SOCIETY IN MIDSUMMER.

Returning Tourists Brighten Omaha's Streets and Thoroughfares.

AN OUTLOOK FOR THE COMING SEASON.

Card Parties and Receptions During the Week Just Ended—The Movements and Whereabouts of Many of Omaha's People.

Already the streets and promenades of the city begin to show that summer is waning. There is a growing brilliancy in the costumes you see on the thoroughfares, and the well-colored complexion of the women you pass on the street indicate that the grand army of summer saunterers is returning.

The shops are commencing to put on their fall garb and before another moon wanes Omaha will be in the midst of the fall openings and society will have resumed its round of pleasures.

Never in the history of Omaha have so many people taken advantage of the season to leave the city on pleasure bent, as during this year of our Lord, 1890. Every seaside resort along the Atlantic coast, almost every watering place in Dixie, the mountains of the west and the lake regions of the north have had representatives from the metropolis of Nebraska. Europe has had its full quota of tourists from the Gate City and the passenger lists of ocean steamers, both outgoing and incoming, show that Omaha people are on the move.

While it is yet too early to reflect what will be a leading feature of the season's entertainments in society, it is quite safe to say that the literary clubs of the metropolis will be reorganized, with the addition of a number of new ones upon philosophic lines.

The changes are going on in our social life in all favor of more intelligence and this in every rank. It is extremely marked among the best of the handicraftsmen and among the higher classes, though evidence is less easy to obtain, it is still perceptible.

Beauty ranks first by virtue of laws which no female ornament either will or can alter. But beauty and wealth apart, the stupid girl is getting as heavily weighted in the race as the stupid man. Men are growing ashamed of ill-fitting hats and women of ill-fitting dresses. Nothing could have exceeded the evidence in less easy to obtain, it is still perceptible.

Beauty ranks first by virtue of laws which no female ornament either will or can alter. But beauty and wealth apart, the stupid girl is getting as heavily weighted in the race as the stupid man. Men are growing ashamed of ill-fitting hats and women of ill-fitting dresses. Nothing could have exceeded the evidence in less easy to obtain, it is still perceptible.

And for this reason we may expect the formation of literary clubs.

A Charming Reception at Florence.

The cozy and comfortable residence of Mr. F. W. Reynolds at Florence was the scene of a very pleasant reception Thursday evening, given in honor of Miss Mabel R. Beese of Brooklyn, a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds.

The guests were in the main members of the Plymouth Congregational church and it required three large, covered coaches, besides a number of private carriages, to convey the party from Plymouth church in Kountze Place to Florence.

The drive to Florence was enlivened by songs and merriment, furnishing a charming background to the very beautiful night.

In honor of the event the residence was brilliantly lighted with electric lights, while the large veranda was festooned with Chinese lanterns. Nothing could have exceeded the manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds, assisted by their niece, Miss Beese, received and entertained their guests.

Mr. Charles and Miss Daisy Higgins contributed largely to the pleasure of the evening by rendering several duets on the violin and piano.

The handsome and imposing pumping station of the American waterworks company, of which Mr. Reynolds is superintendent, was lighted up from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m., and the scene which had the pleasure of inspecting the building and observing the ponderous engine which pumps water for 150,000 people. Many of the guests strolled about the settling basins and some climbed to the top of the tower and viewed the river by moonlight. Later in the evening delicious refreshments were served, after which the guests drove home in the moonlight.

Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Thain, the Misses Edna and Jessie Thain, Mr. and Mrs. Tate, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Copeland, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh G. Clark, Dr. and Mrs. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Russell, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Rhoads, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Little, Mrs. Engel and son, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Honoring a Member.

In honor of Mr. and Mrs. M. Holzheim the Metropolitan club threw open its doors Thursday evening and formally inaugurated the season of social affairs which have been so much a part of the club's history in the past.

Mr. and Mrs. Holzheim but recently joined the ranks of the hostesses and the beneficiaries, and this was their formal entrance into society in the role of married people.

The music room of the club was very prettily and effectively decorated with ferns, smilax and flowers, in one corner of which a canopy of roses had been erected, and under this sheltering mantle the bride and groom received their friends.

The personnel of the club, which embraces many of the best known men in the city, was largely represented, the wives and lady friends of the members contributing to the charm and enjoyment of the evening by their presence. And what would a reception be without the seal of approval, the play of "Hamlet" was Hamlet omitted.

From 8:30 until 10 o'clock the particular guests of the evening were not allowed to rest from the general handshaking and listening to the oft repeated expressions of good cheer for the new life which opens to them. At 10 o'clock the guests adjourned to the dancing room of the club, in the third story, and until midnight gave themselves up to the enjoyment of the waltz, or listening to the music of the Musical Union orchestra.

Shortly after the last number had been danced a very tempting banquet was served in the dining room of the club under the management of the club's chef, the menu being particularly attractive. The menu included: Toasts were proposed and responded to by a number of well known people, rounding out the evening which was most charming in every particular.

Among those present: Mr. and Mrs. Max Holzheim, Mr. and Mrs. George Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. Mable Meyer, Mrs. Max Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Cahn, Mrs. Albert Cahn, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Haas, Mr. and Mrs. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. H. Cohn, Mr. and Mrs. Aarab Cahn, Mr. and Mrs. Loriz Stoman, Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Braaske, Mrs. Sol Bergand, Misses Hollis, sister of Mrs. Holzheim, Helman, Tillie Newman, Etta Newman, Adelle Newman, Carrie Goldsmith, Pauline Goldsmith, Lincoln, Seligson, Daily, Polich, Messrs. Silverstein, Julius Meyer, G. L. Stonehill, G. A. Stonehill, Fred Seligson, Gus Deiches, Lou Wessel, Lincoln; Ed Wessel, Philip Ross, Aaron Zanies.

The Muenstering Musicals.

Mr. and Mrs. Muenstering inaugurated the season's musicals Wednesday evening at their home, 120 North Twenty-sixth street, a number of guests being present to enjoy evening with one of our best known pianists and listen to several of the madama's papas.

Mrs. Muenstering and Miss Ella Schmidt opened the short programme which had been arranged with a duo for two pianos, an arrangement of "Trois" by Miss Schmidt surprised her friends by her very correct method and the display of an admirable technique. The gem of the evening, however, was the rendition of Beethoven's concerto in C minor, arranged in three movements, the audience for the first being written by Muenstering. Essentially a concert composition, we are afraid the people of Omaha would grow very tired of it because of its length, and the majestic nature of the theme. Never before heard in our city it was a revelation to many of the guests present, and it was played with masterful effect, Mrs. Muenstering at the first piano, Miss Clara Hawley playing the orchestral arrangement, which is really the mise-en-scene of the composition, at the second.

The finale of the first movement was given in faultless style, Mrs. Muenstering showing by the excellence of its interpretation the care and attention to detail which she gave it. The last movement, which is written in rondo form, shows Beethoven at his best; in the first he is philosophic to a degree; in the last his philosophy gives place to an enthusiasm for his art which he reflects in one of the greatest, if not the greatest concertos ever known.

The closing number brought forward Miss Hawley quite prominently in a series of variations from Schumann, with Mrs. Muenstering at the second piano. Miss Hawley was a pupil of Emil Lebling of Chicago and many of his mannerisms are reflected in her playing.

At the close of the short programme delightful refreshments were served. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. William Scott, Dr. and Mrs. Grossman, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Schmidt, Miss Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Chase, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Peattie, Mr. and Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. A. H. Hamis of Philadelphia, Mrs. Hawley, Miss Clara Hawley, Mrs. McCarty, Mrs. E. B. Lewis, Mrs. Scott, Miss Frances Scott, Miss Mori, Mr. George B. Tschuck.

Coaching in Nebraska.

Mr. W. B. Millard, who has one of the finest dairies in the state, and a stock farm of considerable magnitude near Calhoun, has added to his entourage a handsome Concord coach purchased through James Stephenson. In order to properly devote his new property he gave a coaching party last week to a number of his gentlemen friends that almost rivalled the famous drive of Mr. M. H. Patrick two summers ago.

The party, composed of Colonel J. M. Eddy, in whose honor the affair was given, Colonel S. S. Curtis, Captain P. H. Jay, J. N. Marschal, crossing beyond the Indian reservation, from the Millard hotel and John S. Collins, met at Calhoun last Thursday a week. They were abundantly supplied with all the necessities to make such a trip enjoyable, and Mrs. Millard's cook and two assistants, Leary and Calhoun their first stop was made at Tekamah. From Tekamah they coached to Decatur. Crossing beyond the Indian reservation, from Decatur the guns were brought out and the sportsmen enjoyed a short season among the prairie chickens which they found in abundance. Hancock was the next stop, and then West Point. From the latter place they crossed to Tekamah and back to Calhoun, probably making two hundred miles in the drive.

They arrived home Thursday, having been out just six days. During their outing they were accompanied and enjoyed their meals under the shadow of the oaks, and as the tree which was usually set up alongside of their wheeled house or amid the trees, Mrs. Millard conceived the idea of having a few lady and gentlemen friends join them in a ride to Decatur, the guests meeting at Calhoun Friday evening, the start being made yesterday. The party will be several days and is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Millard, Mr. and Mrs. John Wilber, Captain and Mrs. P. H. Jay and Mr. and Mrs. Carter.

High Five Once More.

General and Mrs. Cowin inaugurated the season's card parties Thursday evening at their temporary residence on Georgia avenue, having taken Mr. Frank's house for the summer. Many of the best card players of the city were present, for some of the guests have grown tired of dancing and would rather sit over a game of cards than indulge in the pleasures which are synonymous with youth. All of the guests were experts, one might say, and per consequence the series of high five games were played with real enthusiasm. In awarding the prizes the following were found to have won: First to Mrs. Bennett, Judge Thurston; second to Miss Hanson, Mrs. Mosenman; who played a gentleman's hand for the occasion; bookies, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Mosenman. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Bennett, Judge and Mrs. Thurston, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Mosenman, Mr. and Mrs. Pritchett, Mr. and Mrs. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. Horbach, Mr. and Mrs. Catlin, Mr. and Mrs. Contant, Mrs. Hanson, Miss Hanson, Mrs. Mosenman, Mrs. Dandy, Mrs. Mosenman, Mr. W. V. Morse, Mr. Drake and Mr. Barlow.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Lange entertained their friends at cards at the Greenleaf club rooms Thursday evening. The party was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and the following guests participated: Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Lange, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Metz, Mr. and Mrs. William Gyger, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Nagle, the Misses Gussie, Ida and Annie Metz, Mrs. A. B. Soper, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Jacquelin, Council Bluffs; Messrs. Charles and Arthur Metz, Charles and Arthur Smith, Mrs. Lechner, Mrs. S. S. Curtis, Mrs. Mosenman, Mr. W. V. Morse, Mr. Drake and Mr. Barlow.

Their Tenth Anniversary.

The new home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Fitzmorris, 142 South Seventeenth street, was the scene of a very pleasant reunion Monday evening. The occasion was doubly interesting. It was the tenth anniversary of the marriage of the host and hostess, and the event was appropriately observed by "house warming," thirty-five couples being in attendance. Dancing was indulged in by young and old, and also cards and other games. An elegant supper was served from 10 to 12.

With few exceptions all those in the city who attended the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmorris, August 25, 1880, were present and participated in the festivities of the anniversary. Some had been called to the other shore others had moved from the city, but those remaining together with a host of new friends, made the dual event one of unbounded pleasure. It is an interesting coincidence that the new residence is located on the spot where the original wedding was celebrated ten years before. It is an elegant, commodious home of attractive design and finished in natural woods.

A Coaching Party.

Coaching parties have been the fad this summer among the stay-at-homes, and almost any night you could hear the horn of the bellier awaking the echoes of the streets and setting at defiance all the police regulations of the city. But then it was such jolly fun that one can easily overlook these little breaches of the peace for the sake of the innocent enjoyment which was derived by the coaches. Tuesday evening Mr. Al Patrick had his lullaby out and was accompanied by Miss Orlich, Miss Sharp, Miss Ida Sharp, Mrs. K. E. Henson, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Finley, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Rowder, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton, Henry Wyman, Will Wymore, Hal McCord, W. A. Kiedick and Charles K. Henson. The party drove to and through Council Bluffs and returning became the guests of Mrs. Joseph Barker, where a tempting luncheon was served.

A Newspaper Man's Wedding.

On the evening of August 23, Miss Stella Flowers of Cleves, a suburb of Cincinnati, O., was united in marriage to Mr. Cecil Hastings, telegraph editor of the World-Herald. The wedding took place in the sanctuary of Trinity cathedral, Dean C. H. Gardner pronouncing the words which united two loving hearts.

The ceremony was a quiet one, only the immediate friends of the high contracting parties being present.

Mr. Hastings is receiving the hearty congratulations of his many friends, and Mr. Hastings has gone to Cleves with the intention of completing a course in music at the Cincinnati conservatory.

Mr. and Mrs. Hastings are well known in this city, the handsome accomplished bride having been the guest of her sister, Mrs. M. Marks, on Dodge street, during the summer. Mr. Hastings has been connected with the World-Herald for some time, and has a large circle of friends in this city.

Diners Out.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Udo Brachvogel invited a few of their friends in formally to their residence, Twentieth and Cass streets, a pleasant feature of which was the piano playing of Mrs. Muenstering. Later on a dainty supper was served, presided over by Mrs. Brachvogel, who is famous among her friends as a most excellent cook. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Peycke, Mr. and Mrs. George Heimrod, Dr. and Mrs. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Williams entertained at dinner Tuesday evening, at their residence, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Nichols, Dr. and Mrs. Crummer, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Powell and Mrs. Dryden.

Around the Banquet Board.

The cafe of the Paxton was the scene of a very pleasant gathering Tuesday evening, the occasion being a banquet tendered to Dr. Alf Raymond as a testimonial of the esteem and good wishes of friends prior to his departure from Omaha for Sioux City, where he has accepted a position as one of the corps of lecturers in the Northwestern university of medicine, recently instituted there. The company was composed of Drs. Gilmore, Jones, Blair, Anglin, Kelley, Cluck, McDonald, K. E. Henson, Mr. and Mrs. Messrs. Albert Kelly, C. W. Partridge, C. W. Sherman, J. W. McDonald, Louis Schwallenberg, H. E. McDonald, E. C. Snyder and Clement Chase.

The Board of Trade's Move.

The census of the United States, now completed, which has shown many cities to be far behind boomers' figures, has left Omaha high above all its competitors. This, together with other encouraging improvements for the city's future, has induced the board of trade to issue a souvenir that will set forth in the most interesting manner possible the cause of the city's increase. All arrangements have been made to make the souvenir, when completed one of the most interesting and attractive publications ever issued in the west. It will be illustrated with new and modern views of prominent buildings, residences, etc., and giving the statistics for the past ten years—between the tenth and eleventh United States censuses—showing Omaha's great growth and the causes. In order that it shall be more complete and that the business men may take more interest in the proposed enterprise the board of trade has made arrangements with The Bee to publish for them an extra issue of the paper on the occasion of the issue of the souvenir. Those who give this their support will not only receive the benefit of The Bee's large regular circulation, but of giving the statistics for the past ten years—between the tenth and eleventh United States censuses—showing Omaha's great growth and the causes. Let us see more of the young gentlemen, Mr. Leonard.
