THE OMAHA BEE NEWS ABOUT THE BLUFFS.

Dr. Cooley Emphatically Declares His Resignation to be Final.

TWO DEATHS FROM DIPHTHERIA.

A Country Boy Accidentally Shot-A Prisoner's Ingenuity-The Paving Injunction-Notes and Personals.

There has been a great deal of speculation oncerning the resignation of Dr. D. H. Cooley from the pastorate of the First Bap tist church of this city. Many have supposed that the resignation was not final, and that the pastor could be prevailed upon to reconsider the matter and stay with the people who love him so well and where he has accomplished such a splendid work. But the doctor has made some very positive declarations and authorized their publication in an evening paper, and the members who have fendly hoped to retain him, if necessary by a liberal increase of salary, are sorely disap-pointed. In speaking to the reporter Dr Cooley took occasion to say in emphatic term that it was final, and that he should not re main in charge of the work here despite th fact that he had built a cozy home and was as deeply attached to it as he was to the interests of his parishoners.

"My resignation is final, and I shall not remain in charge," said he to the reporter. "When does your resignation take effect?"
"On October!. But should the church not succeed in suiting itself with a shepheral before that time I will probably remain in charge till the end of October." "Has your work here been agreeable to you!"

"Well, that is a leading question. I presume that every shepherd of the sheep must do a great deal of carrying. My members are mostly poor, thank the Lord, yet I could imagine that a more lucrative pastorate could be found by me than this one, as far as dol-lars and cents are concerned."

"Do you intend to continue in the minis-terial calling?" "O, yes. But I must take a rest. I do not design to take charge of any other church, though I am receiving letters from different though I am receiving letters from different societies requesting me to visit them with the object of possibly becoming pastor." "Then you will leave here?" "Yes, I expect to return to my home at Morgan park, near Chicago. I have a large house there which is rented to a good ten-

"So you will remove to that place and go into your former home?"
"I will remove to Morgan park in a few months. But I will not go into my large house, for I expect to build a smaller one and occupy it. I intend to go to Chicago next week to direct the crection of this building." "What kind of religious work will you en gage in at Chicago?"

"I expect to preach every week, more or less. I will preach for different pasters who may be temporarily absent from the city or help in special work. I may re-engage in educational work. I do not intend to take on myself the responsibility of a pastorate again —perhaps never. My health, which is generally good, has not been at parlately and I think it best to take heed of these premonitory symptoms."

George was one of the brightest and best boys in the city, and one of the most faithful of THE BEE's carrier force. He returned from the Chautauqua grounds on the last day of the assembly, feeling quite sick, and a few days afterwards his malady assumed the form of malignant diphtheria. He was a patient but fearful sufferer and made a brave fight for his life, but yesterday he gave up the unequal contest and found rest in the dreamless sleep of death. He was a manly little fellow, loving and beloved by all who knew him, and his death is a bereavement that is hard to bear. He was born Novembe 4, 1875, and was consequently in his four teenth year. The funeral services will be held at the residence at 8 o'clock this morn

On Tuesday afternoon he was take sick and the disease quickly manifested itsel as the dreaded and malignant diptheria For four days he made as gallant a fight for life as was ever made, but after four days of suffering gave it up. Prisoners' Ingenuity. Men who are locked in jails and given noth ing to do but to plan ways of making them selves more comfortable or laving scheme for escape develop a wonderful ingenuity An instance of this occurred in the county jail the other night. One of the prisoners wanted a light for his pipe and having no matches, and other prisoners in adjacent cells being in the same predicament, he set his wits to work. He took off one of his stockings and raveling out a portion of the yarn wound two balls, connected by a string. He then rolled one of these balls along the corridor to the front of a cell over which there was a gas jet burning. The prisoner in this cell could reach the gas jet by means of twist-ing a long paper lighter. This prisoner fast-ened a bit of paper to the yarn and securing a light from the gas lighted this piece of paper. Then the other prisoner pulled along the string as this prisoner let it out and was in speedy possession of the desired light. This invention was then utilized by other risoners in other cells and it worked like harm, light being carried quite a distance by means of burning paper attached to the moving string.

The Paving Injunction. Judge Deemer had his attention called again yesterday to the fact that James Madden is very anxious to restrain the city council from letting the paving contracts for Fifth avenue. The attorneys for the city filed some new documents showing up a very favorable condition of the city finances. Judge Aylesworth, the attorney for Madden, had not had time to investigate these new showings as fully as he desired and so he asked that the case be continued. After some consultation an arrangement was agreed upon by all par-ties concerned, that the matter should go over until Wednesday or Thursday of this week, at which time Judge Deemer expects to stop over here on his way to Colorado. is to notify the attorneys Monday which of the two days will be chosen for hearing the Local Case of Leprosy. "What do you know about leprosy, doctor?" The Bee asked a local physician vesterday afternoon, after a little knot of physiclans had been discussing the case of the ancient disease that has been reported in Shelpy county.

"Have just been treating a case of it, and know that it is a mighty nasty thing to have around." replied the physician.

"Who is the patient and where is he now!" "His name is Frank Simmons, and until a year and a half ago he was a driver for Wheeler & Herald. He is a nephew of Samuel Desmonds, and for several months prior to the development of his disease he was living with his wife's folks in the country near Crescent City. When I first saw him he was covered with scales from his neck to his heel. The scales were white and flaky and ulcerated at their bases. He was emaci ated, but otherwise his general health seemed good, and there were no eraptions on his face. He had a wife and four or five children and we Isolated him com-pletely from them and everybody else. When my attention was called to the case the man was in a pitiable condition and was suffering dreadfully from the terrible irritation caused by the eruptions. On the couch where he stept we could gather up each morning half a dust pan full of the scales. I studied the case closely and read up all the authorities poor the disease, and am satisfied it was as clearly a developed case of leprosy as we can ever expect to see in this country. From time im-memorial it has been regarded as an incurable disease, but I had the satisfaction of seeing that this case yielded to treatment. The treatment I put him on was very simple and it was strictly homoeopathic. I employed only asenium iodide in a low pentency. After three months' treatment his skin became as smooth as it ever was, but the livid spots had not all disappeared. I was deeply interested in the case, but I did not get an opportunity to learn what the final outcome for my patient got so well that he left the country without telling me where he was going. He came back a few weeks after he left and got his family and took them to Missouri, at some place where his mother lived. I would have willingly donated his Ill for the privilege of learning the complete result of my treatment. I was more than sat issied with the result as far as I was able to follow them. I don't claim that I cured the genuine case of leprosy, and that it yielded o homocopathic treatment. "I am satisfied, also, that there is a great difference in cases of leprosy. Its worst phases may be looked for on the sea coasts, and there it may be altogether beyond the control of the physician, but the inland cases are not so bad and are tractable.

"Where was he exposed! He could not tell, only that his mother had a similar attack a few years ago and was still suffering from what the doctors said was eczema. There was more humanity than most people think in the old method of banishing the lepers in bible times and preventing them living in houses The only relief they could get was in th night time, when they could go around naked Their clothing irritates them, and when the could take it off and wander around in the cool night air they were comfortable. scales protected them from the cold in a great legree and they were not conscious of any uffering from that source. It was almost impossible for the attendant to keep the bod-clothes on Simmons even in the coldest

KISSED THE WRONG WOMAN. What Came of an Old Fellow's Natural

Mistake at Atlantic City. One morning a pretty, dainty little woman, who had been frolicking with he waves, had come out and was lying on the beach, her head resting on a little hillock of white sand, her hair float ing about in the most charming confusion, her tanned face upturned to the sky and her eyes closed in dreamy de light, writes an Atlantic City correspondent of the New York Mail and Ex-

An elderly man, whose face was lighted with reguish intent, though his hair was silver white, stepped over jauntily and stooped and fondly kissed her sun-burned cheek. In just about another half see ond the kind old man was sent spinning over the sand, and a big young fellow in a striped bathing costume, with enor mous muscles and flashing eyes, was standing over him saying;

"You're an old villain!"
"Impudent scoundrel," cried the old man, scrambling to his feet, "I'll have the law of you this day or I die for it." "You elderly old sinner! Even your years won't save you. How dare you take such liberties with a lady?" "I berties, sir? Can't I kiss my daughter? "But you can't kiss my wife." "Your wife? Horrors! Lapologize; apologize, sir. And the old man continued to apologize for a full minute. His sight wasn' good; he had forgotten his glasses; he had made a dreadful mistake; he was in a tremendous state of mind altogether; his daughter was bathing there some where. Ah, yes; here she is.

And a charming bit of femininity in the same blue bathing clothes and black stockings and big straw hat, all dripping wet, came running up to him crying "Papa, oh, papa!"

"Here she is, you see," said the old man, turning to the big young fellow whose anger had abated and who ac cepted the apologies in a stiff sort of way. His wife was much more amiable, good soul. She remained very quiet through it all, and when she turned to go down for another plunge in the breakers, with her hand resting on her breakers, with her name research husband's big arm, her eyes had a most husband's big arm, her eyes had a most forcing light in them. He was such a forgiving light in them. He was such a dear old gentleman, don't you see, and nearsighted, too, poor soul.

Remarkably Skillful Surgery. A rather remarkable surgical opera ion was performed in Washington and the indications are that it will prove most successful. A short time ago the daughter of C. A. Ginochio, a well known railroad man of Marshall, Tex., was stricken with paralysis of the left arm, which gradually extended to the entire left side of his body. Physicians and surgeons who were consulted were unable to determine the cause or to provide a remedy, and a few days ago Mr. Ginochio brought his daughter to an eminent surgeon in this city. Yesterday an examination of the patient's condition was made. Beginning at the little finger on the left hand the left hand one of the affected nerves was traced to the right side of the brain and the seat of the affliction was located in the shape of a tumor. The presence of the tumor had not been before suspected find its pressure upon the brain had caused the paralysis. The scalp was cut open, a portion of the skull lifted and the tumor neatly removed. The patient withstood the operation splendialy and relief from the paralysis was at once manifest. It is that the patient, who is still in the hospital, will recover the use of her left hand and arm in a few days. A Colored Croesus. There is a colored man in Galveston who is worth over $350,000. He has a fine house in the most desirable residen-tial portion of the city and his wife employs none but white persons.

Lincoln, Neb., July 26 .- | Special to Tue BEE.]-The people's party, consisting of members of the farmers' alliance and Knights of Labor, held their county convention in Lincoln this afternoon. All day long Q street between Tenth and Eleventh has been thronged with horny handed sons of toil and mechanics and democratic statesmen talking mysteriously in groups.

A secret session was held in Union Labor hall all the morning, and the only thing given to the outer world was the fact that the following were recommended as delegates to the state convention. Grant and Laneaster, J. V. Wolf; Waverly and Mill, O. Hull; West Lincoln and Oak, J. C. Mugleston; Centerville and Highland, J. Holowell; West Oak and Elk, L. Beeson: Middle Creek and Dexter, Fred Berryman; Yankee Hill and Garfield, J. F. Bishop; Saltillo and South Pass, William McClain; Little Salt and Rock Creek, J. H. Wilcox; Stockton and Nemnha, R. J. Chambers; Buda and Olive Branch, W. N. Spencer; Stevens Creek, A. L. Jacoby.

About eight hundred persons had assembled in Bohanan's hall at 2 p. m., 225 being delegates. All were either farmers or had cultivated a granger appearance. F. L. Leighton, chaleman of the county central committee, called the convention to order. Mr. Craddock moved that a committee on credentials be appointed. After some discussion it prevailed, and the following were chosen: Craddock, Hull, Lyons and Maloney. About a dozen persons called for Burrows. and he eagerly rushed up to the platform and delivered a speech.

He said he was mightily pleased with the faces he saw before him. "There has not been," said he, "a convention held in this city this year that equals this one in character. The republican party is the railroad party. The late republican county convention consisted of the brick newspaper building on Ninth and P streets and the big brick building on the B. & M. tracks. That convention did not represent the people, but the one here today does. I am not a candidate for office but you have the material to properly represent the people. [Cries of 'You bet."] It sent the people. [Cries of "You bet,"] It makes no difference with what party your candidates formerly trained. There is no man in this state who feels more interested in this movement than 1.9

A man named John Graham was called for.
He scored the republican party. Called its state ticket just chosen a frivolous and deceitful one. He said the republican party had never made good a pledge in its existence and that it never intended to. He declared that if any man did more for the party than he that person would have to have more nerve and a better cheek than he.

A man named McAllister came forward and declared that if necessary the farmers would resort "to a revolution of arms," He said that the republican party had made the farmers a race of slaves and serfs. Craddock then reported that all the townships except Olive Branch were represented, here being 226 delegates out of the 231 called Craddock then moved that F. L. Leighton be temporary chairman and A. W. Crane temorary secretary.

On motion it was decided that the describes sub-scribe to the call for the independent people's convention as their declaration of faith. On motion of Craddock the temporary organization was made permanent. At this juncture it was discovered that very farmer had a democrat at his elbow. A republican alliance man raised a howl about this and the delegates were invited to come forward and occupy seats by themselves. Nominations of candidates were then dedared in order.

J. W. Sherwood, a telegrapher employed by the Western Union, made a neat speech, placing J. M. Thompson, secretary of the alliance, in nomination for senator from the ity. There being no other candidate Mr. Thompson's nomination was made unaut-

L. Beeson, a former democrat nominated Villiam Foster of Centerville for senator. Frank Brophy presented the name of James Taylor of Nemaha. Jake Wolfe then arose and said that his lemocratic friend Hull wanted to withdraw.

Taylor was declared the nominee. Elias Baker and Wilham S. Demarce of the Fifth ward were unanimously chosen as candidates for the legislature from the city. Baker is a prohibitionist. Demarce a repub-

There were apparently no end of candidates from the country, the following being placed in nomination.

W. J. McAlister, Stevens Creek; J. A. W. J. McAlister, Stevens Creeg; J. A. McNabb, Yankee Hill; S. S. Griffith, Centerville; J. F. Dale, Mill; J. F. Egger, Saltillo; J. W. Koever, Denton; William Brink, West Lincoln; H. M. Reeves, Elk; S. T. Wnittaker, West Oak.

On the third ballot J. F. Dale was declared the nominee. Dale is a democrat.

A motion was then made by some enthusiast to nominate McAlister by acclamation, but it was sat down on with a yell.

J. F. Egger was then chosen by ballot. W J. McAlister was the third nominee for legis-lative honors. Egger and McAlister are lative honors. Egger and McAlister are both said to be republicans.

The period of nominations for county com-missioners was a long and tedious one on ac-count of the lack of administrative ability on the part of the chairman. The following nominations were eventually made: L S. Gillick, D. A. Stocking, August

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION. The few democrats left from the great mass working the people's convention at Bohaman's hall, gathered at Fitzgerald's hall to go through the motions of a county convention. N. Z. Snell, chairman of the central committee, called the convention to order at 2:15 p.m. He predicted that if wise action was taken the democrats would be victorious in November. Mr. Calhoun made a spread-eagle speech and moved that K. K. Hayden, candidate for state treasurer, be authorized to name the delegates to the state convention, and W. J. Bryan, candidate for congress, name the

This raised a war of words. Several mo Although not in order, Mr. Sawyer arose and flercely attacked Calhoun's motion. He strongly denounced the policy of allowing strongly denounced the policy of allowing any two men to name delegates to any convention. This was not democratic.

A long wrangle followed, in which Calhoun and Cardiff favored the motion, and Cassaday opposed it. Bryan intimated that he could not be pleased better than by harden is the title of a case filed in the supreme court this morning. Herfrich is the appellant and he claims that through the fraudulent repre-sentations of Armstrong he was enticed into trading a fine quarter section of land in Duel county, Dakota, for certain school lands in Kansas, which Armstrong and another fellow named Rooks, he says, claimed was fine, smooth farming land. On investigation Helfrich says that he found that the farm was in the chalk lands, and wholly barren. He therefore wants to trade back. THE BEIRS ARE KICKING.

Salvation Army Leaders Embark in Match-Making.

The people of San Jose will remember a slight girlish figure that appeared ome months ago in the Salvation army parades in this city, says the San Jos Cal.) News. Her name was Carrie Hall and she has had a peculiar experience which she has told to a reporter in Oakland. About three years ago, when she was scarcely sixteen years of age, she left her home in the hope of entering the Salvation army. She had lost her mother, and wanted to go into the worl of the army, and so, rather than enter the army at her home, which her father opposed, she went to Oakland. That was why she went to Oakland and began her work as a lieutenant.

She did not have a pleasant time in the army, and she tells a story of peculiar treatment that has placed her in a very unhappy position. The is a very slight little lady, with a pathetic, spirit-less way about her that threw a peculiar shade of sadness over the story she told. "I thought that the story might go in straight," she explained in a funny little speech, and the effort made to squelch him apologetic way. "This is how it oot proved ineffectual. His crowning period was curred; I was sent down to Pomona, curred: I was sent down to Pomona, and while I was there I met Fred Koenig, and he wanted to marry me. I didn't want to get married, and I told him so, but when I came up here I began to write to him. After a while I get tired of writing to him and stopped. In the meantime I mean a stopped. In the meantime I met a young captain in San Francisco and we began to correspond. Suddenly I stopped getting his letters and he stopped getting mine, and we each thought that the other had thrown off, but we hadn't. "I found that all our letters had been sent to Brigadler General Fielding, and as he had never approved of it we had never received our letters. You see, General Fielding thought that a captain was too high for me, and, as everything of that kind is in his hands, he decided to break it off.

"About that time they found out that Koenig wanted to marry me, and as the army owed him $200 or $300, they thought that it would be a good scheme to get me to marry him and get him back into the work. You see, when any one joins the army they have to sell all that they have to give it to the army, so if Koenig married me the army would not have to give it. not have to pay him what they owed and the army would get a good bit besides. So they got me to say yes. He said he would kill himself if I did not, and so we were married in Pemona.

An Absent-Minded Professor,

Prof. Simon Newcomb of Wash-Ington is known as a man whose scientific studies have tended to exaggerate a natural disposition to mental tion, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. The professor's friends, who are also his strong admirers, understand his peculiarity and overlook in him what might not be sexcused in a commonplace per son. A lady of this city is very fond of telling this incident: She was at a reception given at Prof. Newcomb's house. The occasion had been made delightful by the professor and his accomplished wife and daughters.
