A sensation was created among the Western Union telegraph operators in this city yesterday by the discharge of twoof the best operators in the city, presumably because they were members of the newly organized Brotherhood of Telegraphers.

The discharged men are Peter Frenzer and Joseph Adams, who have ranked as first class telegraphers. Adams was released by Chief Operator Applegate at noon. He asked the reason for his release and was informed that his work was not satisfactors.

It is the opinion of the operators generally that the men were discharged because they are members of the newly organized Tele-graphers' brotherhood. Word has been re-ceived from Chicago that active workers in the new brotherhood have been discharged by the Western Union managers without any apparent cause and without any explanation.

The local brotherhood was formed a few weeks ago and numbers about forty of the best telegraphers in the city.

It is runored that more members of the order are to be discharged and if such is the Case trouble may be expected.

Three more men were discharged last even ing. They were Matt. Golf, E. Fitch and M. Cardy.

They are all first-class operators and were very much surprised by the action of the company. They questioned Mr. Applegate concerning the matter but could get no satisfactory reply. The only answer was that they had been found to be incompetent. There is no doubt in the minds of the gentlemen discharged that this is a minds

IS IT BLACKMAIL?

The Arrest of Two Doctors for Improper Use of the Mails. "Dr." William Harlowe Davis, lately of San Francisco and his wife, Mrs. "Dr." Lester Davis, alias Sophie Search, who claims to be a daughter of ex-Mayor Holcombe of Savannah, Ga., are in the county jail under $300 bonds each for their appearance at the next term of the United States court.

The crime with which they are charged is a violation of the act of June 18, 1888, in sending obscene, scurrilous, defamatory and threatening matter through the mails.

The recipients of the letters and postals were a Mr. and Mrs. Hay of Waterloo, 1a. The missives are not fit to print in THE BEE and are accordingly withheld.

The letters were forwarded to the postoffice inspector at Chicago and Messrs. West and Fleming, two of the inspectors were detailed to look the matter up. Thep succeeded in locating the "doctors" at 1021 Farnam street. Davis asked the visitors whether they had come to receive treatment at his hands.

They replied that they had not. They were simply agents for Mr. Hay of Waterloo, Ia., and wanted to know what kind of a settlement Davis would consent to make.

That scientist said that he wanted his money.

At this stage of the proceedings Mrs. Davis left the room, and, after a little further par-ley, she was recalled and the objectionable missives were produced by the inspectors. Both Davis and his wife admitted that they had written them, and that beforedoing so had taken the advice of an attorney. The pair of scribes were then put unde

The punishment for the offense alleged is a fine of $5,000 and imprisonment for five years, or both, in the discretion of the courts. The pair waived examination before Com-missioner Dundy and were held to the United States court. The imprisoned scientists were visited in jail by a BEE reporter.

They found their way to Omaha and from this place they sent the letters and postal cards which caused their arrest.

Behind this there is a story as told by the two prisoners. Mrs. Davis claims to be a newspaper correspondent and carries cards SOPHIR SEARCH. San Francisco, Cal. With Morning Times.

She claims the name "Sophie Search" as her nom de plume. She claims also to be a spiritualist and fortune teller. H. M. Davis claims to combine the art of magnetic healing with his powers as a spirat-ualist and the two, it is alleged, worked the gullible people of San Francisco.

Davis and his wife, it seems, were living in San Francisco, where they followed the business of fortune telling, magnetic healing and various other spiritualistic lines. Among their acquaintances were Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hay. Mr. Hay was a wholesale wine merchant, whose relatives lived in Waterloo. Ia., where Hay posed as an ardent pro-hibitionist.

Hay, it is alleged, suggested to Davis that, they form a co-partnership and travel about, Davis giving exhibitions of his magnetic Davis giving exhibitions of his magnetic healing powers and Hay acting as business manager. Davis consented, at Hay's suggestion, paid $500 into the fund of the concern, but did not take a receipt from Hay.

When they were ready to start, Hay insisted that Davis should leave his wife behind and this was done. Davis claims that previous to their departure, and while he was using his magnetic rowers upon Mrs. Hay using his magnetic powers upon Mrs. Hay, the lady made improper advances a number of times and he finally yielded to her en-

The party came to Omaha, where they remained several days, but Hay refused to allow Davis to give an exhibition of his powers. In the meantime Mrs. Davis came to Omaha also, greatly to Hay's disgust.

The party next went to Waterloe, Ia., leaving Mrs. Davis in Omaha, penniless and a stranger, Davis stating that Hay had all his money and refused tagive him a cent for

At Waterloo, Davis says Mr. Hay directed him to treat Mrs. Hay's mother, an old lady, the wife of Dr. Carpenter.

Dr. Carpenter was reported to be the possessor of considerable property and Hay wished Davis to convert him to spiritualism by representing that a dead son of the old gentleman had directed that he make his will in favor of his daughter, Mrs. Hay. When he should have done this, Hay it is alleged, wished him to administer a strong shock of electricity to old Mrs. Carpenter and kill her, and then the old gentleman would soon fol-and then the old gentleman would soon follow.

This, Davis says, he refused to do and insisted upon his $500 or some portion of it being returned to him. About this time Davis received a letter from Mrs. Davis stating that she was very sick.

He demanded his money from Hay, and the latter made a pretext of going to Chicago after it. While he was gone more letters came from Mrs. Davis and Davis prevailed upon Mrs. Hav to give him money enough to get back to Omaha. She finally did so, and he came back to find his wife confined to bed at No. 511 North Seventeenth street.

As soon as Mrs. Davis was able to write As soon as Mrs. Davis was able to write As soon as Mrs. Davis was able to write they both commenced writing to the Hays at Waterloo for the money which Davis had paid Hay. The letters of Mrs. Davis were particularly bitter and accused Mrs. Hay of alienating the affections of her husband. Some of the communications were written on postal cards and came, it is alleged, within the pale The only explanation they offer for Hays' actions, aside from wanting Davis' money, is that he wished him to be a part of his family. Davis says that they often told him that himself and wife believed in free love, but did not want Mrs. Davis around. Davis around.

In one of her letters to Mrs. Hay, Mrs. Davis said she would tell the story to the world if the money was not forthcoming, and she "had the papers solid."

Morrissey and Niday Open a Couple of Rounds in the Mayor's Presence. The particulars have only just gained publicity of a fisticust encounter between a city official and his deputy, which took place in Mayor Cushing's office last Friday afternoon.

It appears that Morrissey and Niday metin the mayor's office to confer with that official the mayor's office to confer with that official on matters relating to the enforcement of the garbage law. Morrissey had experienced some trouble in collecting from Niday, and both men became excited in rehearsing their grievances to the mayor.
