At a recent meeting of the Omaha ministerial union, the Rev. Mr. Holt introduced a set of resolutions which recommended that the churches of the state observe Sunday. November 2, as a "prohibitory amendment field day," and that an appropriate sermos on the duty of Christian voters in regard to the pending election be preached, and the sinews of war be collected to fight anti-prohibition-

To obtain the trend of opinion among the clergy regarding the resolution a representa-tive of The Ber called on several eminent clergymen of various denominations and asked them whether they would observe the day recommended.

The first gentleman seen was Rev. T.S.
Fitzgerald, S. J., of St. John's church at Creighton college. After reading the resolution, the reverend gentleman said:

"We have nothing whatever to do with that resolution. We regard the question of probi-bition as a political one without question, and as such, one entirely out of place in the pul-pit. If I were approached on the subject and asked to call a meeting for such a purpose I should simply refuse. I shall ignore the question of such a field day. As a church, we will not move in the matter I am very sure."

Rev. W.J. Harshasaidthat he had been at the meeting in question but, as the subject was one which he could not consistently countenance, he had quietly withdrawn.
"I will not support it." he said, "as it is a pointful question, and as such the tenets of the Presbyterian church will not allow its intro-duction into the pulpit. I believe in allow-ing every man to vote as his conscience dictates, and I propose to advocate nothing in the pulpit of a political nature. Several of the prominent members of my church in session denounced the whole matter, and you may say that my church will not act in the may say that my church will not act in the matter."

Rev. Dr. Zahner, rector of All Saints' church that seen the resolution in point, and, replying to the reporter's question said:

"No, this church will not observe the day as recommended, but the presiding bishop of this diocese has sent out a request to the clerry that November 16 be set apart as a day on which the great subject of temperance be presented to the people. If prohibition be adopted, I do not think it would last long. It could not be enforced and would eventually be killed by public sentiment. If prohibition would prohibit, I should be for it and I think that before many years the questions will solve itself, and future generations wonder that their progressions and residence taken down and then greatly to his surprise takey now and they prosed to question him in regard to the census enumeration. LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 24 .- [Special to THE BEE. - Charles Clark is a man who is employed on city work under Street Commissioner Byers and today he mourns the loss of a wife, six children and all his chattels.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark and their six children have been living on First and B streets. As the result of his savings for over ten years Clark owned a horse and six cows. Yesterday morning he went to work as usual, but when he returned home at night he found wife, children, horse and cows missing. He made inquiries among his neighbors and was astonished to learn that the wife of his bosom had learned to love a younger and uglier man and had eloped with him. Clark then scoured the town in the hope of finding his wife and her paramour, but his search was fruitless. He says that the man who has robbed him of his wife, children and has robbed him of his wife, children and chattels is Harry Hurst. And yet this man Hurst. Clark claims, is a dead beat who is familiar with the interior of the county jail and has never made an honest living.

Clark says that he doesn't care so much for the old woman, but he does want his property back. He also declares that he has learned that Hurst made it a point to visit his home during his absence and make protracted calls on Mrs. Clark.
