the water was irresist-ble as it poured down the narrow valley at that point. The carcasses of calves, hogs and cattle were whirled along with the muss o lebris that had been collected over a distance of twenty-five miles. Farmers who had watched the rising waters during the day were rushing about trying to get their stock out of the pastures in which the waters were fast rising. Horses dashed wildly about, ren dered frantic by the unusual and exciting scene. One fine animal was seen to dash against the barb wire fence in an endeavor to against the parts were lence in an endeavor to escape and one leg was caught over the were. Henry Coker, owner of the paper mill, was in the city during the afternoon taking orders for paper.

The Bre representatives aw him and inquired about the Underwood flood. Mr. Coker stated that he had heard of it and that the creek had raised a little, but he thought that it had raised to its highest point about noon. As the flood whirled through the mill last evening and threatened to utterly destroy it and possibly bankrupt him, Mr. Coker was compelled to remain idle and watch the impending destruction of his property. An attempt was made to get to the mill in a boat, but the frail skiff was utterly unmanageable in the mad current, which dashed it about like a school-

A fine black mare owned by Mase Wise was also badly cut, and another of his iorses was cut so terribly that it will die.

ARID LANDS.

The Secretary of the Interior Issues

an Important Opinion. WASHINGTON, June 3. The secretary of the interior has transmitted to the senate an opinion by the attorney general construing the act of October 2, 1888, which appropriated the sum of $100,000 for investigating the extent to which arid land may be recovered by irrigation. The opinion is transmitted in response to a resolution by the sen-ate inquiring particularly as to the views of the interior department concerning the scope and effect of the following section of the act of section 2: "And all lands which may hereafter be designated or selected by such United States surveys for sites for reservoirs, ditches or canals for irrigating purposes, and all land susceptible of irriga-tion by such reservoirs, ditches or canals are tion by such reservoirs, ditches or canals are from this time henceforth reserved from sale as property of the United States and shall not be subject, by the passage of this act, to entry, settlement or occupation until further provided by law."

provided by law."

The attorney general states his conclusions as follows: "The object of the act is manifest. It was to prevent the entry upon and the settlement and sale of that part of the arid region of the public lands of the United States which could be improved by general systems of irrigation and all lands which might thereafter be designated or selected by the United States survey as sites for reservoirs, ditches or carals in such systems. It voirs, ditches or cannis in such systems. It was the purpose of congress by this act to suspend all rights of entry upon any lands which would come within the improving operation come within the improving operation of the plans of irrigation to be reported by the director of the geological survey under this act. The language could hardly be stronger than are the words of the act ex-pressing this intention. Entries should not pressing this intention. Entries should not be permitted, therefore, upon any part of the arid regions which might possibly come within the operation of this act."

The general effect of this opinion, if the law is not modified, will be to reserve from settlement and entry practically the whole of the great arid regions of the west. The secretary in his letter suggests that if congress does not fully concur in the purposes of the law, it should take the business in hand at once to so modify it as it may doem that the purpois fractions. it as it may deem that the public interests re-

BACON'S PROPOSAL.

His Offer for Baltimore's Interest in the Baltimore & Ohio.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 3.—The offer made by E. R. Bacon of New York, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, for the purchase of the city Baltimore & Ohio railroad stock was mrde for himself and his as-sociation, who have formed a syndicate for the purpose of purchasing that stock and also that owned by Johns Hopkins' university of this city. In order to effect a sale it is necessary for the city council to authorize or approve its acceptance of such offer. Bacon's proposition of such offer. Bacon's proposition was not addressed to the finance committee, but to the mayor and city council. It was later submitted to the city council for their consideration. It has been referred to the consideration. It has been referred to the committee on ways and means and will be acted upon this week. If the city's stock is purchased by Bacon, it is certain that the Johns Hopkins' stock will also become the property of the syndicate.

Before commencing negotiations for the purchase arrangements were made between the syndicate and those at present controlling he syndicate and those at present controlling the Baltimore & Ohio railroad property for a permanent alliance upon a satisfactory basis. The syndicate being composed of prominent manufacturers and owners of railroad prop-erty residing at New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and Baltimore, it is believed the sale of the stock will not only be bene-ficial to this city, but that it will also largely inure to the benefit of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad property.

If the city council should reject Bacon's proposition the city will be remitted to the holding of a minority interest in the stock of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and the syndi-cate will withdraw from any further negotia-

Farmers' Alliance Meets at Huron. HURON, S. D., June 3 .- Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The sheep growers and wool growers meeting was largely attended. Colonel Geddes was chosen chairman and F. G. Stevens secretary. A valuable paper was read by Hon. C. A. Fowler on sheep industry. President McLouth of the state agricultural college spoke on farm economy. The address of welcome was by Hon. A. B. Melville and the response by Hon. J. B. Wagner of Faulk-ton. The state association will be organized tomorrow. Five hundred delegates to the Farmers' alliance convention tomorrow are now here. Much interest is manifested in the matter, the alliance naming a full set of legislative and congressional tickets. The delegates now here are pretty evenly divided. The solution of the question depends on the sentiments of the delegates to arrive tomorrow. Some of the leaders are determined to name a ticket, while others are just as de-termined that the alliance shall not dabble in olities, thus rendering the situation tonight very interesting.
