A Detailed and Spicy Account of the Proceedings.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 29.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The largest gathering of farmers that ever met in convention in Nebraska assembled at 2 p. m. today in Bohannon's hall, south of Omaha.

Every county in the state is represented, and the delegates are farmers and laboring men, and the politician is not seen among them. The hall is crowded and the murmur of many voices is deafening. There are no fans in the crowd, but the sturdy farmers use their straw hats and their sturdy hats for fans; red handkerchiefs and the throats of the delegates, while blue shirts and checked shirts are the rule. The majority of delegates wear no collars, and it is evident that they are here for business and that style is not considered.

Just before the convention is called to order J. Burrows is sweeping up and down the platform as though he owned more than a controlling interest in all the reform movements on earth.

President Powers of the farmers' alliance called the convention to order at 2:15. He nominated Albin Root of Douglas county for chairman and C. A. Mayberry of Pawnee county for secretary. Both nominations prevailed. Root came forward and was greeted with applause. He said that it was true that the eyes of the United States were turned upon the convention. He said he regarded this as the Concord and Lexington of the political revolution that was soon to come, that they were here today representing the people of Nebraska.

On the money question Mr. Root said that it was broad and comprehensive, and that God had made more fools than he had money. He denied the veracity of John Sherman, and thought that Adam was a notice in the art of lying, compared with the Buckeye senator.

On Omaha the board of transportation has charged but $2,000 a mile for track and rolling stock. Another board of the railroads is taxed at 500 per cent. The transportation board should be honest and of the people in the management of the railroads.

make any proposition that he could sustain. He said that the homes of Nebraska had no stability; that they were imperiled, and he regretted that he did not have strong enough to shout the proposition so loud that the whole civilized world could hear his ranting utterances. A leading newspaper in Lincoln was so kind as to print his ranting utterances. This was for the Lincoln Journal and the light was very bright. If the battle this fall should prove a Bill Run or a grand victory, the fight must be continued, and Nebraska was not to be left at the mercy of the farmers. He was not to be left at the mercy of the farmers. He was not to be left at the mercy of the farmers.

The committee on credentials then reported that seventy-seven counties were entitled to a representation of delegates. The temporary organization was at this time made permanent. J. H. Craddock was made assistant secretary.

A motion was made that a plank be adopted declaring that eight hours constitute a work day in this state. A Richardson county man wanted to make it eighteen instead of eight. The speaker was called. Halson of Kearney said that he would not vote for the motion. The motion was defeated.

Barrows then made a motion that the convention proceed to an informal ballot for governor. A motion was made that the convention proceed to an informal ballot for governor. A motion was made that the convention proceed to an informal ballot for governor.

AN ANTI-LOTTERY MESSAGE. President Wilson Transmits one to Congress on the Subject. STRONG GROUND TAKEN AGAINST THEM. He Recommends the Enactment of a Law Which Will Prevent Their Doing Business Through the Mails. WASHINGTON, July 29.—President Harrison today sent the following message to Congress: The Senate and House of Representatives have passed a bill to secure a charter for the state of North Dakota for a lottery company, the pending effort to obtain from the state of Louisiana a renewal of the charter of the Louisiana lottery, and the establishment of one or more lottery companies at Mexican towns near the border, have served the great purpose of calling public attention to the evil of vast proportions. The beneficial effects of lotteries were confined to the state of Louisiana, where the lottery companies and licensees, the companies of citizens of other states, being powerless to apply legal remedies, might clear themselves of the state of Louisiana, and the lottery companies were within their reach. The case is not so. People of all states are bound by the national lottery laws, and the use of money offered to states to purchase shares in the lottery is a violation of the law.
