Omaha 7, Des Moines 3, And again the Black Sox win, as the sport would put it.

That makes two out of three, and if they can only keep up their lick today it will be three straight, something they have as yet failed to accomplish this year.

And what do you think! Omaha had young Mr. Galesburg of Martin, Ill., in the box, and he shut the Prohibitionists out

In fact, they didn't get a smell.

Fusselbach, however, came within a hair's breadth of saving their bacon by a trement dous long hit in the fourth inning. But Tommy Kearns was out there, and after out in left field, toward which the ball was salling line a rocket, he finally got under it and by a good jump caught it.

It was a great catch and the audience did not let up in their cheering for several min But a miss is as good as a mile, and by this marvelous play young Martin was enabled to leave the grounds with the enviable reputation of pitching an entire game against a heavy hitting team without giving them even the timest bit of a safe one.

The three runs Des Moines managed to secure were the product of bases on balls, and in this respect Martin was a little generous. He gave them eight. Hart, though, did the same for the Black Sox, besides hitting a man with the ball. man with the ball

So it was tit for tat on balls.

So it was tit for tat on balls.

Billy McKim, the new umpire, was in a measure responsible for this wildness on the part of the pitchers, for his judgment on balls and strikes was very topaz.

Omaha was first at the bat, and they found Billy Hart's curves anything but difficult to Canavan, without much delay, sent a safe one out into left, and Walsh a two-sacker into right, scoring Jimmy. Then Colonel Kearns duplicated Joe's hit, but was put out trying to make third on it—that is, the umpire called him out, but he was safe by a yard. L But what the umpire says goes, as you all probably know.

Well, Walsh got home any way on the play, and two carned runs wasn't so bad for his base on balls, but was doubled with Cleveland from Flanagan to Patton was quickly retired from Moran to Andrews, but Brimblecom went to first on balls, stole second, reached third on Flanagan's out from Cleveland to Andrews, and home on a wild pitch. Traffley struck out. Hart began the third by hitting Andrews, who went to second on Willis' out from pitcher to first, and on to third on a passed ball. Moran then hit to Macullar who endeavored allowing Moran to anchor safely on first to

That set the audience to cheering. Martin followed with a single, Canavan with a two-bagger and Walsh with his second safe one, Moran, Martin and Canavan And then the spectators cheered some more, for they again saw victory in the sum-Hart threw Kearns out at first, and the score stood 6 to 1.

The visitors' half was barren of results, as was the third for Omaha. In this inning the Prohibitionists added another score to their Canavan's fumble gave Hart a life. A passed ball let him round to third, and he scored on Patton's out from Cleveland to Andrews. Brimblecom got his base on halls and on Cleveland's high throw to first off Flanagan's hit he moved round to third, while Flanagan made first in safety, Cleveland then threw Traffley out and the results were not so serious after all

In the fourth Moran struck out, Martin made his second single, Canavan fanned, Walsh singled and Kearns flew out Macullar, and what looked very much like another run ended in a goose egg. Phelan went out on first on Cleveland's splendid throw. Then Fusselbach stepped to bat and made a great hit way out among the left field carriages. It looked like a homer, but Kearns was there, like the star spangled banner, as has been previously remarked, and made the star catch of the season. My, what a yell of delight there was when Tommy was seen climbing back of the car-riages, buggies and tally-ho coaches with the in his teeth. Clare then went to first on an error by Cleveland and Macullar on balls, but both were left, as Timmy Galesburg threw Hart out at first.

Both sides made a tally in the fifth. For the Black Sox Phalen got first on balls, as did Cleveland right after him. Then An-drews smote her for two sacks, and Phalen crossed the pan, while Elmer went to third. Willis was thrown out at first, and Cleveland grounder to Phalen, but the old man was too agile for him, and his temerity cost him his life. Martin perished in Partin Cost him his He tried to score on Moran's Martin perished in Fusselbach's throw

For the Iowans Patton was given first on four wide ones, and after Brimbleom's out to Andrews, reached second on Flanagan's sacrifice and home on a passed ball. Traffley also went to first on balls, but was left on second, which he neatly purloined, by reason of Phelan's out from Cleveland to Audrews And that ended the run-getting, as neither side could get a man round the bases in the next four innings.

But the thousand people—felt so happy that they gave Omaha another cheer.

It was a fine victory, and now for the third

LINCOLN'S SHOE MEASURE. A New York Dealer Exhibits It in His Window.

Ex pede Herculum! In a shop window in Broadway is displayed a nearly written card which bears this simple legend: 'Let this man come right in. A. Line coln." The date is December 12, 1864. Those were stirring times at Washing-ton, and "this man" must have been a very important personage to have received so imperative a passport to the white house, writes "The Lounger" in the New York Critic. The head of the secret service at least, one would say, if not some greater power than he. And in one sense it was a secret mission on which the bearer was permitted to enter the august presence of the president of the United States. For Mr. Lincoln, his record for manliness to the contrary, was in reality a "tendos 'oot," and "this man" was a shoemaker the wearing of whose handiwork was calculated to give relief to all who suffer from ill-fitting or ill-made boots. Of this noble army of martys Mr. Lincoln, it seems, was not the least, and the lead pencil tracings which the cobbler made on the memorable sion when he "came right displayed in the same frame with the passport, show that his feet, while normal as to size, were by no means free from those points from which signals of distress are wont to flash along innumerable nerves to the seat of con-Something of the might therefore be inferred from thesa simple charts of his lower extremities, et they hardly hint the giant stature of the great-minded, warm-hearted, but apparently not large-footed man, who oday stands next to Washington in the regard of the American people.

Nothing ever like it before, the slaughter in rices of hats, tocques and bonnets at Mrs. B. Louis', Musonic block.
