After Months of Suffering.

Thousan's Mourn the Loss of a Friend Constant and True-A Brief Sketch of His Life.

Death has dropped its veil of mystery down upon the life drama of another of Omaha's well known citizens-Richard Kitchen.

The end came at 1:30 yesterday morning, after having been preceded by many months made long and sorely wearisome by suffering.

More than a ago Mr. Klitchen became the victim of a nervous disability, from which he never afterward could obtain relief. A man of great will power, and possessed of indom-Itable perseverence, he made herculean resistance against the aggressive power, but only to find himself baffled, and each month the holder of less chances for success than ever. Last August brother, Mr. J. B. Kitchen, prevailed upon him to permit of his removal to Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Md., in the hope of gaining relief. The sick man had been there but a little while when the physicians of that celebrated institution inphysicians of that celebrated institution in-formed Mr. J. B. Kitchen that the case baffled their skill. In September the invalid returned to Omaha—to die. He was the last man in the world to allow any fuss being made over him, and for this reason he permitted himself to be wheeled about the office of the hotel in an invalid's chair but a few times Soon after returning here he took to his bed

Through all his long and trying illnesss the Through all his long and trying illnesss the sufferer has been the constant care of his brother, Mr. J. B. Kitchen, and wife, both of whom have sacrificed themselves upon every and all occasions to their brother's comfort, affording him all the attention which a loving solicitude and wealth could suggest.

For some time prior to his death Mr. Kitchen was unconscious, and it was in that state that the final summons found him.

Although the end has been anticipated, yet it comes with stinging force, particularly to his lifelong, constant companion, Mr. J. B. Kitchen, the brother. It was with a voice choked with grief and eyes filled with tears that the latter spoke of how he and "Dick" had loved and stuck close and constant to each other ever since they were barefooted boys at other ever since they were barefooted boys at their mother's knee. In all their extensive business partnership from early manhood business partnership from early mannood into old age they never kept an account of any kind whatever between themselves. Their earnings have always gone into a single account and both drew thereon for whatever they needed. They were never separated from each but for a very brief season at a time, and where one went the other would account him.

Richard Kitchen was born in Jefferson county, Missouri, December 28, 1835. In 146 he removed to northern Missouri and later to Kansas, when that state was opened. He drifted to New Mexico in 1856, then to Colorado, Utah and Wyoming. He came to Omaha in 1878 and opened the Withnell house. In 1881 he and his brother, Mr. J. B. Kitchen, commenced the Paxton hotel, which was finished during the succeeding year, and has always been and is now the property of its projectors. For years, in the early days, Mr. Kitchen was prominently identified with the heavier freighting business across the plains and taking government contracts. It was while thus engaged that he laid the foundations for the very handsome fortune which he now leaves.

Mr. Kitchen never married, but a mother,

The remains were viewed by hundreds of old friends yesterday afternoon as they lay in a draped chancellor casket at the Paxton hotel. At 9:40 last evening they were taken to Leavenworth, Kan., to be laid beside those of Mr. Kitchen's father and other deceased members of the family. The pail-bearers were Hon, W. A. Paxton, L. A. Tower, Colonel Stanton, U. S. A., Dr. Lee, Lew Hill, G. E. Pritchett, J. D. Dadesman and J. R. Speaking of the deceased, Hon. W. A. Pax-n said: "I have known Dick Kitchen for thirty years. He was as good a man as the sun ever shone upon. A bigger, truer hearted friend no man ever had than he who was befriended by Dick Kitchen. He had friends, and thousands of them, wherever he went, and he made them on his merits as a real gentieman, a splendid man. He had fine business qualifications and was welcome whenever and wherever he went."

wherever he went,"

Mr. A. B. Davenport, well known as one of the leading botel men of this country, and at present chief clerk at the Barker, spoke of having been associated with Mr. Kitchen for two years when the latter kept the Pacific, at St. Joseph. Mr. Davenport says that he never met a broader minded, more thoroughly noming or kinder hearted may then Kichnel pular or kinder hearted man than Richard while as a hotel man he stood at the head of his profession.

Ida Bruce Laid at Rest.

The African Methodist Episcopal church was not large enough by half to hold the crowd of people that thronged to it yesterday afternoon to attend the funeral of Ida Bruce the unfortunate colored girl that was drowned at a picnic held at Waterloo by the colored Masons last week.

Masons list week.

It was one of the most extensively attended funerals ever held in Onaha, In addition to the hundreds of friends of the young lady among the colored people of the city, a large number of white folks who had known her, including many members of the class in the high school of which she was a member, were present. The remains were encased in a handsome rose colored casket, which was literally cov-ered with floral tributes.

The long immersion in water had told upon the body, but the face was yet distinguish-

The sermen was an eloquent one. The preacher spoze of what the girl had accomplished in the literary field against overwhelming odds, and more particularly of the work she had done in the vineyard of the Father by teaching in the Sunday school.

The members of the Sunday school class sat ammediately in front of the casket, all wearing white badges. Tears started in all their eyes when the reference was made to the loving attention of their dead teacher. the loving attention of their dead teacher.

Miss Reed, a member of the dead girl's class in school, read a memorial poem, and then the remains were borne away to Forest Lawn cometory and laid to everlasting rest.

The pall bearers were M. L. Wilson, S. G.

The services were conducted by Rev. A. R. Thain of the church. From the fourteenth chapter of St. John he selected the second verse: "In my Father's house are many mansions, if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you," and from these words spoke a few tender words of comfort; told of the love of the Savior who had gone to intercede for man at the throne of the Father. He spoke of the love for children of Him who had said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me."

New Map of Nebraska. E. C. Bridgeman of 84 Warren street, New York, is the publisher of a new rallroad and township map of the state of Nebraska which presents certain features of excellence which are not to be found in other maps. The scale of the map is six miles to the inch, and this expands the surface to the ample dimensions of five feet eleven inches by six feet six inches, and it is withal as handsome as the improved facilities for engraving, printing, coloring and mounting a work of such magnitude can make it. Another feature of excellence is the newness of many of its details. It is not made from older maps and tables that have become antiquated, but the newest facts and the most recent results are presented in its geography and tabular state-ments. It has a geographical map of the state as per state geographical survey, a cli-matological map of the state, and four large and effective vignettes of the state capitol, state university, industrial college and state normal school. Being colored in counties and subdivided in townships, it is admirably adapted for use in schools, and seems to be what some school authorities have in vain tried to obtain. Local geography has been imperfectly taught, and the introduction of a map like this would mark a new era in the map like this would mark a new era in the study of the subject, as most pupils leave school with a better knowledge of the location of foreign countries than of the counties almost adjoining their own. Every child should have the geography of this state indelibly impressed on his mind. It ought to be introduced into our schools in place of the small, dingy, antiquated maps from which they are trying to learn the geography of their state. On the small maps towns, rivers, railroads and county lines present such a dim their state. On the small maps towns, fivers, railroads and county lines present such a dim and blurred appearance that the average pupil is more likely to be repelled than attracted. The map is Bridgman's new railroad and township map and is reasonable in price, and a few good men are wanted to help in supplying the schools of the state. Marshall Coe, Lincoln, Neb., is the sole agent.

A Lively Runaway.

While a farmer with his wife and bables was driving out Twenty-fourth street yesterday afternoon his team became frightened at a passing motor, and taking the bits in their mouths started out at a furious pace, stilling the children along the street for a distance of a couple of blocks. The team was stopped and after getting his load once more in shape the man pursued his homeward way. There were no injuries sustained, other than a few bruises which the children received by sud-denly coming in contact with the sidewalk. The man refused to give his name, but stated that he lived near Florence.

OMAHA'S SHARP SHOOTERS.

They Return from the Davenport Tournament Covered with Glory. The members of the Omaha Schuetzer. verein who went to Davenport to attend the contest of sharpshooters, returned home last night covered with glory and dust. Seventeen of the Omaha club were in the party, and they won trophies which were doubly valuable when it is considered how great were the odds against the Omaha men. There were about four hundred contestants present, and all of them except the Omaha team used the hip rest and hair triggers.

The Omaha men shot off-hand and with a three-pound pull. It is customary in cases of that kind to give the off-hand shots 33) per cent, but it was not done in this case In view of this fact the scores made by the Omaha team were really one-third better than the official record shows them to be. In shooting at the "bull's-eye" target, where none but center shots counted, Herman Stockman and Edward Paulsen of the Omaha team each won a gold modal. These medals were given to those who scored 300 points on this target. Herman Stockman and George Karll were awarded the two main prizes on the union target. It is not known what these prizes were, as the official score had not been com-pleted when the Omaha team started for

All those present complimented the Omaha team highly on their work, and acknowledged that if they were to use the rest and hair trigger they would excel all the others.

The Omaha party had a special sleeper and slept in it while in Davenport. The weather was extremely hot and several cases of sunstroke were reported. The Omaha team, however, managed to keep comfortable in their sleeper and did not suffer from the heat.
