MRS. KNIGHT BEWAILS A HUSBAND'S LOSS

The Melancholy Termination of a Colored Picnic at Elkhorn and the Sad Closing of a Model Farmer's Life.

There is a weeping mother at 935 North Twenty-fifth street and a stricken widow at the corner of Thirteenth and Cass, while two dead bodies lie somewhere amougst the slime and the snake grass at the bottom of the Elkhorn river, near the beautiful plenic grounds

Tuesday the colored Masons of Omaha gave their annual picnic and in the early morning a special train of several coaches bearing nearly 200 colored people left the city for the grove mentioned. Everybody was happy and a jollier crowd never left Omaha for a day's outing.

They returned at 11:15 at night laden with sorrow, and leaving behind them dead two of the jolliest of their party.

Charles Fairfax and Ida Bruce, two of those attending the picnic, were drowned about 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon. From those who witnessed the catastrophe the particulars have been ascertained.

The recent rains had changed the usually tranquil Elkhorn into a raging torrent. The latter had overflown its banks until in many places the stream had become a quarter of a Opposite the Waterloo picnic grounds a rope had been placed across the river to aid in operating the ferry, and above this the excursionists had been boating, when suddenly a boat containing Charles Fairfax, Ida Bruce and a girl named Allen was swept down the stream, and, striking the rope, Fairfax and Miss Bruce immediately sank and never reappeared, probably being swept along beneath the surface by an undertow. The Allen girl, more fortunate than her companions, succeeded in grasping the rope and was rescued a few seconds later by a man named Wheeler and a bold fisherman, who had put off from the bank as soon as the accident happened.

A fruitless search was made throughout the remainder of the afternoon for the bodies, but night came on and the now saddened excursionists were compelled to return to

Omaha, leaving a few of their number at Waterloo to continue the search. The wife of Fairfax, the man who was drowned and the mother of the girl, and her sister also, who came here a few days ago from Kansas to spend her summer vacation she being a teacher in the public schools o that state, are completely prostrated with grief.

John Bruce, a brother of the girl, went to Waterloo yesterday to assist in the search for the bodies, Ida Bruce was a bright girl. She was one of the graduating class of the high school last year and received high tribute for the excellent essay she read on the defense of St. Michael by Tousaint L'Overture. Throughout her scholastic instruction here she did well and graduated with honors. She possessed much elecutionary ability and a short time before she met death she had assisted in entertaining her companions with Fairfax was a porter on the Pullman sys tem, running east from here on the B. & M. He was about thirty-five years of age, was popular among his fellows and stood well among all the colored people of Omaha.

The body of Miss Bruce was recovered late yesterday afternoon. It was found three-quarters of a mile from where it went down, in a pile of drift wood, and shipped to Omaha on Union Pacific passenger train No. 6. A force of men are dragging the river for the body of Charles Fairfax, the other unfor-tunate. The river is raising rapidly.

Suicide of A. B. Knight.

Yesterday morning at between 4 and 5 o'clock the body of A. B. Knight was found suspended with a rope around the neck from a beam in his mow on his farm at Irvington, ten miles from this city. The discovery was made by one of Mr.

Knight's farm hands and immediately comnicated to the dead man's relatives and friends. Word was also brought to Coroner Harrigan by a young man named Stecker.

The amouncement shocked the little community, where nothing of the kind had been expected, at least by the majority of the peo-ple who had long known the deceased. Mr. Knight was about fifty years of age and had resided in the neighborhood about thirty years, having entered upon his land as a homestead many years ago. He was a brother of B. P. Knight, ex-commissioner of Douglas. He leaves a widow and four children some of whom have grown to manhood and womanhood. His eldest son, Edward, is a civil engineer in the employ of the B. & M. Another son, Arthur, is a member of the graduating class of the high school. A graduating class of the high school. Mr. Knight was considered a model farmer, and the farm which he worked was considered one of the most valuable in the state. He was in comfortable financial circumstances, and there was no cause to be assigned for the rash act save mental derangement. The poor man has of late been noticed to act strangely, and at times without provocation to be in tears. These peculiarities were noticed a few days ago by Mrs. Sheriff Boyd, who was paying a visit to the family. Coroner Harrigan held an inquest at the house yesterday afternoon. The testimony developed the following: Mr. Knight had been complaining for some time of severe pains in his head and was very despondent. His crop had not been as pros-perous as usual, and the last storm did con-siderable damage. He was frequently in tears and acted in a peculiar manner at His condition was attributed to an attack of the la grippe last winter, but as he had a similar attack of despondency about a year ago there seems to be no connection with the la grippe. An uncle of Mr. Knight's, on his mother's side, committed suicide before the family moved to Nebraska from Massachu-

Mr. Knight was fifty-seven years old last December, and was a kind husband and an indulgent father. No family difficulties had marred the peaceful married life of the happy Yesterday morning Knight arose earlier than usual after a restless night and went out of the house. About 6 o'clock the youngest son, Arthur, aged about twenty-one years, went to the barn with the hired man, C. Shep-herd, to feed the stock.

Young Knight remained below while Shepherd went into the mow for some hay. As he climbed up he saw Mr. Knight standing, as he thought, near the hay. Another glance, how-ever, showed the truth and he jumped down again to tell young Knight. He then jumped on a horse and flew to the nearest neighbor, Frank B. Hibbard, a brother-in-law of the elder Knight. Hibbard at once started for cene, while So to Brewster's. while Shepherd continued on his

In 1880, when the old frame buildings were

This has had its effect upon the attendance because in 1888 the enrollment was 504. In

Resolved, That in this melancholy event the republic has lost a loyal servant. His eminent career in the public service best attests his abilities. During his three terms in congress he attained, easily and by reason of his unaided abilities, a position of commanding influence. He was advanced from that station to a seat among the ministers of state. At last he came to the great office of magistracy, in which we best knew him. Such a career of public service has been trodden by no man upon whom the highest gift of intellect and character have not been bestowed by the Creator.

The pupils wore black sashes over their white dresses and black gloves—oven the dainty little programmes, bordered in black and silver, were elequent tributes to him whose memory they honored.

The exercises were very short, the chief feature being the conferring of the highest literary honors on the eight graduates, some of whom have followed the fortunes of the Sacred Heart since its advent in Omaha.

They are:
Miss McCreary, one of its three first pupils who, last year, won the gold medal for music. Miss Lowe, the valedictorian, daugh-ter of General W. Lowe of this city, who was so fortunate as to carry off the essay medal which is annually awarded for the best English composition. Miss Haney Ottis merited the Christian doctrine medal which the late lamented bishop presented every year as his own gift, to the pupil most proficient in the study of religious dogma and the evidences of Christianity. Her sister, Miss Nora Ottis, both of Humphrey, Neb., has achieved great excellence in art, and re-ceived, besides her graduating honors, the prize for exemplary conduct, a sumptuous quarto volume, richly bound and illustrated.
Miss Katie Creighton, second daughter of Mr.
J. D. Creighton of this city, read the beautiful "In Memoriam" tribute to the memory of the bishop, and received the gold medal for lady-like deportment. Miss O'Keefe who has passed four years at the academy, is a niece of Mayor Cushing, and is distinguished for her Mayor Cushing, and is distinguished for her varied accomplishments. Miss Stephenson, daughter of Mr. James Stephenson of this city, won, besides a medalion for deportment, the gold medal for success in the study of the French language. Miss Lee of Fremont, Neb., was a graduate of the high school of that city, but finding her education incomplete, entered the regular course at Park Place which has bestowed on her its highest honors. its highest honors.

The memory of the just shall be eternal.—Ps.

"The Speeding Arrow and the Divided Air" was the suggestive thought upon which the young valedictorian built her able rhetorical essay, and a most beautiful analogy skil-fully worked out was the result of her labor. She referred to the eight young lives which were that day to go forth, arrow-like, on paths as rapid as they are unknown—forth to aims and ends no earthly forethought can divine. What wish more natural than that these darts, leaving the quiver this fair June day, may exercise their potency for good alone, and not only pierce the target's eye themselves, but lead all who have intercourse with them to strike the aim and thus fulfil their destiny,

After the valedictory and a pretty musical intertude followed the general distribution of premiums. These were valuable and costly oks of which a large number of pupils re ceived a goodly share.

Miss Pundt was awarded the prize for success in all her studies, Miss McShane the gold medal for music, Miss A. Mullen the prize for politeness amongst the juniors and Miss Meyer for perfect order. "The Palms Across the River" was a most touching and beautiful tribute to the memory of him whom the pupils of Park Place so justly called their friend, their father. The fair speaker, who for years has experienced the kindness and paternal interest of the bishop, drew a telling picture of a band of pilgrims pressing through the Holy Land. One of them has gone far in advance of his companions and, crossing Israel's sacred stream before them, has found rest under the palm trees. He looks back at the wayfarers painfully wending their way to the river's brink. He smiles encouragement and waves a white signal of cheer from the broad branches of victory. The travelers call a halt. They estimate the distance that separates them from him. They pause awhile to ponder on the journey stretching before them across the plain and on the friend awaiting them. Such a pause arrested the steps of these favored children on the day when, in other years, the mild voice that was ever ready to applied their simple successes could reach them only from the distant shore. "But his memory lives and will ever live in the annals of Park Place, the tear-dimmed eyes of his children will see him beyond the fast rolling river under the palms with God."

A fitting close to the refined and elogant programme was the the selemn and beautiful programme was the the solemn and beautifu trio and chorus, "Thy Will be Done." The instrumental music was spirited in character emphatic and heart-stirring in execution and of a kind that must be heard with the under

The art exhibition, including about seventy pieces of excellent work in crayon, pencil, water colors and oil was very creditable to the gifted young artists who, without detriment to their studies in the regular course, found time to cultivate the lighter accomplishments with such marked success.

"THE QUEEN OF TABLE WATERS."

NOTICE.

Within less than a year three different Judges have granted Injunctions protecting the well-known Yellow APOLLINARIS LABELS from infringement.

The last defendant used an oval yellow label and a yellow neck label on Mineral Water, and employed eminent Counsel who vigorously defended the suit. The Supreme Court, when granting the injunction, expressed the opinion that bottles of other Mineral Water put up with orange coloured labels may well be mistaken for Apollinaris at a short distance and without close inspection.

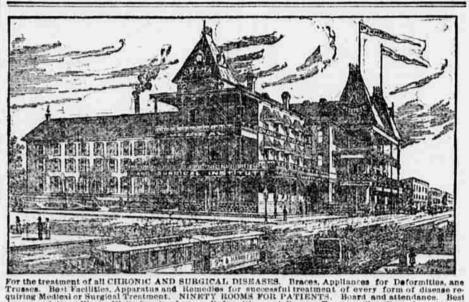

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

KING OF COCOAS -- "ROYAL COCOA FACTORY."

Kings are but men, but all men are not kings. Therefore, when the King of Holland says, as he did by deed of August 12, 1889, that he is greatly pleased with and, entirely unsolicited, grants the manufacturers the sole right of styling their works the Royal Cocoa Factory, a significance attaches to the act which would not were he not "every inch a king."

VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA,
