

The Motion Argued at Length in the District Court Yesterday.

JUDGE CLARKSON RESERVES DECISION.

Henry McDonald, a Six-Year-Old Boy, Falls Into the River and is Drowned—The Body Not Recovered.

Judge Clarkson yesterday morning listened to arguments for a new trial in the case of Ed N. Neal, convicted of the murder of Allen and Dorothy Jones. There were only about a dozen spectators present, and this number included the defendant, who appeared quite the same as during the trial.

On Tuesday afternoon Judge Clarkson decided the statutes themselves plainly state that the old law should remain in force until the new was accepted. Judge Clarkson then ruled that the defendant was not on trial for the murder of the boys, but of Mr. Jones.

Mr. Garley simply enlarged upon this point, after which he took up the matter of Neal not having been taken out to view the premises with the jury. The affidavits of jurors, filed last week, later on, the district court judge for defense waived the prisoner's right to visit the scene of the tragedy, were taken up and discussed as to their breadth and scope.

After calling attention to the great amount of public sentiment manifested at the time, Judge Clarkson ruled that the defendant should be taken out to view the scene of the homicide. Wasn't the act of that jury going to those premises a part of the trial, and a trial proceeding?

Mr. Mahoney argued for the defendant, and pointed out to the jury that the defendant was not on trial for the murder of the boys, but of Mr. Jones. He said that the defendant was not on trial for the murder of the boys, but of Mr. Jones.

Mr. Estelle consumed a large amount of time in reading opinions, and having finished, he said that the defendant was not on trial for the murder of the boys, but of Mr. Jones.

A drowning accident occurred about 6 o'clock last evening at the dump at the foot of Davenport street. Henry McDonald, a six-year-old boy, whose parents reside at 1713 Davenport street, went in company with a deaf man named Walter Williams, who lives at Twenty-fourth and Cumings streets, playing on the bank near the edge of the dump.

A traveling man, stopping at the Lee House Campbellsburg, Ind., on learning that a lady in the village was suffering terribly with a severe cold, gave her a large bottle of medicine, which he had with him and requested her to take it to the sick woman.

Wanted—A man to take a part interest in a (dem.) weekly newspaper, the only one in a county of over 20,000 people, and every officer a democrat.

They Will Be Held Tomorrow to Elect Convention Delegates.
