For some reason, probably the disappointment growing out of the recent election, an interesting movement among politicians in Washington that President Harrison is contemplating an early announcement that he will not be a candidate for re-nomination.

In other words, the president believes that if his administration has proven satisfactory to his constituents, politicians in Washington will not be so ready to re-nominate without any effort of his own.

THE INDIAN MESSIAH.

Serious Trouble Supposed to Be Brewing on the Reservation.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 16.—A Mandan, N. D., special says that the settlers living on the border of the Sioux reservation bring stories of the arming of the Indians, which is borne out by Joseph Buckley, who speaks their language. Buckley came in today and says that every Indian on the reservation will shortly go on a warpath, and that they have got possession of Custer's rifles, which the United States army never found. The local hardware men have in the last few days sold their entire stocks of ammunition to Indians. The Indians say if they are unsuccessful in the raid they will get double ransoms and they have nothing to lose. The city authorities are very anxious to get the Indians out of the reservation. The Indian authorities are harboring a feeling of false security. The mayor of Mandan has called a meeting and the war department will be asked to furnish citizens guns if not with soldiers. Many settlers between Mandan and Custer are abandoning their farms and ranches because of the lack of protection afforded them by the government.

Evil Catherine Clapp's Suit.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 16.—Eva Catherine Clapp of Abbot, Mass., who is said to be a handsome woman, thirty years of age, and an authoress of national repute, yesterday began a suit in the United States district court against her divorced husband, Dwight H. Mink, for $7,000, which was awarded her in the Chicago divorce court in May last. Thirteen years ago Mrs. Mink, who was then fresh from a New England female college, met and loved Mr. Mink in Chicago and afterward married him. Soon after Mrs. Mink's suit was brought she was a former housekeeper, to whom the jury gave $5,000 damages. Mrs. Mink had been married to her second husband, and then separated. She alleged that he had abused her and her confidence. She went back to her Abbot home and devoted herself to house duties. Mrs. Mink was "Mismated." Last spring, however, she became reconciled to her husband and he returned to Chicago and she resumed her literary work. This step will undoubtedly be taken with a view to forcing the issue in the divorce suit. The divorce suit was granted on the ground of cruel and barbarous treatment, and Mink's intimacy with his present wife, Mrs. Mink, was decreed as grounds for divorce. The divorce court decreed $7,000 damages to Mrs. Mink in lieu of a weekly alimony, it being the custom of the Chicago courts to decree lump sums of alimony, and permitted Mrs. Mink to resume her maiden name. Mrs. Mink is a well known literary work, and has just completed her latest work, "A Bright Future." Both of these novels, her counsel said yesterday, will be offered in evidence in the suit to show the condition of her mind before and after the divorce.

Saga's Return.

MADRID, Nov. 16.—[Special Cablegram to The Bee.]—Ex-Primer Sagasta returned today. Sixty thousand liberals escorted him home, shouting, "Long live liberty!"

IT IS A MODEL INSTITUTION.

Management and System of the Genoa School for Indians.

VARIOUS POINTS IN WHICH IT EXCELS.

Of Immense Value to the Country and Popular Among the Indians—Some Facts of Especial Value to Nebraskaans.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—[Special Telegram to The Bee.]—The Indian school system, sustained in whole or in part by the national government, consists of day or camp schools, reservation boarding schools, and non-reservation boarding schools. Of the reservation schools, eleven are wholly maintained at the expense of the government and are conducted by government employes. They are as follows: Albuquerque, N. M.; Carlisle, Pa.; Carson, Nev.; Chilocco, I. T.; Fort Totten, N. D.; Genoa, Neb.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Lawrence, Kan.; Pierre, S. D.; Salem, Ore.; Stanton, Pa.; and Fort Belknap, Mont. There are also several new schools just being opened. Of the others, Carlisle is the oldest, largest and most famous. It accommodates over 600 pupils. Lawrence, Kan., is the next in size with 450, and Genoa stands third with accommodations for 250, to be increased to at least 300.

The Genoa school is a model in its management and is noted for the special care given to instruction in English for its excellent industrial training and for the healthfulness of its location. In Indian school circles it is generally conceded that the future will place the Genoa school at the head of the column. It has all the advantages of location enjoyed by the other non-reservation schools, but is at the same time superior to the reservation schools in the climatic disadvantages which so seriously affect Indian children who are removed to eastern schools. In the matter of profitable industrial training the exhibit of the present superintendent has called forth the commendation of his superior officers. The school is of immense value to the service and as every year passes the Indian agency and originally opened in the abandoned agency buildings after the removal of the Pawnee to Indian Territory, the school was opened February 20, 1874, with a population of only seven from twenty-two years and nearly all fresh from the tepees, the blankets and the camp. The school has been maintained with a quota of about 200 Indian children, fifty from year to year until 1890 when congress made an appropriation sufficient to carry on the school with a population of 250 in attendance before the close of the year.

The following tribes were represented last year: Cheyenne, Kiowa, Arapaho, Arickaree, Mandan, Arapahoe and Soute. The school farm proper consists of 830 acres owned by the government, but an additional 120 acres is rented and cultivated. The school campus, buildings, orchard, pasture and playground are all well equipped. The remainder of the land is actually under the plow and as will be seen below has been a source not only of instruction but of profit. There are about 200 two-story brick buildings, three stories in height. Improvements have been made from year to year until now there is a large and well arranged plant consisting of a gymnasium, a hall, a dining hall, a hospital and all the necessary outbuildings representing a value of not less than $200,000. The school building, costing $60,000 was completed and this year one more will be built at a cost of about $100,000. In 1889-90 great activity was manifested in the construction of the buildings above referred to a fine wire fence was erected enclosing the farm and orchard, frames were placed in the vineyard for the support of the vines, two two-story water closets and two hay racks were built, while the barns and sheds were enlarged and repaired. The school has a large and well equipped library, a large and well equipped dining hall, a large and well equipped kitchen, a large and well equipped laundry, a large and well equipped carpenter shop and printing office were both erected and equipped for the purpose of saving upon the unsettled conditions resulting from the suspension of the school. The whole banking world has shown alacrity in subscribing and when all the contributions have been received, the total will be such a sum as will make the whole incident a brilliant triumph for the organizers of the fund. The Wrecked Serpent.

COURSEA, Nov. 16.—[New York Herald Cable-Special to The Bee.]—The evidence of the survivors of the wrecked cruiser Serpent goes to show that the light of the village light house had not been seen by the lookout on the Serpent, although the light is usually visible for fourteen miles. It is believed that the Serpent's compass was affected by the iron in the reef and that astronomical observations were impossible owing to the bad state of the weather. A Spanish gunboat, which yesterday passed the scene of the disaster, found no trace of the Serpent. A body washed ashore today is supposed to be that of the commander of the Serpent.
