THE RETREATING COLONELS. Throwing Dirt to Cover Their Ignominious Flight from the Battle Field.

A SET OF BRAZEN BLATHERSKITES. The Same Old Tactics of Slender, Vituperation and Fabrication—The Real Trouble at Grand Island.

The recent Grand Island debate, at which two of the chosen champions of prohibition turned tail, has given rise to a great deal of abuse, slander and downright falsification.

Edward Rosewater has shown himself to be utterly incapable of meeting the requirements of the management of the Grand Island sugar palace. His conduct has been a disgrace to the cause.

Now what are the facts? In the middle of August Mr. Scarff, the general manager of the sugar palace, called on Mr. Rosewater at the Grand Island office and asked as a favor to the sugar palace people, that he would consent to take part in a four-hour debate on the question of prohibition.

On the next day Mr. Scarff was in the debate only on the conditions which were set forth by Mr. Rosewater in the following letter: OMAHA, August 23, 1890—Mr. C. W. Scarff, Grand Island, Neb.—My Dear Sir: You request to Hon. E. Rosewater and myself to meet on September 14th at 10 o'clock a. m. at St. John's in a joint debate upon the prohibition question.

Mr. F. E. Collins of Des Moines, a brother-in-law of W. H. Scott, who mysteriously disappeared a few days ago, called at the Bee office and expressed great surprise that nothing had been done towards finding the missing man.

Mr. Collins said that Mr. Scott had on his person at the time he disappeared a diamond ring valued at $100, a handsome gold watch and chain besides about $100 in money. He described him as being of slender build, with sloping shoulders, about five feet high, with light hair, and a mustache.

Mr. Miller, of the Commercial National bank, was seen, and stated that he had written to Chief Seavey requesting him to take steps to find a trace of the man and also, to notify the chiefs of police of the larger cities of his disappearance.
