The Dodge Light Guards' party at Manawa last evening was a great success. There were about seventy-five couples in attendance, and the boys neited nearly $25 for the company fund. Dancing, boating and re-freshments were the order of the evening. It is safe to say that these lake parties will soon be very popular, and it is right that they should be.

Dan Ferguson, the park policeman stationed at Big Lake park has shut down on seining in the lake, and on Wednesday night discovered John Sterling engaged in fishing there by wholesale. The policeman appro-priated the net and turned it over to the park commissioners. Owing to numerous other attractions in the city last evening, there was a small audience in the Young Men's Christian association rooms last evening to hear the lecture of Mr. Fred Loomis on "The Growth of Culture." The lecture was very interesting and was thoroughly appreciated by those present. The lecture was illustrated by stereopticon views thrown upon a screen by Mr. C. H. Judson. After the lecture, ice cream was served. A small sum was netted for the Young Men's Christian association and the Chantanona circle Chautauqua circle.

Work was commenced yesterday cleaning out the waterworks reservoir at the head of Glen avenue. The gate into the sewer was opened, and the reservoir will be emptied by tonight. It was deemed unwise to throw the gate wide open for fear that the sewer would not be able to carry all the water and would overflow. The sides of the reservoir were not found to be in an unusually bad condition, there being simply a deposit of about half an inch of pulverized kaolin, which was readily washed down with a hose. During the next day or two water will be furnished direct from the pumping station.

As a Herald correspondent congratulated his excellency upon looking twenty years younger than in 1885 when he went to exile, he pointed to a stack of dispatches upon his desk and said : "Good news frome home has made me young again. I am glad to make the good news known to the world through the Herald, which is so much read and respected in our countries, and, unlike the majority of North American dailies, always deals with our political changes with such profound savoir and disinterestedness. A resolution, marked with as little bloodshed as possible, has taken place in San Salvador. General Menendez, who during my absence usurped my power, is dead; his partisan, General Marzial, who endeavored to oppose the popular upheaval with an armed force, has been killed and his men routed; General Carlos Czeta, a patriotic soldier and statesman, who has the good wishes of all friends of the republic, has been proclaimed president of the provisional government, a general amnesty has been declared and I have been invited to retarn immediately to my country. These are facts. There seems some diversity of opinion as to the manner in which General Menendez met his death, and unfortunately on this point my information is not quite clear. Of one thing only, however, I am certain, and that is his death was subsequent and did not precede the revolution -which, by the way, did not come in the least as a surprise to those who had been following closely the course of events in San Salvador. Since February last the whole country, disgusted with Menendez' arbitrary and despotic rule, has been in a state of ferment and excitement, during which he had shot more than two hundred political opponents. The beginning of the end came about two months ago, when he probably saw his game was up. I do not believe the story printed of his death from apoplexy while presiding over a banquet given to celebrate the anniversary of my exile from power. I think this story must be the invention of some believer in poetic justice in my dispatches. I believe that, seeing his course was run, he either committed suicide or along with General Marzial, in endeavoring to withstand the popular reaction and indignation with his regime, was killed.

AMUSEMENTS.

The wonderfully clever war drama, "Shenandoah," was played at Boyd's opera house again last night. Against weather about thirty degrees too hot for indoor amusements. high school graduating exercises, and many other counter ottractions it drew a fairly large and very excellent audience. Of course the play itself is a powerfully strong drawing card, but doubtless a large majority of those present last night were there more out of curiosity regarding the company than any? thing else, They wanted to see and size it up with the combination that first produced Mr. Howard's great creation here. It was quite amusing as well as inter-esting to hear the expressions of opinion, and here. It was quite amusing as well as inter-esting to hear the expressions of opinion, and neurly every spectator had something to offer. "I don't think they are near as good as the other company," said a very sweet faced lady after having intently watched the performance. "In my opinion they are much better," ventured her husband. "At least they suit me better." "What do you know about acting anyway!" inquired the wife rather sharply. She evidently felt annoyed at having her judg-ment questioned. "I don't care what you say," she continued. "The old gon-eral is not half as good as he was before." This was rather a hard rub on Frank Bur-beck, who is playing General Haverhill, and shows that the lady hardly admires quiet, dignified, impressive action in the midst of terrific fighting and violent love-making. "And what do you think of Heary Miller as Colonel Kerchival West? Do you think he is as good as Frank Carlisle? I don't." This to the writer. "There's hardly any difference between them. Carlysle looked and acted the part magnificently. So does Miller. Should you select three judges to award a medal, however, it would probably be given to Miller." "What makes you think so?" "Well, his methods are somewhat different; not quite so much on the melodramatic order, and diverter just a little more pleasing. ity insures them to last a lifetime. He seems to have finer appreciation of the character and throws deeper expression into the sentiment." "O, you men are bound to have everything your own way; so what's the use of me wasting my breath!" Never-theless, this fair critic finally made up her mind that as a whole the present company is a few shades ahead of the one that was here last March. Some allowance had to be made a few shades ahead of the one that was here hast March. Some allowance had to be made for the listless condition of everybody on ac-count of the heat. Owing to the severe ill-ness of Miss Odette Tyler, her part, that of Gertrude Ellingham, had to be taken by Miss Dorothy Dorr, who regularly plays Miss Constance Havehill. Miss Katherine Gray was her substitute in that role. But to the audience this change was not percentible.
