Delegates to the ninth annual convention of the International Funeral Directors association arrived by a special train over the Chicago and Northwestern at 3e'clock yesterday afternoon.

The convention will be held in this city. commencing this morning, lasting through Wednesday and Thursday and closing with a banquet Thursday evening.

The International Funeral Directors asso ciation is composed of undertakers in the United States and Canada. It was organ ized in Detroit in 1881 by a few active spirits in the profession who were filled with a desire to promote the spirit of brotherly love, to inculcate prici-ples of purity of character, temperate habits and establish a professional education and billion and stablish a professional education and and establish a professional education and ability which should be a standard by which function functal directors may by diploma and law practice their profession. The association consists of three delegates for the first 100 and an additional delegate for each additional 100 and majority fraction thereof from each state and territorial asso-ciation of the United States and provincial association in Canada.

The second and third conventions of the as Bociation were held in Chicago and, with increasing membership and interest each year, subsequent conventions have been held at Cleveland, Pittsburg, Baltimore and Tor-

The convention at the last mentioned place was one of the largest in the history of association. At that meeting a spirited but friendly contest was held over the selection of a place for holding the present convention. The Omaha board of trade, through Secretary Nason, presented an invitation to the association to meet in Omaha, which he des-ignated as one of the central commercial cities of the west with ample hotel and trans-portation facilities to accomodate all comers. He assured the association that the delegates would be hospitably entertained should they select Omaha as the place for holding their next convention

The Neoraska delegates at the Toronto meeting were James Heaton of Lincoln, M. Reed of Hastings and H. K. Burket of Ornaha. They all urged Omaha's claims for the coming meeting of the association and when this city was unanimously selected, Mr. Reed made a happy speech. He thanked the delegates heartily for their honoring the metropolis of his state. "Onnaha has now a population of 110,000 and by the time you meet us we will have 135,000, if she grows as fast during the coming year as she has in the past. Then I can assure you, too, that you will incur no risks from savage Indians, as just now Buffalo Bill has all of them in Paris !

Recent census figures show that Mr. Reed was conservative rather than enthusiastic concerning the population of the city in which the coming convention will be held. The officers of the International Funeral Directors' association are as follows: President, Robert R. Bringhurst, Philade phia, Pari, first vice-president, John B. Me Intyre, St. Catherines, Ont; second vice president, S. Major Clarkson's Name Sent to the Senate Yesterday,

A special telegram to THE BEE yesterday stated that the president had sent to the senate the name of Thaddeus S. Clarkson to be postmaster in this city. Major Clarkson first learned of his appointment from a representative of THE BEE. "Well! well! THE BEE is ahead of mehaven't received the word yet myself, peronally or otherwise," replied the comnander of the department of Nebraska, Grand Army of the Republic.

"How does the news suit you !" was asked. "I am pleased. Certainly I am pleased, and very much so," came the reply.

"What will be your policy as to the changes in the office!" "You must excuse me from anything like an interview at present. According to my ideal consider that anything approaching an extended expression of my views on anything of the kind wh atever now would be ill-timed and not good taste at all. I cannot know that I am to be postmaster until I have my commission in my pocket. And I cer-tainly do not know what I shall do until that time comes. I have never given a moment's thought to the workings of the office."

"But you can give the public a few general words on the subject now, since the president has sent your name to the senate for confirmation After a moment or two of silent study, Con Gallagher's successor said: "As for any changes of any character or in writing of such work as has not been done ago that convinced me that Major Clarkson to their safisfaction and deliver the same to the contractor the same day, and the con-tractor shall not be credited with the same or allowed any payment therefore unless the street is satisfactorily cleaned the night immediately following.

"Now," continued Major Furay, "if any work that hasn't been satisfactory, has not been complained of on the same day, then it must be paid for." Mr. Tillson spoke next:

"I want to ask you, Mr. Kierstead, how Farnan street has been cleaned !" "There have been no compaintstome -not a

one. I think the street has been cleaned well," was the reply, "and futhermore I will say that I don't think the streets of Omaha have ever been cleaned as well as they have been since

Mr. Squires has been cleaning them.' "But the Barber asphalt folks," ejaculated Chairman Birkhauser, "from the man who puddles the tar to the highest man, treat me insolently, they defy me and my inspectors, and do you gentlemen think I should or am going to stand that; other contractors don't do that, and what's more I hear lots of kicks on this company's sweeping. They haven't the proper machinery." "No you shouldn't be treated insciently or defied," said Mr. Furay. "That's not right and must not be." "No you mustn't," added Mr. Klerstead. "My inspector is just as good as yours" ex-claimed Mr. Tilloson "and do you, Mr. Birk-hauser, think that I should take the word of your inspector before I take the word of

"I never asked you to do such a thing," replied the chairman, "but you bet I propose to believe what my inspector says."

"Well, I don't want to split any hairs or make things burdensome for anybody" said Mr. Birkhauser, "but I want this board to understand that I propose to assert my au thority in these matters just as far as that authority goes."

"I don't believe in being too technical with these folks on this street sweeping business." "You men hold on now," broke in Major Furay, "and let me tell you that if you two will do your business—attend to your duties -there will never be any occasion for these fusses and fights. I've had a letter telling me that another city is going to adopt our street cleaning rules verbatim and that shows they are mighty good. Now you two men 'em.'

"I don't believe that Tillson's inspector does his work right" exclaimed Birkhauser.

"O, well, don't lets wrangle over that now," said Furny. And that was the way it went for nearly two hours.

Finally the estimate was passed, Kierstend and Furay voting yes and Birkhauser no. The board then adjourned to Tweutieth street, south of Vinton, to inspect some block pavement that is being laid by J. E. Riley & Co. under a last year's contract. The visit was paid on account of the fact that it had been charged that Riley has been putting in a it of rotten material. A wrong corset tortures or worries a woman worse than anything else she has on, or can put on, unless it be a wrong shoe.

There is a right corset, a ready-made corset, right for almost every woman-one. There is only one of which the seller will say "Bring it back in a week, or two, or three, and get your money for it, if you are willing to part with it;" and that one is Ball's.

There's a primer on Corsets for you at the store.
