United States Circuit Court Judges Differ on Material Points.

MORTGAGE INTEREST AND APPEALS.

Will Witterford, the Young Negro Slave, Abandoned by His Master and Will Hereafter Reside in Omaha.

Judge Caldwell is giving the attorneys in this judicial district plenty of food for thought and is rapidly upsetting old-established rules of practice in the circuit court.

His latest move was a decision to the effect that in suits for foreclosure upon a mortgage, where the amount of the mortgage itself was less than $2,000, the interest coupons which might be overdue could not be added to the amount of the mortgage in order to bring the amount sued for above the $2,000 limit.

The point was brought up by an attorney from out of town in a case where the mortgage was for $1,200, but the coupons overdue made the total amount claimed $2,300.

Judge Caldwell, without any hesitation, and without consulting his colleagues, held that the court had no jurisdiction in the case.

Judge Dundy interposed an objection and quoted the opinion of Justice Miller on this point, stating that the court had jurisdiction in similar cases.

The point was brought up by an attorney from out of town in a case where the mortgage was for $1,200, but the coupons overdue made the total amount claimed $2,300.

THE SLAVE LIBERATED.

Will, the Witterford Boy, Finds a Home in the City.

The negro boy Will, who has been detained in the family of Milton Witterford of Tobias as a slave, was brought to the city Wednesday by General L. W. Colby of Beatrice, who appeared as the attorney for Witterford.

It will be remembered that the story of the wretched treatment the boy had been compelled to undergo was printed in The Bee exclusively several weeks ago and caused great excitement among the colored citizens of the state as well as among the white people who had thought slavery was abolished several years ago.

Dr. M. O. Rickets and Attorney Robbins took the case in hand, backed by the wealthiest and most influential citizens of the city and state, and secured a writ of habeas corpus compelling Witterford to produce the boy in court.

When Will was produced in court and his owner virtually acknowledged his guilt by agreeing to give the boy up if the case against him was not pushed.

Dr. M. O. Rickets and Attorney Robbins took the case in hand, backed by the wealthiest and most influential citizens of the city and state, and secured a writ of habeas corpus compelling Witterford to produce the boy in court.

A stipulation to this effect was placed on file in the United States circuit court and the boy was turned over to Messrs. Rickets and Robbins. He will be given a home in this city and allowed to attend school for several weeks, and will then be given an opportunity to choose where he will make his home.

An examination of the boy's body fully substantiated the charges of cruelty made against Witterford. His back and legs are literally covered with scars.

His face is marked with a whip, and in his back are plainly to be seen the marks of the prongs of a pitchfork. The boy has a hunted look in his eyes and shows a strong disinclination to talk.

His manner and conversation are plainly to be seen the marks of the prongs of a pitchfork. The boy has a hunted look in his eyes and shows a strong disinclination to talk.

NIBILIST VENGEANCE.

The Bullet Was Poisoned and General Silversoff is Dead.

Copyright 1890 by James Gordon Bennett. PARIS, Nov. 20.—[New York Herald Cable.—Special to The Bee.]—General Silversoff is dead. His wound, correctly described as slight, proved fatal, for small as it was and comparatively harmless to look upon, it was inflicted by a poisoned bullet and such projectiles show no mercy. Nihilism is stamped on the face of the crime.

The facts are as follows: At noon Tuesday the concierge of the Hotel Bado was accosted by a man attired in the typical costume of a Russian, or rather a Polish, emigrant.

"I have a letter for General Silversoff," where are his rooms?" Being told where to find the apartments, the man continued, "How are the rooms situated?" He was told, "Which number was the bedroom and which the parlor, or court yard, or front. This information also was given and the man went upstairs. The concierge's suspicion, strangely enough, was not aroused by the close interrogatory of the foreigner.

The Pole went to General Silversoff's room, was admitted after explaining his errand and the letter which he handed the general a letter and presumably shot him while reading it, as the document, an invitation to a service at the Franco-Russian club, was found on the floor. The man was seen descending the stairs in great haste by the general's servant, who shortly afterwards knocked at his master's door and received no answer.

He returned a second time and opened the door, when he found the general seated at his desk, pen in hand and dripping with blood. He was quickly on hand and Dr. Portier was alarmed at once. In spite of all efforts General Silversoff never regained consciousness. He died yesterday.

The letter brought by the assassin quickly led to his identification, but, unfortunately, is not arrested. Information gained at the Franco-Russian bank shows that he is a Polish Hebrew named Padlewsky, who was employed by the club as a messenger. An investigation of his lodgings, immediately carried out, discovered documents that conclusively proved Padlewsky to be a nihilist.

The most important of his papers was the discovery of a number of bullets of the same calibre as that found in the wound, and a hasty analytical examination proved them to be identical.

Padlewsky, our informant tells us, has undoubtedly escaped to England and the police authorities have communicated with their colleagues in London. It is feared, however, owing to the large number of nihilists who inhabit the worst and most neglected districts in London, the criminal will find an impenetrable hiding place.

General Silversoff had betrayed great fear as to his personal safety and allowed no one to approach him before his servant had ascertained the visitor's business, and he kept a loaded revolver constantly at hand on the table of the bed-room door so that no admission could be obtained except over his objection, and frequently the general would start up from his bed, seize his revolver and make a dash for the door of his apartment. No wonder he was nervous, for General Silversoff, who, at one time was chief of the London police, and who, in the police of Russia, wielded all the terrible power known as the administrative process—otherwise, Siberia for life without trial. He was removed from this important post in order to take charge of the force surrounding the person of the czar and was held absolutely responsible for the safety of his sovereign.

How to save money is a problem that interests every body. One way to do it is to invigorate the system with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Being a highly concentrated blood medicine it is the most powerful and economical. It is sold for a dollar a bottle, but worth five.

London Topics.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—[Special Cablegram to The Bee.—Special to The Bee.]—Michael Davitt, Justin McCarthy and Harry Campbell, private secretary to Parnell, are the only three prominent members of the Irish party in the House of Commons who have been permitted to attend the session of the House, which opened on Monday.

Decisions in regard to the proposed Dublin dock, said to be without a parallel in ancient or modern legislation. An infant, through her next of kin, her mother, has been awarded the Great Western Railway of Ireland for £1,000 damages for injuries received in the terrible Armagh railway accident last year. At that time the plaintiff was not yet born. It was argued that the case was ridiculous, as the defendants had entered into no contract with the plaintiff, and the award was purely a matter of public policy.

The plaintiff, counsel contended that there was a contract, even if it were an implied one, and that the defendants were liable. The case was referred to the jury, which returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff and awarded substantial damages.

How Koch's Lymph is Made. BERNE, Nov. 20.—[Special Cablegram to The Bee.]—The Frankfort Courier states that the lymph used by Prof. Koch for the incubation of tubercle bacilli is made in a specially sealed and sterilized and thereby rendered free from fungus. The interior of an air-tight space is divided by an unglazed porcelain diaphragm into upper and lower sections. In the upper section is placed salted meat broth in a gelatinous state, containing the bacilli, and the lower section contains gradually liquefied and the gelatine liquid drops slowly through the porcelain plate into the lower section. The liquid contains all the secretory products, but is free from all living or dead germs or reproductive spores and is the lymph as used.

WASHINGTON, FRIDAY, THE OMAHA BEE. SPECIAL TELEGRAMS TO THE BEE FROM WASHINGTON, D. C., NOV. 20.

If the proposition made by some northern democratic newspapers and democratic representatives to elect only a northern man to the speakership of the Fifty-second congress is seriously entertained there promises to be some very loud and prolonged music in this latitude about December 1, 1891. Southern members now here are not at all reluctant in expressing their views on such a proceeding. In brief, they avow that such a proposition will, when the time comes, be vigorously resented by the entire southern delegation as an insult to the democracy of that section.

"The south," said a well known democratic member from Texas today, "is prepared to take a back seat where the choice of a presidential candidate is involved, and we are willing to grant to the north the vice presidential candidate also, but we will not consent to be holders of wood and drawers of water for the northern democracy beyond those lines. If we are to be debarré on account of sectional prejudices from naming our best men, considering in connection with the presidency and vice presidency, it is clearly our right to demand the speakership and when the time comes we will name our best man for the office."

Among those who have announced their candidacy for the speakership of the Fifty-second congress up to the present are Chipman of Michigan, Bryan of Indiana, Springer of Illinois, Outwater of Ohio, Crisp of Georgia, Breckenridge of Kentucky, Hatch of Missouri, Lockwood of New York, Wilson of West Virginia and Mills of Texas.

Justice Chipman was twenty-nine years ago an editorial writer on the Chicago Daily Tribune. He was a member of the Michigan delegation of eight members in the next congress for the place.

Representatives Springer and Bryan have both got their booms for the speakership well under way. The crowd of speakership aspirants is the largest just at present owing to his recent utterances since his arrival in Washington. Representative Crisp of Georgia is expected to arrive on Saturday and will endeavor to catch up with Springer.

Representative Outwater of Columbus, Ohio, is taking time by the forelock and is working his boom in a quiet kind of way. Representative Crisp of Georgia, who is represented as the chief representative from the south in the organization of speakership aspirants, is the only one of the aspirants who has not yet been named.

Mr. Chipman will be the next speaker who will be named. He is a member of the Michigan delegation of eight members in the next congress for the place.
