

FAGIN'S THREE-BASE DRIVE.

It Cleaned the Bases and Won the Game for Omaha.

THE FANS WERE WILD WITH JOY.

All the Bottle-dup Enthusiasm of the Last Two Months Finds Vent in One Mighty Yell.

Well you should have been out at the ball park yesterday afternoon and seen the Black Sox grab a game by the shirt collar and pull it out of the fire.

It was great, and all of the enthusiasm that the cranks have been bottling up for the past six weeks was out loose in one mighty yell.

Everybody yelled, it was so exciting to see the Omahas collar a little luck after their long continued stretch of misfortune, and it came so unexpectedly that none could resist it.

Fagin, the Italian count, who takes his regular turn in the box nowadays, did the twisting yesterday, and what an idescent game he did put up. It fairly sentledated.

Try as hard as they might, the big Denver sluggers could only secure puny little singles here and there throughout the contest, and if fans had depended on hits they wouldn't have gotten a smell.

The lengthy sun of sunny Italy moved them down like grass before the scythe, and he watched the bases in such a way that the very few catches of them did not dare to express.

But that wasn't all he did, not by a jug full. In the ninth inning, with two men out and three men on bases, he made one of the most glorious swipes ever witnessed upon the Omaha grounds.

It was a three-sacker, and cleaned the bases and won the game.

The uproar that followed defies description. Men stood up and yelled and hurled their hats aloft; little boys fell over the grand stand balustrade and tumbled about upon the velvet sward like so many chickens with their heads cut off while the ladies, who they just fairly shouted, too, and flouted their lace handkerchiefs and crushed in each other's bosoms with a reckless abandon that none could blame all their detentions for.

There wasn't a great deal of hitting on either side, for both pitchers were usually effective, but the fielding, barring Omaha's catching, was quite sharp and brilliant.

For this reason, and also for the fact that the score was very slight, the game was decidedly uninteresting until the climax, and kept the 600 spectators on the ragged edge of excitement.

Hope, however, grew more and more enthusiastic as the game progressed, and when the game was over, the Omaha fans were in a tremendous shout of jubilation.

That sort of a game is always exceedingly exhilarating, you know.

It was a lovely day for ball playing, and the crowd was not one-tenth inside what it should have been.

But it is all right. Omaha won. The score:

THEY LOST THEIR FOOTING.

Two Little Girls Thrown from a Treacherous Log and Drowned.

ONE SEVEN, THE OTHER SIX YEARS OLD.

A Search for the Bodies Proves Unavailing—Two Lives Saved by the Heroic Efforts of a Boy Companion.

Little Mary Doster and her niece, Mary Vomacka, who lived with their parents down along the Burlington road about where Center street crosses the river, were drowned yesterday afternoon at 5:30 in the Missouri river.

Joe Doster and another boy, accompanied by four little girls, had been out in a boat across the river, where they were playing on a sandbar. As supper time drew near the children pulled for the home shore and the boat was brought alongside of a large log that had a rather uncertain mooring against the bank near the usual landing place.

While the boys held the boat steady the girls stepped out upon the log, and just as the last of the four had left the boat the log turned over under the weight of the children and they were all thrown into the river.

The current of the river was strong and ran very deep and swift, so that the children were in frightful danger from the moment they lost their footing on the log. The current carried them down the river, and succeeded in securing two of the children by helping them back into the boat, by Mary
