The Nonpareil force evidently had a celebration judging from the way its date lines showed up yesterday.

William Kelley, who threatened to kill himself or somebody else and was arrested a few days ago, was liberated from the city jail on Saturday night.

It may be prohibition in Iowa, but the tally shows 167 kegs of beer which went to Minden full the day before the Fourth, and looked very empty the day after.

John Burns of Lewis township, was arrested Saturday upon complaint of Mr. Barstew, one of his neighbors, that he was dangerously insane. He is in the county jail, and will have a hearing before the commissioners today.

John Gilbert, the plumber, has purchased the right to manufacture Charley Beckman's patent locking bracket fence. The genial one-armed inventor is filling a lucrative position in one of the departments at Washington City.

An Omaha drug journal, alluding to the fact that Arthur Cowle's residence here was recently visited by burglars who stole a suit of clothes, says that it serves Cowles right, for any druggist who can afford to have two suits of clothes ought to have one stolen.

Thomas Preston, the Union Pacific news agent who was arrested for flimflamming a farmer out of a few dollars, was released Saturday night on $800 bail, to appear this morning. A writ of habeas corpus was taken out to secure his release, and Judge Carson will hear the matter today.

Ivanhoe commandery, No. 17, K. T., has elected as its officers, Charles M. Harl, eminent commander; T. B. Hays, generalissimo; T. S. Couch, captain general; T. J. Mackay, prelate; J. B. Atkins, treasurer; H. A. Cox, recorder; T. B. Lacy, senior warden; J. H. Saffey, junior warden.

Mrs. Johnson, the woman who was so horribly burned by falling upon a cook stove in an epileptic fit, was still alive last night. Her physician, Dr. Jennings, is keeping her under the influence of opiates, and she is not conscious of her terrible condition, but there is no hope of her recovery.

John Winnefeller, a boarder at the Creston house, was gazing too intently at the circus parade on Saturday to note the approach of a street car. When it had knocked him off the track and passed he realized that something had happened. He was taken to Dr. Cleaver's office and the few bones left in the big toe of his right foot were skillfully removed.

F. M. Wilson of Templeton, Ia., who purchased ten acres of the finest portion of Palmer's grove at an average price of $1,580 per acre, is engaged in platting it and will soon have it ready for the market. City Engineer Tostevin is making the plat. The streets will be wide and straight, and when ready for the market it will be one of the finest additions to the city.

A horse and buggy was found on Fourth street yesterday without a driver. It was taken to the station by the police and it now quartered at Dohany's livery stable awaiting its owner to claim it and give an account of himself and pay the fine assessed for leaving a team on the streets without hitching. Another stray was also found on Upper Broadway and is quartered at the Ogden barn.

Kaplonek, who was arrested at his residence on Franklin avenue upon the complaint of his neighbors that he was dangerously insane and was endeavoring to kill his daughter, has been pronounced insane by the commissioners of insanity and sent to Clarinda. His home was formerly at Yankton, Dakota, and he was only temporarily stopping here. Unless he is taken from the asylum and returned to Dakota it is probable he will become a charge upon the county.

Detective Savage of Omaha came over yesterday and re-arrested the man Waterson who drove a horse and buggy from the Coliseum in Omaha to this city. He will be tried on the other side of the river upon the more serious charge of horse stealing. His real name is John Walters and he has been an employe of the Sells-Barrett circus. He was discharged in Omaha Saturday evening and immediately went forth and stole the horse and buggy. He had offered it for sale but had not found an instant purchaser, and for the purpose of keeping up his courage he drank too much whisky and became dead drunk.

Rev. Mr. Mackey of St. Paul's church has in times past expressed himself with his usual frankness on the prohibition question. Some of his anti-prohibition sentiments have been copied into papers published in the interests of the liquor business. While in no way responsible for such publications, prohibitionists from different parts of the country have been loading down his mail with marked copies of such publications, with comments of an insulting nature, charging him with being in the hire, or under the control of the saloons. Mr. Mackey is too well known to need any defense, and if there was such need he is brainy and plucky enough to fight his own battles. The nature of these anonymous and dirty flings at this clerical target shows the animus of those thus engaged.

The Day in the Churches.

Only at the morning hour was there even an ordinary summer attendance at the churches yesterday. The usual services were held in all the churches, but the members emphasized the fact that they were willing for their pastors to take a summer vacation by taking one for the day themselves.

At the First Methodist church, the pastor, Rev. D. C. Franklin, had a fair congregation, and preached a characteristic sermon from Paul's assurance to the Ephesians, "Godliness with contentment is great gain."

At the Fifth avenue Methodist church, Mr. A. A. Hart, the Broadway jeweler, who is superintendent of the Sabbath school, gave a very instructive and entertaining blackboard analysis of the thirteenth verse of first Corinthians. It was designed for the children of the church, but the older members became so much interested in it that the hour for morning service passed, and the analysis was continued in lieu of the sermon by the pastor, Rev. George Bennet.

In the other churches the regular pastors occupied the pulpits.

In nearly all of them the evening service was abandoned on account of the heat.

An Injustice.

Owing to some not very intelligible comments in a morning paper upon the resignation of Superintendent H. O. Cook and several other employes of the Union elevator in this city, the impression was created that the resignations had been called for on account of some dereliction of duty on the part of the gentlemen. The article drew from Mr. A. B. Janquith, assistant manager of the Omaha elevator company, a letter in which he expressly states that the discharges were honorable and made for the reason that the company had been obliged to retrench expenses. Mr. Cook does not need the testimonials to his worth and ability which he is able to show, for his record in this city is sufficient recommendation with the people of Council Bluffs. As a fact it may be stated that the prospect now is that when the bids for the re-lease of the Union elevator are opened on the 10th of this month it is quite possible that the building will go to the same company which has heretofore had the management of it. Mr. Cook has already an offer from the Omaha elevator company to go to another place to take charge of one of their houses.

No Beer at Big Lake.

O. W. Wahlgren, a Scandinavian saloonkeeper, came to sudden grief yesterday in his efforts to supply the crowd at Big lake with beer. He had constructed a board shanty near the lake at a point within the city limits where the largest crowds gather, and opened out yesterday afternoon with plenty of cool lager for the thirsty. He only ran a few hours, and had not sold enough beer to make anybody feel thankful for his enterprise, when he was invited to take a ride in the patrol wagon between two policemen. His shanty was closed up and he was brought to town and locked up until he secured a bond of $30 for his appearance today.

THE BEE yesterday morning contained the welcome intelligence that the ten or fifteen thousand citizens whom the census enumerators had neglected to find would be hunted up and counted and the city given its relative position. The prompt and energetic action of the board of trade and citizens and the ringing petitions sent to Washington have borne a rich harvest. Supervisor Hight has been ordered to take the necessary steps to make the work of the enumerators complete. The following telegrams have been received by the supervisor:

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5, 1890.—B. W. Hight, supervisor of census, Council Bluffs, Ia.: If the Council Bluffs schedules are still in your hands retain them until further notice. C. F. CHILDS, Acting Superintendent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5, 1890.—B. W. Hight, supervisor of census, Council Bluffs, Ia.: Provision must be made for receiving the names of persons supposed to have been omitted in the enumeration of Council Bluffs and verifying the same. The enumeration will probably turn out to have been made as thoroughly as in any other city in the country, but in view of public sentiment it is advisable to demonstrate that such is the case. Let it be made known through the chamber of commerce and newspapers that names may even yet be added. All necessary clerical assistance will be allowed you for this work. You had better select two or three of the best enumerators and appoint them as clerks in your office for this special work. No names must under any circumstances be added to the list without previous verification at the residences of those alleged to have been omitted. Taking the country throughout 9 per cent of persons originally supposed to have been omitted, prove on investigation to have been properly enumerated, and it will probably be the same in Council Bluffs. The superintendent wishes to avoid all general re-enumerations, but if there are any districts about which you are in doubt a recount in such districts might be authorized on your request. You will probably, however, find even this much unnecessary.
C. F. CHILDS, Acting Superintendent.

"I will receive full instructions just what to do and how to proceed by mail within a day or two," said Captain Hight yesterday, "and I will follow those instructions to the letter. Council Bluffs has lost her relative position among the cities of the state and the west, and I am anxious that she should regain it. I wish there were some means of making other cities honest. I am satisfied that about all the western cities have outrageously inflated their census, and an honest count would reduce their returns very materially, in some instances fully 50 per cent.

"I earnestly beg the people to assist me in getting the name of every man, woman and child in Council Bluffs, and if we have what so many people confidently believe—35,000 inhabitants—no one will be better pleased with the result than I."

Another Case of Lab.

A mysterious lady, giving the name of Florence Russell, has been stopping for several days at the Woman's Christian association hospital in Council Bluffs. She succeeded in arousing the sympathy of the ladies by a well told story of her financial distress and her hope of securing speedy relief. In the meantime she must have shelter, so it was provided for her. She claimed to be a newspaper correspondent, and had considerable manuscript, portions of which she read to some of the ladies, who were charmed by her apparent accomplishments in that line. She said she had been negotiating with the Republican and expected to do some work for that paper. She had already been offered by that paper $11 for one article which she had prepared, and this, with other expected helps, would enable her to pay for her board and other expenses incident upon her temporary stay. She attempted to get a letter delivered to a supposed friend in Omaha, whose address she did not know, and it was by means of this that suspicions were aroused that the lady was none other than the one who had been working Lincoln and Omaha under the pretense of being Helen Anthony Rogers, otherwise known as "Bab." The description given of the Omaha fraud tallies closely with the appearance of the woman here, and the note which she sought to have delivered was signed "Helen." On being charged with being one and the same she skipped the city, leaving the hospital ladies in the lurch for board and care.

The Old Man's Monument.

"THE BEE is the first newspaper to agitate the matter of a monument for poor old Sam Bayliss, but this is not the first agitation of the subject by any means," said Park Commissioner Peregoy yesterday. "We have all recognized the fact that the old man thoroughly deserves to have a monument erected in the park, but we also recognize the fact that we haven't got money enough to get it, and it isn't likely we will have very soon. We have looked into the matter, and have found that it will cost about $13,000 to get any kind of a monument fit to commemorate the old man or fit to place in the park. At least, that is the best figure we have been able to get from the many artists and monument builders with whom we have corresponded. It costs like smoke to build a man in stone or bronze, and we wouldn't have anything else than a full life-sized statue of the old man, made by the best artists and of the most enduring material. We could get a figure of a man in stone or bronze and stick it up on a podestal and call it Sam Bayliss, and there might be 20,000 people in town who never saw the old man and who might think it was a good likeness, and they would go into the park such a day as today, reverently take off their hats before it and devoutly thank the generous donor for his magnificent gift to the people, but there are several thousand of the old fellows who were personally acquainted with Sam, and they would go into the park also, and when they saw the thing we had set up they wouldn't fall down and worship it at all, but would torridly roast us. And just think of a 'roast' such a day as this!

"There should at least be some movement made towards securing such a monument. There are but few photographs of the old man in existence and I don't believe more than one full-length portrait. They should be gathered up and preserved for the day when a grateful people will feel rich enough to build a monument to their benefactor. It will be very difficult to secure a correct likeness, for the old man was something of an oddity, and to those who were familiar with him an unnatural likeness would appear a shameful caricature."

"It's a little too soon to talk about a monument to be erected in the park to Sam Bayliss," chimed in another old citizen. "Before you build a monument in the park you ought at least to find out where he is buried and put up a plank at the head of his grave to let his old friends know where he sleeps. He is buried, I believe, in Fairview, but just where I don't know and I doubt if anybody else does. There is not a stone or board in the whole cemetery that bears his name and I don't know whether the register does or not. The old man died penniless in the house facing the park, next to the Baptist church. It was once his homestead, but he lost it. He was a fine old Virginia gentleman, always polite, kind hearted and courteous and even in his last days of poverty and rags he did not lose the air of refined gentility that always characterized him."

Balloon at Manawa.

Manawa will draw a crowd today. Among the attractions will be a balloon ascension by Prof. E. E. Sturgis, who will ascend to a height of 5,000 feet above the earth, descending in fifty seconds by aid of a parachute. There will be two ascensions, one at 5 o'clock and one at 10 o'clock p. m. He will descend into Lake Manawa, and the night descent will be accompanied by a grand display of fireworks. Like ascensions will be made tomorrow at the same hours.

It Was Hot.

There were no cases of sunstroke reported yesterday for the reason that half of the population of the city had taken refuge in their cellars or in the immediate vicinity of their refrigerators, and a large portion of the other half were floating in the limpid waters of Lake Manawa. Those who could pluck up sufficient courage to look at the thermometers made the discovery that it was one of the hottest days on record, and that at 2:30 o'clock the column of mercury in the tube at Foster's drug store had poked its hot nose above the 102 mark.

A few people went to church, but the greater part of the regular church goers staid at home, perhaps for fear the preacher might make them still more uncomfortable by some warm allusion to a hotter hereafter.

The air was stifling, even in the coolest and shadiest places, and the heat in the blazing sun was so intense that parasols and umbrellas fairly smoked.

"If you don't believe it's hot," said a lounger in Bayliss park, "let me make an experiment to prove it. See that caterpiller crawling there! How long will he live in the sun? There's a little spot of sunshine about two feet square; bet you the cigars if I put him in the center of it he will never live long enough to make the journey of one foot to the shade. He's a heat-loving, sunhunting fellow, but that sun will bake him in less than a minute by the watch." The wager was taken and the chrysalis of a happy butterfly was placed in the center of the burning spot of sunshine. The light dazed him for an instant, and then he commenced to wiggle, and wiggle lively, but with the cool grass, diamoned with spray from the fountain and tempered by the shade of dense foliage, and only twelve inches away, promising life and luxury, he wiggled in vain, and turned up his thousand little toes in helpless appeals to the sun, and died in the center of the torrid spot.

"The street cars have quit running," said Jake Rodgers, as he staggered into the Pacific house. "Why! Because the sun has melted all the soldered connections on the rails and wires."

"The darkies are having an unexpected barbacue down in Streetsville," said Billy Maloney. "A cow in one of the town herds was sunstruck and before they could skin her and haul her away she was roasted to a turn and a picnic party of colored people found her and are having a feast."

"Big lake has nearly all boiled away," said Joe Welch, "and the boys up there are getting the fish already cooked and are having lots of fun."

From the various other expressions and experiences, the fact was pretty clearly established that yesterday was one of the hottest days of the season. People exhausted all methods of keeping cool and succeeded so well that no casualities from the torrid heat were reported.

See the wonderful aeronaut descend from the balloon into Lake Manawa today.

The Balloon Didn't Go.

There was an immense crowd at the lake yesterday afternoon and evening drawn there largely by the hope of seeing the remarkable spectacle of a man leaping from a balloon 5,000 feet in the air and shooting downward like a returning skyrocket with nothing between him and instant death but a big umbrella. Prof. Sturgiss, the daring aeronaut who was advertised to accomplish this feat, was on hand with his monster air ship, but the fates were against him, and he did not ascend. The balloon was inflated on the southern shore of the lake, and it was expected that the stiff breeze would carry it across the water by the time it reached its greatest altitude. But the hungry breezes were too impatient to get at it, and when it was about half inflated it was torn from its moorings and was whirled like a monster wounded bird out over the water. The gallant professor clung to the ropes and was carried to the height of fifty feet, when the wind caught the balloon and turned it completely upside down and landed it, parachute, professor and all into the water. The waves then had some sport with it, and under their assault it writhed and rolled like some great monster in its death agony, and did not become quiet until it had drifted across the lake and landed in the willows.

The crowd was considerably disappointed, and so was the professor. The balloon could not be fished out in time for the night ascent, and those who came for the purpose of seeing the man break his neck had to mitigate their disappointment by enjoying the other pleasures of the resort.

The big canvass bag was taken out and dried, and this afternoon at 3 o'clock the professor will make the ascension and the leap or die in the attempt. He has made numerous ascents and this was his first failure. The ascent today will be made from the north shore and the professor will land on the ground instead of in the water unless a north breeze should happen to blow.

It Will be Fine.

The contract for re-ornamenting the opera house has been let to Charlie Gillette. Numerous plans for the work were submitted by local and outside artists, but that submitted by Mr. Gillette was liked the best and was adopted. The work has been commenced and it will be finished in time for the opening this fall. The greater part of the ornamentation will be done in the new plastic material which has become so popular and attracted so much admiration.

Beside the rabbit pest, New South Wales is troubled by the "flying fox pest." This creature is a species of bat, the largest of the bat tribe, sometimes measuring nearly five feet in expanse of wings, and popularly termed the flying fox on account of the red, fox-like color of the fur, and "the very vulpiin aspect of the head." The attacks of these destructive animals are mainly aimed against fruits and other vegetable substances.

CONGRESSIONAL PROGRAMME.

What the Two Houses Will Do the Coming Week.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Frye's shipping bills are unfinished business on the senate calendar for tomorrow and he hopes to have them disposed of without delay. He will then ask to have the river and harbor bill taken up. This bill, with the amendments which the committee on commerce has authorized Frye to offer, carries an appropriation of about $26,000,000, and he says it is the best bill of the kind ever prepared. Morrill, chairman of the finance committee, will endeavor to have the tariff bill made the order of business after the shipping bills are out of the way. The tariff bill, it is understood, will be in charge of Senator Aldrich. If the river and harbor bill gets the right of way it is more than probable that the tariff debate will not be begun in earnest until next week, as there are three appropriation bills to come before the senate this week. The report of the conference committee on the silver bill, which is privileged matter, is likely to be presented before the close of the week, and it will probably give rise to a debate of some length. A caucus of republican senators is expected this week to decide whether or not to take up the election bill, which will probably be received from the house tomorrow, at this session.

The proceedings in the house promise to be comparatively uninteresting. Probably the general deficiency appropriation bill—the last of the appropriation bills—will be acted upon before the week is ended. The election committee is desirous of securing consideration for two contested election cases—Miller vs Elliott, of South Carolina, and Langston vs Venable, of Virginia, which have been for some time on the calendar. The friends of the bankruptcy bill also expect to be able to get that measure before the house this week.

THE FISHERIES TROUBLE.

The Newfoundland Press Indulging in Some Lively Talk.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 6.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—Newfoundland newspapers received by mail today are filled with lively articles on the fishery trouble. The St. Johns Herald says:

"Let Newfoundland be firm and united, calm and determined, and the day will be won. We have too long been mild and submissory, bowing down in mute obedience to whatever orders were issued by our so-called military protectors. The day has gone by, the Rubicon is passed, the die is cast. We will not be treated as though we were, to quote an English journal, 'a mere handful of fisher folks, not fit to be called British subjects.' We will rise as one man for the defense of Newfoundland and her liberties, and will no longer submit to the degradation of a foreign yoke and the domination of unscrupulous aggressors."

A Murderous Madman.

DELHI, N. Y., July 6.—In the hamlet of Barbourville, Delaware county, on July 4, Adelbert Cumming, who is undoubtedly insane, inflicted fatal wounds upon Sylvanus Palmerton. When the neighbors tried to arrest Cumming he attacked them with a knife. Three or four times he made the crowd flee before him. The farmers armed themselves with shotguns and Cumming was shot in the legs and wounded in the head. He continued to slash right and left, but was finally overcome and jailed. This morning while Sheriff McArthur was giving him food he would in all probability have been strangled by the madman had it not been for assistance rendered by the other prisoners.

The Czar's Friendship for France.

PARIS, July 6.—[Special Cablegram to THE BEE.]—The czar has remitted the stamp duties, amounting to 10,000 francs, on the lease of the new French embassy at St. Petersburg. This is looked upon as a unique mark of his friendship toward France. A rumor is current here that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has notified Prime Minister Stambuloff of his intention to abdicate.

The Assassins Arrested.

BELGRADE, July 6.—[Special Cablegram to THE BEE.]—The assassins of M. Marinkovitch, the Servian consul at Pristina, have been arrested. The motives of the murderers do not appear to have been of a political character. Servia insists that Turkey give a pension to the widow and that the Pristina garrison salute the Persian flag.

Train Robbers Captured.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., July 6.—An eastbound Northern Pacific freight train was boarded near here today by two men, who drew revolvers and compelled the conductor and brakeman to hand over $120. The robbers then jumped from the train and escaped. A posse from here soon captured the robbers.

AN OLD OFFENDER.

The Man Adair Well Known to the Omaha Police.

It was ascertained late last night that Adair, the young man who shot a boy on Bancroft street yesterday, is the young man for whose arrest a warrant was issued four or five months ago for enticing Clara Smith, Bridget Haniphan and several other little girls about thirteen or fourteen years of age into houses of assignation and affecting their ruin.

He learned that he was wanted before the officers found him and skipped out. He did not return to Omaha until last Thursday. The old case has been dismissed, two of the girls being sent to the Home of the Good Shepherd at St. Louis.

It is also stated that the dead boy's hands are filled with shot, and if this is found to be the case it will be almost conclusive proof that Adair purposely pointed the gun at the deceased before the fatal shot was fired, and that the latter threw up his hands as a matter of protection.

THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

An Immense Attendance Promised at the Conclave.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., July 6.—Camp Carnahan is occupied tonight by over one thousand members of the uniform rank, Knights of Pythias, and before Monday noon the number in camp will reach five times that number. Railways running to Milwaukee have received notice from connecting lines that nearly four hundred cars will be delivered to them at Chicago before noon Monday for trans-shipment to Milwaukee. These include delegations from nearly every state in the union. The Nebraska contingent, numbering 1,500 or more, will arrive tomorrow evening. Large delegations from Iowa, California, Colorado and other states are reported on the way. The programme of the week will not open until Tuesday morning, when there will be given at the exposition building a monster reception to the supreme lodge, which immediately afterward will go into session and will hold daily meetings for two weeks.

Police Points.

The finding of a hat and cane on the river bank at the foot of Douglas street promised a sensation yesterday afternoon, but that is as far as it went, as neither the sensation nor the owner of the articles has yet materialized.

A. Carver is the suggestive name of a youth who languishes under a charge of assault and battery. It was the wind-up of a boys' row.

Jim Tracy, an old-timer, is again on deck, or will be when he sleeps off his booze. At his last previous appearance he was beautifully and abundantly frescoed with a score or more of cuts, but he survived the fancy carving and bids fair to need the services of the patrol wagon on many a day far in the future.

How the Ancients Swore.

Among the ancient Romans it was considered the thing for each man to have some particular god to habitually swear by. Some swore by Jupiter, others by Mars, other still by Minerva, and so on, Castor and Pollux were usually appealed to as the "Twins"—"By Gemini!"—the phrase whence we get our exclamation, "By Jiminy!"

It was thought very improper for Roman ladies to swear by the male gods, but they were permitted to take the names of the Twins in vain, and also especially that of Venus. In moments of great aggravagation they might go so far as to cry, "Mecastor!" "By Castor!" The Greeks swore by the cabbage, which was the most prized of vegetables.

THE INDIAN CHRIST.

Porcupine, A Cheyenne Brave, Says He is in Nevada.

The Indians on all the reservations in this section are in a state of excitement bordering on frenzy over the alleged coming of the Messiah, says a Fort Custer dispatch to the St. Louis Republic. A few days ago Porcupine, the apostle of the new Christ, gave to an army officer the story of his meeting with the Messiah. Last evening he arrived here with a few followers and related his story with additional details. He spoke to the officers and ladies of the post for an hour and fully explained the religion which closely resembles the Christian religion of the whites, except that Porcupine claims positively that Christ has come back to earth and is now in the flesh near Walker Lake, Nev. Porcupine did not know anything about the first Christ, but he says this Christ told him he had been on earth hundreds of years ago, when he appeared to the white people, who used him roughly and even killed him. Porcupine says he saw marks on the hands of the Christ, who said he had been nailed to a tree by the hands and that spikes had also been driven through his feet and his side had been cut open.

The Christ did not show the scars on his feet, as he had on his shoes, but all knew what he had told them was true. Porcupine said he did not believe in the Christ when he first heard of him, but no sooner did he see him than all doubt vanished from his mind and he knew he was looking at God. He had never seen such a man before and never would unless he saw this man again, which he meant to do. It was evening when Christ came walking into the camp, and they all knew who he was without being told.

He described Christ as a large man with a tawny skin, a noble carriage and face. Christ did not speak the first day Porcupine saw him, but commenced talking on the next day soon after sunrise and did not cease until the sun was near the western horizon.

Hundreds of Indians, representatives from scores of tribes, heard him and all understood him. He did not speak in Cheyenne, but Porcupine understood him perfectly, as did the other Cheyennes present.

He then repeated much of the Christ's sermon to the Indians, and its similarity to the first Christ's teachings was at times astounding. Christ said what grew on earth grew for all, and all were equally entitled to the earth's products. He said he could not repeat in a day all Christ said, but these were some of the things he taught, and he believed in them, and the man he saw was the Son of God, and none other. Christ told the white people when they put him to death he would come again, but not to them first, but to the Indian nation, whose red children being poor and simple-minded would hear and believe him. He commanded them to go forth and preach the doctrine, but to add nothing to it, and to hold nothing back. He said he could hear all they said wherever they were, "and" said Porcupine, "Christ is hearing me now and is here in this room."

The apostle stood with outstretched hands in silence for several minutes before he began speaking, and having become filled with the Holy Ghost broke forth like one inspired. There were commandments, too, such as "Thou shalt not steal," "Thou shalt not kill," "Thou shalt not bear false witness."

Porcupine said Christ told them all wars were wrong and they must not kill anyone. He answered cheerfully all questions and said he told only what he saw.

Two of the Indians, with Porcupine, had been to Walker lake, and when questioned by General Brisbin, said what Porcupine had told was true, and that they had seen and heard the same themselves.

Porcupine is a fine looking Indian, with large, black, expressive eyes and an abundance of silky, black hair. He is over six feet tall. He also preached to the Crow Indians on the "New Messiah."

About Hay Fever.

Hay fever is a nervous affection, usually most prevalent during the spring and early summer, from which the poorer classes, and more especially those living in populous towns, rarely, if ever, suffer, says the Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle. It is known only to the educated whose nervous systems are highly developed, and, though not in any sense dangerous, it is at all times very irritating and troublesome. The smell of hay grass, the pollen of flowers, the odor of fruit, dust or draughts will generate the complaint or excite an attack in persons subject to it, but rain or moist weather invariably brings relief. At one time it was generally supposed that the odor of hay when being mowed or carted could alone induce the affection, which is closely analogous to asthma, but recent observation shows that its prevalence is entirely independent of the existence of hay fields and is really a nervous derangement.

A visit to the sea-side, a trip to sea or residence in a populous town will, however, remove the asthmatic tendency; but one of the best remedies is tobacco smoke, retained in the mouth as long as possible, and then ejected through the nostrils. The inhalation of the steam of ten drops of creosote in a pint of hot water is said to be good, or twenty drops of spirits of camphor to the same quantity of water also makes an effective inhalation. But the affection, being a nervous one, tonics and nourishing diets are more essential than any of these palliatives, which merely afford temporary relief.

A Strange Resuscitation.

A remarkable case is reported from Kennetook, Kants county, says a Halifax letter in the Boston Herald. A young man named Alfred Miller was some time ago attacked by the grip. Before he fully recovered he went to work in a ship yard and suffered a relapse, which was even more serious than the first attack of sickness, and which reduced him to death's door. The physician who attended him is one of the most skillful in the country. But his skill was without avail. One day recently the doctor found Miller sinking so fast that he said that the end would come at any moment, and he left the members of the family and their friends watching the approach of death, which apparently ensued in a few minutes. The body became rigid, the flesh discolored and all pulsation ceased. Preparations were being made for the performance of the last offices, when a member of the family observed a movement of the body, and in a few minutes the young fellow rose to a sitting position, his face regained a natural color and his conversation became animated. Since that time his recovery has been rapid.
