The musical committee of the M. M. A. gives another of their popular free enter tainments, to which all are welcome, in the Masonic Temple on Monday evening.

The district court did not have even motions enough to occupy but a small portion of the time yesteriay, and adjournment was taken until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The funeral of Mrs. Flora B. Harmer will occur this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the First Baptist church, instead of from the residence, as formerly announced. Inter-ment will be in Walnut Hill cemstery.

Wall McFadden has been appointed to take charge of the funds for the relief of the desti-tute soldiers and their families, in place of J tute soldiers and their families, in place of J. C. Dellaven, who having served long and faithfully now asks to be relieved. Mr. Mc Fadden can be found at the court house.

On Friday night last a large attendance was had at the residence of Rev. S. Alexander, the occasion being a social entertain-ment given by the young ladies of Trinity Methodist church. The programme consisted music, readings and recitations, followed by an oyster supper.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. O. W. Graham, proprietor of one of the plasing mills in the city, suffered a severe accident that will lay him up for some time. By some unaccount able means he was caught in the gearing of one of the machines in his shop, and suffered a severe fracture of one of his arms.

A lodge of Knights of Pythias was instituted at Underwood, Ia., November 13, with twentAseven charter members, by Special Deputy Grand Chancellor John J. Stork. The work was done by the Neola lodge. Grand Inner Guarff J. M. Scanlan and Brothers R D. Coase and C. Wesley of Council Bluffs were present.

The St. Francis bazar will open Monday evening, November 34, at Dohany's opera-house with two plays, the "Bouquet of Rose Spirits" and "An Hour in Fairy Land." The former will be represented by seventeen girls in groups of pink, red, yellow and white roses, dryads and a rose queen. "An Hour in Fairy Land" will be represented by twenty-five or thirty children, and will be a rare treat for the young people.

Sheriff Delashmutt of Mills county was in the city yesterday looking for A. C. Tolles, a saloonkeeper in this city, who is wanted in Glenwood for some kind of a crooked deal 1 connection with an original package house h conducted there for a short time. Tolles could not be found during the day and the sheriff returned without his man. Later in the evening Marshal Templeton found Tolle and placed him under arrest. Captain Hayes has been on the police force and in other positions which would naturally educate a man sufficiently to make him proof against the wiles of confidence men, but even he was caught the other day by a rather fine looking, middle aged man, who represented himself as W. L. Sherman of Juniata, Neb. He claimed to have been a captain in owner. the army, and later a clerk in the treasury department at Washington. He had numerous papers and documents which seemed to support his brief blographical sketch, and o won the confidence of his newly found soldier friend, that he had tle difficulty in getting Hayes to endorse a little draft for him, to enable him to get the noney on it a, the bank. Sherman made a plausible excuse for being short of funds and he only wanted $10. He drew a draft on himself, claiming to have plenty of money at home, and with the endorsement got it cashed. In due course of time the draft came back, with protest fees, which Haves had to pay also. Captain Hayes wrote to responsiparties at Juniata, and received the com forting reply that no such man was known there, and that similar inquiries had been received from other places indicating that the same fellow was playing such tricks right The old soldiers should be on the watch for the fellow, and if possible take him in. Continuation of the great clearing sale at THE BOSTON STORE.

He estimates that he still has a dozen ropes which were procured to hang him and says a small armory of pistois and guns were loaded with the intention of sending their contents into his body at the most convenient place. He edited the Bugle, a weekly paper published here during the war. It was owned by Colonel L. W. Babbit, who was Seymour democrat. Sheward was not ontent with as mild an appellation of his content political views and announced himself a "rank copperhead." The frank announce-ment and the fearless opinions expressed in every issue of the Bugle made it very inter-esting for the editor during the war times. On one occasion, when he was living in one of the little glens, which he thinks is now Glen avenue, he was visited late at night by a band of masked men. In the dim light the appeared to the number a hundred or more and Sheward noticed that each of them carried a rope. They ordered him to come out and be hung by the neck until he was dead, or as a compromise to pull on his clothes and leave the town within fifteen minutes. Shewar says he recollects that it was not agoodnight for being hung and was a still worse one to be driven out of town, and he concluded that he would not consent to either proposition He announced it over the muzzle of an old re volver that had not been fired for years, and the crowd thought that he might hurt somebody and they left. Sheward says he found ropes enough lying around on the ground the next morning to supply his wife The fact concerning the city which Mr. nomination in the democratic convention. Sheward is particularly proud of is his con-nection with the movement that was started a 1865 to remove the capital of the United States to the Mississippi valley. He claims the honor of being the first person to suggest the scheme, and like everything else he at-tempted he tried to make a success of it. He secured the nomination of Colonel Babbit for the legislature and worked successfully for his election. As soon as Babbitt got into his seat he introduced a bill that Sheward had the old Phillips shoe store. prepared recommending the calling of state conventions to urge the removal of the national capital to Council Bluffs on account o the central location and the security tha could be insured from foreign attacks. While casting her eyes about in the apparently apparently hopeless effort of securing assist ance to recover her property she saw Officer Wyatt. She ran to him quickly and told him the circumstances. The train by this time was out of sight. The officer telephoned to Deere, Wells & Co., at the lower end of Main street, requesting them to send a man out to stop the car and have the conductor take the satchel in charge. The car was hailed and the message delivered, but as the conductor went back to get the valuable package he saw a man with it in his possession disappearing through the rear door. He stopped the fellow before he got to the side walk and ordered him to return the grip. The fellow claimed that it was his property and refused to do it. He was then invited to return with the train to the point where the lady and the officer were waiting. In the meantime the conductor had got his hand on the grip and giving it a quick jerk got it away from the fellow, who protested got if away from the felow, who protested mildly and weakly, but refused to get on the train and return and confront the lady and the policeman. A Chance for Charity. The destruction by fire of the house of Mrs. James Casey, as narrated in yesterday's BEE. leaves that worthy woman and her five children in a really deplorable condition. They have absolutely nothing left, and no means with which to supply themselves. The neighbors are caring for them temporarily An excellent opportuntity is here offered for the exercise of charity on the part of those inclined. There are many homes in the city which would hardly miss the old clothing. used farniture, bedding, etc., which would so readily supply the needs of the distressed family. Mrs. Casey is a hard working, honest woman, whose pride is sorely hurt by the necessity which now compels her to seek temporary help for herself and children. Mr.

Hardin, the supervisor, has arranged to give her some help from the county funds, and he will also see to the proper delivery of cloth-ing left at his office in the court house. Those who find it more convenient can le ave their contributions at No. Si5 Main street, where Mrs. Casey is at present.

Anna Walls has concluded to go it alone and for this reason has brought suit against her husband, Thomas Allen Walls, to secure a divorce. She alleges that she married Thomas Allen ten years ago in Council Bluffs and has always been a faithfulland obedient wife, while Thomas has failed to be that kind of a husband. To begin with, a short time after the marriage the defendant with his clenched fist knocked the plaintiff down and then kicked her. After this, and upon two occasions, he got the shotgun and pointing it at the plaintiff swore he would take her life, But this was not all. During the winter of 1889, while the two were living in this city the defendant, during a blizzard, drove the plaintiff out into the cold night and forced er to remain there until morning. GOBBLING UP DESERT LAND. Speculators said to be Filing Claims Hegally in Idaho.

Within the last ninety days 50,000 acres of land have been taken up in the vicinity of Idaho Falls, Idaho, under the desert land act. Special agent Tyner of the land department suspected that the land was being taken up for speculative purposes and investigated, says a Helena, Mont., despatch to the Chicago Tribune. He found that the entries were being made be eastern parties who had been induced to file on claims by a Denver syndidate. It is alleged that parties of eastern people were taken to Idaho Falls on special excursions and then taken by wagons across the Snake river to some high point where the view is unobstructed for twenty miles. The parties would then go to the land-office and make affidavit that they had visited each tract upon which entry was made. The law requires that each person visit the tract entered upon and make onth that the land is pot taken up for speculative purposes. The special agent thinks he can have all such entries canceled. Bonafide settlers are com-plaining, as the land will be tied up and held back from settlement three years, The records of the land office of Idaho show that one day over twenty entries were made by Chicago parties. Larga parties were also brought from Portland, Denver and Salt Lake. If this is kept up all the desert land will be tied up within a short time. The matter is to be brought before the department of Washington and if the entries are orbrought before the department at dered canceled the eastern parties who have been taken into the scheme will be out the expense of the trip and the fees paid the company inducing them to go.

Specimens of the tounty's Wood. When the accounts for the farmers' congress were balanced up it was found that there remained a few dollars unexpended. It was dedided to use this in securing specimens of timber grown in Pottawattamie county for a permanent display in the farmers' hall in the county court house. Specimens have been cecured, and as soon as they are sufficiently seasoned they will be polished so as to better show the various grains. To the surprise of all, the number of different woods thus secured is sixty-two, there being a far larger variety than was thought of. Still others will probably be added, although the search has been oute thorarch. When mark. the search has been quite thorough. Whe complete the display will be an interesting

OMAHA IS THE BEST.

The Gate City Compared With Other Big Burgs.

Mr. W. I. Kierstead, who has just returned from a ten days' trip to Indianapolis, Columbus and Cleveland, in conversation with a reporter for THE BEE concerning his trip, said that none of the cities named had such clean, wide, well paved streets as Omaha. While Indianapolis and Columbus are not so large, Cleveland is much larger than Omaha, and he thought the three were good cities to draw comparisons with.

"The first impression of Indianapolis to a stranger," said Mr. Kierstead, "is being anded in a magnificent union depot, but a ride of a few hours through the town convinces him that there is a lack of push so noticable in Omaha and Denver. The two or three principle streets are paved with asphalt, the balance with wood, which has a worn and dirty appearance. The street cars are run mostly by electricity, but horses are still used on a few of the side streets. The city is nearly level and aside from the capiol, court house and depot, there is nothing of interest to see. "From Indianapolis a ride of seven hours through a rich level farming country brings one to Columbus, probably the best paved city in the country except Omaha. They have entirely discarded wood pave-ment and use nothing but granite, brick and 12:40 p.m. asphalt. Every street where brick or gran tie is used the cracks are filled with hot tar the same as we do with wood. On all new paving now being done they are using two kinds of brick, one called the Hayden brick made in Haydenville, fifty-seven miles south of Columbus and being five inches square. The other called the Hallwood block, made in Columbus; these are 12 incheslong, inches wide and 5 inches deep. Both o these bricks are patented, one having a hol-low space in the bottom with a rough sur-face on top, the other having beyel edges on top with grooves around the side for the tar to run into. Both, I think, are good pave-ments. I have had some sent me and they will be on exhibition at the board of public works room after tomorrow. They are thor oughly vitrified and as hard as stone Columbus depends largely on its state institutions, having the state prison blind, insame, deaf and dumb and imbe clie asylums located there. The most important industry is the manufacture of buggies. There are seven different concerns, one of There are seven different concerns, one of which, the Columbus Buggy company, is the largest in the world, employing about one thousand men. Their street cars are still drawn by horses, but are soon to be changed to electricity. Nearly all business is done on High street, on which the capitol building stands. Their business blocks are three and four stories high, having an old and dingy ap-pearance. While they are way behind us on business buildings, they are ahead on resi-dences. Broad street is three miles long and 200 feet wide, naved with asshalt. It is 200 feet wide, paved with asphalt. It is parked and on either side fine rows of trees extend its whole length. There are some very fine houses on it, probably one hundred, which cost from $10,000 to $100,000 each.

"Cleveland shows a great deal of pros-perity. Considerable paying is being done, mostly with granite. Garfield's tomb and Euclid avenue are about all a visitor cares to see, excepting, perhaps, the Arcade bazaar, a fine five-story building between three and four hundred feet long. The booths all face on an inner court surrounded by walks twelve feet wide. The entire court is roofed with glass, and when lighted is electricity makes a brilliant spectacle. never saw finer goods than were displayed is these booths, a peculiarity of which was that each one showed an exclusive line. For instance, one had nothing but gloves, another umbrelias, or cut flowers, or neckties, and so there were hundreds of them, each owned by different persons. The street cars run mostly by electricity, which seems to be the favorite in all cities where it is used. In

Lanning Release 1.

Young Frank Lanning, the young lad who was taken into custody several days ago by the police on account of having nearly $500 in his pocket, was sent yesterday to what he claims to be his home, Lusk, Wyo. Tele grams had been sent to lusk by Chief Seavey, aquiring about the boy and his family, bu o information could be obtained. It is no induiring about the boy and his family, but no information could be obtained. It is not definitely "known, therefore, in Omaha whether the boy has a stepmother living at Luck as he claims or not, but as there was no charge acainst bim he could not be rightfully held any longer. He was put aboard the west bound train on the Union Pacific with a ticket through to Lusk and $10 to pay his incidental expenses on the way. He was furnished with a letter stating the reasons why he was detailed in Omaha, and stating that the money held here by the police judge will be forwarded to the parents or such other parties as may have the custody of the boy, when the proper proof and application are furnished Judge Heisley. The boy seemed perfectly willing to go, and said that if Chief Seavey had telegraphed the county clerk at Cheyenne he could have gained some information about his people.
