IT WAS A TITANIC STRUGGLE.

The Council and School Board Collide on the Baseball Field.

SOME WONDERFUL PLAYS AND DECISIONS.

Umpires Cushing and Goodrich Declare the Game a Draw and Narrowly Escape a Mobbing -The Score.

There are various circumstances that may be named as producing a feeling of sublimity. but none of them would dare be mentioned upon the same day with the rare display of athletic culture that was made at the baseball park vesterday afternoon.

It was a game of baseball. The City Council worsus the Board of Eddycashun," as Councilman Olsen informed the sporting editor while on the cable en route for the grounds. The proceeds, and they were wofully atten unted, are to be donated to the sufferers of the recent Bradshaw cyclone. Recount your stories of Greek prowess

They wouldn't make a marker for yesterday's blood-curdling struggle.

The Panhellenic games brought for ward men who had been in training for great periods for special feats. The honors awarded ere so great that no amount of practice and certion were deemed too considerable. exertion were deemed too considerable. Given the same training, such modern athletes as Councilmen Tom Lowry, Blumer, Ostoff, Olsen and Morcarity and Educators Points, Carl Webrer, Sam Rees, C.

F. Goodman and A. H. Sander would preatly surpass the Greek records.
These all-round, self-acting modern Leroes would have astonished an audience at Olympiad. And as for the matter of phy sique, who in those early ages could compare with Ostoff. Plate tells us that the sculptors took considerable liberty in departing from the actual form of the model. But could they have selected the types for their chisels from Omaha's municipal legislature or educa-tional aggregation, exaggeration would have seen an impossibility.

Ifter viewing yesterday's flerce contest, with its unexampled and matchless athletes, It would be pedantic cowardice that proclaims we are going physically backward.

And the umpires—Mayor Cushing and Charlie Goodrich—could the olden sculptors but have looked upon those human forms divine, in all their aldermanic rotundity and symmetry, behind the bat and behind the pitch symmetry, bening the bat and behind the pitch-er's box, like a pair of Apollo Belvideres, they would have ground their chisels into razors and cut their throats with them out of sheer impotency to shapen the snowy marble into anything that even favored them

Again it is said there are various circumstances calculated to enliven all that is sublime in one's nature, but none, or all of them together, could produce the feelings which were brought into existence by yesterday's Titanic struggle.

Gaze upon the wide extended plains of our own beloved Nebrasica, to which the eye can see no limit, or at the firmament of heaven, the mildest, the deepest, the highest object in all nature, and the lip curls with contempt on comparing these objects with the vastness of the battle, "The City Council worsus the Board of Eddycashun!

Stand beside the railroad track, out in the open country, and watch a monster locomotive, with its enormous burden, sweeping by at the rate of fifty miles an hour, shaking the earth as it passes, and the impression of power is not half so strong as that experi-enced on witnessing Mayor Cushing engaged in his umpirical duties!

Contemplate the gigantic, ponderous steam hammer, weighing many tons, as it is swayed up and down, with its resistless mass, as though a mere plaything in the hands of a child—and that sight, which even surpasses the wildest imaginings of the labors of Vul-can and the Cyclops, will be as a worm to a bon constrictor when viewed by the same mind that encounters Charlie Goodrich behind the home plate!

Earthquakes, thunder and lightning, volcanoes, cataracts, darkness, solitude and silence; the hoary mountain, the solitary lake, the aged forest or the deserted ruin—these, none of these, nor all combined, could could the feeling awakened by beholding equal the feeling awakened by beholding Lawyer Points in the pitcher's box. Oh, for a fitting apotheosis to this Egyptian pyramid of grandeur, this Niagara of sub-limity, this Leaning Tower of majesty, as presented by these two Herculean teams upon the field of battle!

The war horse, as described in the book o

Job falls short of the eminence reached by Carl Wehrer in mask and catcher's gloves. But for the fray.

After a prolonged wrangle over the momentous question whether Shortstop Olsen of the Councilmanic team should be allowed to hold an umbrella over himself during the progress of the game, during the progress of the game, Umpires Cushing and Goodrich decided in his favor, and the opposing in his favor, and the opposing forces took their positions, with the Eddycators at the bat.

Gladlator Points was the first to wield the the club. He made three blood-thirsty stabs at the whirling sphere, as rotated from Tom Lowry's deft right hand, and then as he started for first, after Shriver had missed his third strike, the schoolastic claquers set up a great howl. In his frantic flight toward first, however, his plug fell off, and he stopped to recover it, and was put out. Shriver had gotten the ball, and giving it to a little boy, the lad ran with it to First Base-man Chaffee, and Umpire Cushing, swelling up like a Fourth of July Balloon, cried:

"You're put way out, "ir."
"He's not way out," ejaculated Captain Wehrer; "you beat Broatch, but I'll give you to understand you don't beat us!" Then the concourse whooped with a control of the mayor, and the battle waxed warmer

Shriver missed Wehrer's third strike too and Carl perched upon first, and a lot of fans under the right wing of the grand stand played a lively tarantella upon a lot of empty

H. T. Clarke was so busy patching up his political fences that he hired Janitor Geiselnan of the Hartman school to act as his substitute, and Geiselman was the next to bat. The first thing he did was to knock a fowl a regular shanghai, over the grand stand, and while a lot of little boys chased it down the alley Wehrer made the circuit of the bases with the first "Dot's what I call base ball plays!" and Carl laughed until the back of his head bumped against his spinal column.

Piper hit a little fly, which was real mean in him, for it was too puny and too young to defend itself, and Piper is quite a big man. Kaspar ran in from second and caught the injured insect by both wings, but while he was struggling with it, Mr. Clarko's proxy ran home and Piper reached first.

Cushing and Goodrich both said he was out, though, because Kaspar had only dropped the little wounded fly once, and one run had been made on the hit already, and that was all they were entitled to.

Piper was very wrathy at the decision, and had a notion to kiek, but it was too warm, so he walked over to the lemonade barrel and took a drink of water and sat down.

Babcock, who was on hand, but not in the game, wanted to read a lengthy legal opinion on the points of the game, but the councilmen threatened to sit down upon him, so he crawled back into the grand stand and conti ned his whittling.

The next batter up was Sam Rees, and Lowry didn't seem to like him very well, so he just plugged him in the back with the

"Ouch!" exclaimed Samuel, as he shook his mane, and hopped around the plate on one leg.

"Yeu're out," called out Umpire Goodrich, "you're out,"

"Is that right!" enquired Captain Wehrer.

"You betcherlife it is; I know my basiness," answered Goodrich, and the teams changed sides.

Debute plug and all, was in the box for the Points, plug and all, was in the box for the school board, with Wehrer as the backstop.

Surver was the first to lead off for the council and he did it nobly. The first ball pitched he hit square in the neck and it went sailing, sailing, sailing, almost to second base, and while Piper and Coryell and Geiselman and Points were floundering around in the dust with the ball under them, Piper made a home run Goodness: What a shout arose then. You could have heard it five miles away if you had been a couple of hundred yards from the Lowry hit a ball through Geiselman, and while Geiselman was plugging up the hole with muliculeaves. Tom stole second, third and home, and if the Twenty-eight club had been there he would have stolen that, too.

Then everybody cried, "Hurrah for Thomas Lowry!"

Chaffee hit the next ball an awful blow and it rolled clear up to the pitcher's feet, but he was only able to make third base on it. He came home on Kaspar's foul, Cushing de-claring that a man could score on a foul if the ball didn't hit the umpire.

Ostoff followed with a home run over the grand stand, and Morearty went to first while Pitcher Points was at the water tank. Pitcher Points was at the water tank.
Goodrich said it was all right.
Umpire Cushing came in from the diamond at this juncture and said the Councilmen had been at the bat long enough and the School Board ought to have another chance.
Lowry and Ostoff and Olsen kicked hard against this rotten decision and declared they'd die right there before they'd go out.
The mayor ways un the dust and swore rey d die right there before they d go out.

The mayor tawed up the dust and swore o'd call out the fire department and put mem out if they delayed the game any ager, and so the teams changed sides.

And thus the great struggle continued, and finally, just as the little stars were showing their shy faces in the darrening expanse above, the game came to a close, the umpires declaring, in spite of the fact that the Coun-cilmen had made twenty more runs than the School Board, that the fight was a draw.

THE INTERESTING STORY OF A CRIME.

Census Returns Give Hastings 13,630 -Storm Damages at Overton and Ulysses-The Crete Chautauqua Programme.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., June 30.—[Special to The Bee.]—Walter Hardin, one of the convicts selected for pardon on the Fourth of July, was sent to the penitentiary from this city for a murder committed in 1874. His crime was at the time considered one of the most brutal ever committed in the state. While traveling on French creek, in the southern part of the state, Hardin and W. H. Dodge met James McGuire, who was driving a horse and wagon. They accompanied McGuire for a short distance and then killed him, putting a weight about his body and sinking it in the creek. They then took the horse and wagon and drove into Kansas, where they were arrested on suspicion of being horse thieves.

this county, learned of the murder and fol-lowed the trail of Hardin and Dodge and found them in a Kansas jail. He brought them safely and alone to this city, where they had their trial. Dodge pleaded not guilty, but was tried and sentenced to be hanged. Hardin confessed his guilt and was Pittsauno, Pa., June 30.-A prize fight entenced to the penitentiary for twenty-

A short time after the trial a mob broke into the county jail for the purpose of lynching Dodge, but he was secure in an iron cage, which the mob-could not break open, so they then riddled him with bullets through the grating, and then dispersed.

Cowhided Him. FREMONT, Neb., June 30.—[Special to THE BEE.]—Harvey Chalmers is a large, preposessing man, with flowing whiskers, who lives at North Bend, but who has been in Fremont for a week soliciting orders for fruit trees and shrubbery. During this period he has severa times passed the home of one William G. Meanor, night engineer on the Elkhorn road who has a handsome wife. The fruit tree agent also called at the house two or three been apprised of the actions of Chal-mers took a lay off for a day or two, and was also there. It was Saturday evening a little before 6 o'clock that Chalmers came up to th porch, opened the screen door and walked in Mrs. Meanor got up in a startled manner from the chair in which she sat. Chalmers dumped his bulk into it. Meanor saw the intruder through a half open door and began preparations for hostilities. He strapped a rawhide to his wrist and stepped into the presence of Chalmers. The latter was informed that his intrusions in that household were at an end and that he would be dealt with according to his deserts. Thereupon the irrte husband began to play his rawhide upon Chalmers in a vigorous manner, castigating nim most unmercifully He then led Chalmers up to the police head quarters by the whiskers and swore out a complaint against him, charging him with using insulting language to his wife. The case came up this afternoon, but at the re quest of the complainant it was dismissed. Meanor had come to the conclusion that Chalmers had been severely enough punished. Suicided by Drowning.

FREMONT, Neb., June 30.—[Special to Tru Bee.]-Abram Rohr, a farmer living two miles nor hwest of this city, committed suicide by drowning himself in the Rawhide Saturday evening. For some time Mr. Robi has been living with his three children, and on Saturday evening during a storm, without speaking to any of them, he went out of doors and disappeared. It was at first thought that he had gone to the barn, but as thought that he had gone to the barn, but as he did not appear again it was afterwards supposed that he went to a neighbor's. Sun-day morning the neighbors were visited and no trace of him found. His grands on then came to town thinking he would be found here, but not so. No particular alarm for his safety was yet felt. This morning, however the conclusion was

This morning, however the conclusion was arrived at that he had drowned himself in the Rawhide, a small creek flowing through his farm and which just now is greatly swollen by the rains. This suspicion was swollen by the rains. This suspicion was soon confirmed by the discovery of his hat a the creek. Neighbors came to the city to procure grappling hooks, but before their return the body had been found floating on the surface of the water and recovered. A coroner's jury was at once summoned and verdict of suicide returned. The deceased was about sixty-five year old. His wife died a few weeks ago and single that time, while passing the cemetery he has been known to remark on two on thre different occasions that he did not care ho soon he was buried beside his wife. The coroner's jury was of the opinion that he was

OGDEN, Utah, June 30.—|Special Telegram to The Bee.|—Ogden's carnival started out with a pretty large misfortune. A bigh wind came down out of the mountains this evening, and catching the great canvas roof of the carnival building, tore it to pieces. The top of the building was totally denuded, will be so far recovered during the night that yrogramme will go on of without interruption. The was gay with decorations, and many of these were demornized also.

The carnival concert came off tonight very successfully. The royal trains will reach the city at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning and will e received by a grand demonstration of mili tary and civic companies and artillery. The royal banquet will take place at 5 p. m., the coronation ecremony at 7, and reception at 8. Following this will be the cowboy ball, in which 200 cowboys will take part in cowboy costume. During the ball the boys will go through a grand stampede and round-up.

PERSONS SUSTAINED.

Mahonev's Opinion on South Omaha's School Board Muddle.

OMAHA, June 30.—To F. J. Persons, president of school board, South Omaha— Dear Sir: As I understand from your statement, the situation of affairs with regard to the position of secretary of school board of South Omaha is about this:

After the ruling of the county judge to the effect that Mr. Funston was locally elected as member of the school board, Mr. Funston qualified and was by the school board elected secretary of the board and commenced the dis-charge of his duties as such secretary.

Thereafter, but within the time allowed by law for taking an appeal, Mr. Carroll filed his appeal bond in the county court, which has the effect of superseding the judgment of the county court. After this appeal bond was filed Mr. Funston ceased to be entitled to act as a member of the school board until the case can be decided in the district court. You are therefore in this situation: A man whom you elected secretary of the board was at the time of his election legible to hold the office of secretary, but by reason of the appeal superseding the judgment of the county court he has ceased to be a member of the board and, therefore, to be eligible to the office of secretary. The office of secretary is, therefore in contemplation of law, at the present time vacant, and there is no person entitled to fill and discharge the duties of that office. In order that the business of the board may be transacted it will be necessary that your board elect another secretary, choosing as such secretary one of the members of the board, concerning whose right to sit as such there can be no question.

T. J. MAHONEY, County Attorney.

Some months ago the Don Carlos lun company, the chief stock in trade of which consisted of a name and a gaudy sign, opened out in business in this city. Out of this grew the Thomas lumber com-pany, which was incorporated on the 26th day of June with a capital of $15,000 divided among the stockholders, P. Martin, O. Thompson, S. Boyd and J. This company, so it is claimed, not only started a business boom in this city, but commenced operations in Sioux City, Kansas City, Denyer and Willow Springs, Mo. good address and flashy appearance.

The plan, it is charged, has been to have an office where notes, printed in due form save been manufactured and afterward sold The notes that bave already turned up are dated in Kansas City, and are made payable to the Don Carlos lumber company, signed by G. M. Griffin & Co. It is thought that these, to the amount of several thousand dollars, have been disposed of to the banks of the city.

Yesterday afternoon, after investigating the case, County Attorney Mahoney swore out a warrant charging Bellard with forgery and last night he was lodged in jail. When seen in his cell, he stated the whole affair was a mistake, and as soon as he could hear from Kansas City he could convince the people that there has been nothing crooked about his workings.

Coombs and Lint Acquitted. The case of the city against George Coombs and John Lint, who were arrested on a warrant sworn out by Garbage Master Morrisey, was tried by a jury in pelice court yesterday and the prisoners acquitted. The charge was that these two men have been hauling garbage on their own account, and in opposi-tion to the best interests of the city.

The evidence submitted showed that Coombs, as principal, visited the prin-cipal hotels and chop houses, where he bought the slops and garbage, and with man, John Lint, hauled the stuff to Cut island, where he fed it to his hogs. The held that after buying the garbage it was Coombs' own property, and that he had a right to haul it away and dispose of it as he

CHICAGO, June 30 .- [Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-The hot wave that for four days wafted over Chicago is unprecedented in the history of this city. Victims it claims by the core and that the fatalities have not run up into the hundreds is probably due to the promptness and perfect discipline of the health authorities. The resuscitation of an apparently dead man today furnishes an illustration. A police patrol came dashing around the corner and a man was carried in on a stretcher by four attendants. He was unconscious and sweltering under a temperature of 110°. He was rushed through the ward to the bath tubs, followed by the attending physician and six trained nurses. Meanwhile, in the midst of this rush and pull and hurry, an attendant took the temperature of the patient and when the last

He had been feeling for signs of life and strength and had found them not except in very feeble indications, and rising up he gave the simple order, "stimulate." Bond Offerings.

Washington, June 30.—[Special Telegram to The Bre.]—Bonds offered: $3,500 at $1.03. Prince Bismarck's state Secrets. Prince Bismarck has already begun tolivulge some of the secrets of diplomacy; which will, we may be sure, fill a con-siderable space in the forthcoming memoirs, says the London World. Among other startling statements which he communicated to the French journalist, Henri des Houx of the Matin, in a recent interview, there is one referring to England which will cause a good deal of surprise this country. According to Prince Bismarck, the Emperor Napoleon pro-posed to him in 1857 a combination between the navies of France and Prussia, for the purpose of "eliminating" the English dag from the Mediterranean. Several French diplomatists of eminence, notably the Due de Broglie and the Comte de Chaudordy, both of whom were well acquainted with the policy of Napoleon III., have publicly expressed their doubt as to the possibility of such a proposal having been made by him and it is worth recollecting that in 1957 the Prussian navy consisted of three war ships and ten gunboats. Is this an error of memory on the part of Prince Bismarck, or a slip on the part of his in-

A Present from the Pope.

The pope has recently conferred an unpurchased honor upon a very young Frenchman, says the London World. He has administered with his own hands the first communion to Antoine de Charette, the son of a well-known legitimist general. The holy father is very fond of the boy, and during the year of the papal jubilee he gave him leave to choose as a present anything he pleased from the innumerable offerings exhibited in the vatican. The child, instead of selecting one of the priceless gems or pictures presented the pope, took an almost worthless ornament which might have been bought in the Palais Royal for a few francs. Mme, de Charette, the gen eral's second wife, is an American. general, as is well known, is closely allied with the main branch of the Bour bons, he being the son of the Courtes Vierzon, who was the daughter of the Duc de Berri by Miss Brown, so Genera de Charette is the great grandson of the
