The cases against Mooney and Henry charged with attempted murder and assault charged with attempted murder and assault with intent to rob, were dismissed by Justice Barnett yesterday on account of the failure of the prosecuting witness, John Dunn, to appear in court. It was reported by the police that he purposely left the city early in the morning to avoid being called upon to prosecute the case.

Saturday night Mrs. Gilmore called at the police station and asked that Fred Peterson be placed under arrest. She said that Peter-son had been the means of leading her son astray and that he was the cause of him leaving the Christian Home after being taken in charge by the manager. Mrs. Gilmore states that Peterson wanted her son to assist in robbing the till at Mottaz' meat market and eave the city.

The reports of the census bureau which have been published show some interesting statistics regarding Council Bluffs. Here are some of them: The bonded debt of the city was in 1880 $137,400; it is now $0.06,400. In 1880 the floating debt of the city was $1,000; now it is $122,929. The total debt of the city in 1880 was $138,400; now it is $1,029,400. 329. The available resources of the city in 1880 were $17,840; now they are $351,072. The department responded, but by th time they reached the scene it was discovered that the smoke was only seeking its prope outlet from the furnaces in the basement and was due to a extra quantity of damp wood being thrown into one of the furnaces and covered with ashes.

As a little coincidence Engineer Corrothers at the electric light station tells a story about a cat being drawn around the same palley that came so near producing fatal injuries to Young Perkins. The cat was a sort of ap-pendage to the station, and took great interest in all that transpired there. One day in a playful mood it took a notion to ride on the big belt that was driving the dy-namo. It jumped on the under belt going toward the small pulley and in a second it was whisked around the pulley. As it went around nothing but a portion of its tall was left out. It came out of the ordeal as flat as a piece of paper but with no bones broken. It was the thinnest cat in America for several days, but gradually regained its rotandity and friskiness, and is still a fixture of the place. It has ceased to experiment with the belts, but occasionally takes 1,000 volts of the current from one of the big machines to show that its nine lives are still man yesterday morning that a man had been found dead in a field on the Klopping farm near Westen, ten miles east of this city. The coroner at once repaired to the scene and made a careful examination. The body was still lying where it had been discovered and had been identified as that of Fritz Dreier, who had been living with his brother or a farm two miles south of Weston for the past six years. The body was discovered early yesterday morning by Mr. Klop-Mr. Klopping came home late from Weston and as he drove into the yard noticed a horse with a saddle standing in the pasture. Thinking some chicken thieves were arranging for a raid upon his henroost he went into the house, awakened his wife, loaded his gun and started out with her to hunt the thieves. They made an investigation and found nobody in the vicinity of the henhouse, and then went down in the field where the horse wasstanding. When they came up to the animal, which appeared to be tied, they recognized it as belonging to Fritz Dreier. A closer investigation showed that the animal was apparently being held by the bridle rein by a man who was lying motionless on the ground. They bent over the body in the moonlight and recognized it to be Dreier himself. When they attempted to arouse him they found he was stiff and lifeless and the crystals of frost were glistening on his bare fingers. The bridle rein was wound around his left wrist and the horse was unable to get

They first thought the man had been murdered and aroused the neighbors, but an investigat on showed that his neck had been broken, and a discoloration on his forehead covered with dirt with a corresponding depression in the earth near by which looked like it might have been made by a man falling from the thorse. The theory was further strengthened by the fact that he was subject to epileptic fits, and it is presumed that he had been seized by one and fallen from the horse struck the ground in such a manner that his neck was broken. Just before he had been seized by the fit, if he had one, he was in the act of lighting a pipe. The newly filled pipe with the half-burned match was still clutched in his fingers. He had aparently main there for

The coroner satisfied himself that there was no occasion for an inquest and ordered the boay to be taken to his residence. He was a man about 35 years old, and leaves a wife and several children. The funeral will occurr this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The Funeral of Colonel Sapp Draws an Immense Concourse of People.

THE BODY VIEWED BY THOUSANDS.

Taken to Mt. Vernon, O., for Interment-Fritz Dreier Killed by Faliing Under His Horse-Minor Mentions.

The funeral obsequies of Colonel W. F. Sapp occurred yesterday afternoon. A general public interest was felt in the event, and the attendance was very large. At 1 o'clock the final preparations were ompleted and the doors of the residence on Oakland avenue were thrown open to the public, to permit the friends and acquaintances of the deceased to view for a last time the face that they knew so well. The body laid in state from 1 until 4 o'clock in the front parlor, and from the hour that the doors were opened until the pallbearers picked up their burden to convey it to the hearse there was a constant stream of visitors.

The casket was a handsome one, heavily moulded and covered with black broadcloth. with eight heavy gold handles. It rested upon two pedestals covered with black cloth trimmed with black satin. The body, rested in the casket with the face to the east, and in the softened light that came in from the drapped windows it was difficult to realize that death had placed his stamp upon the face. The expression was lifelike and wholly natural, the pleasant smile that so frequently lighted up the colonei's face when in life still lingered around his lips. The whole expression of the face was that which would come if he had dropped off into an afterdinner doze and a pleasant dream was flitting through his mind. The half closed eyes with the suggestion of a smile playing around them and the partly opened lips created the impression that the sleeper would in a noment murmur some of the pleasant fancies that were passing through his mind.

The floral offerings were simple and beautiful. On the foot of the casket a large sickle composed of smilax and roses rested upon sheaf of golden grain. A card attached announced that the offering came from Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Stewart. Surrounding the name plate was a wreath of smilax and immortelles studded with white roses, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Shaver. At the head, partially dropping over the face of the sleeper, where two sprays of green paim, tied with white ribbon. A deep black bordered card bore the name of Mrs. J. Lyman. At the head on the opposite side of the casket a bouquet of red and yellow roses the casket a bouquet of red and yellow roses had been placed as if carelessly dropped. In the adjoining dining room the large crayon portraits of Mr. and Mrs. Sapp hanging on the wail were draped with ivy studded with white pinks. On the mantel and by the side of the casket were banks of white and yellow of the casket were banks of white and yellow. chrysanthemums. The name plate bore the simple inscription: "1824-W. F. Sapp-

Shortly before 4 o'clock Funeral Director Estep made preparations to carry the casket to the hearse. The black covered lid was re-placed and the light of day forever shut out, after the relatives had taken their last lock at the pleasant countenance they loved so well. The pall bearears then carried the decisive from the residence. They were, George F. Wright, Thomas J. Evans, N. M. Pusey, E. L. Shugart, Ohio Enex, John T. Stewart and O. M. Brown. The funeral procession then started for St. Paul's church. At the head were the members of the Pottantation have thirty live strong. They were wattamie bar, thirty-five strong. They were followed by the Oddfellows, and after them came the veterans of Abe Lincoln post, Grand Army. The whole was headed tended many blocks. The whole was headed by a platoon of police, When the cortege reached the church the build-ing was filled to everflowing-

The funeral services were beautiful and impressive, and consisted of the regular Epis-copal services for the dead by the rector, Rev. T. J. Mackay. During the services he delivered a brief and eloquent eulogy of the dead, speaking in the most feeling manner of his life and character. The floral decorations in the church were numerous and beautiful.
The altar was almost hidden in the banks of fragrant blossoms.

At the conclusion of the services the audience was dismissed, but the friends and watchers remained in the church until the hour arrived for the departure of the train over the Burlington road that was to convey the remains to Mount Vernon, O., where two years ago the loving and faithful wife of Colonel Sapp was laid to rest.

The bar association met at the court house yesterday to take appropriate action upon the death of their fellow member and president. Hon, D. C. Bloomer was called to the chair and Hon, George F. suitable resolutions expressing the sorrow so universally felt. After a short interval they reported the following:

Whereas, Coionel W. F. Sapp, president of the Bar Association of Pottawattamiceounty, departed this life on the 22d instant, and it is fitting that we, as his professional assciates, should place upon the records of the coarts of this county, which were the scenes of his labors, a memorial of our respect and esteem. For more than twenty-five years Colonel Sapp has been an active member of this bar, and for the larger part of that time its acknowledged leader. He was gifted by nature with the qualities that mark the successful lawyer. His breadth of view, clearness of perception, grasp of intellect and powers of presentation placed him at an early age in the front ranks of his chosen profession. During a long and extensive practice in the courts, both state and federal, he manifested his consplexous ability in every department of the law. In the argument of abstrass and difficult propositions he displayed not merely a knowledge of the rules as they are found in the books, but brought to their discussion a well-trained intellect and a clear insight into the principles and reasons upon which the law is founded. At the trial table he was keen, alert and far-seeing, and mastered the details of a complicated case with a quickness the law is founded. At the trial table he was keen, alert and far-seeing, and mastered the details of a complicated case with a quickness and accuracy that were the wonder alike of his associates and opponents. In argument he was forceful, eloquent and convincing. In every branch and department of practice he was conceded a commanding position. In his polations with his brothers of the bar he was courteous, cordial and honorable, and to him more than to any other, is owing the courtesy and kindly feeling which has so long distinguished this bar. Ready to receive, as well as to give strong blows in the contests of the trial, he never carried bitterness from the court room, and for him, among his professional brethren, there remains nothing but respect and esteem.

In public life he was faithful to every trust, wise, patriotic and public-spirited. As a citizen always ready to do his part in the advancement of the public welfare and in the discharge of every duty of citizenship.

As a husband, father and friend he endeared himself much to those who knew him best, and in these hearest and noblest relations of life, as in every position he was placed, public, professional and private, he demeaned himself as an honors, manly man. Full of years and wants and honorshe has laid down the burden of life, leaving to us the fruits of his public service and the memory of his ability, character and friendship, and to his family the legacy of an unblemished name and an honorable example; therefore the Second ward, and W. J. Goodin acted as secretary. A dozen men enrolled their names as endorsers of the party. The following persons were then placed in nomination, one at a time and unanimously chosen as delegates to the city convention: J. C. Tierney, W. J. Goodin, Joseph Nishue. Charles Ross, George Willard, G. H. Fitch and F. W. Ballard. These gentlemen say they will endeavor to confer with all the candidates for council in their ward and then proceed to encouncil in their ward and then proceed to en-dorse the one who will pledge himself to appoint "mechanics in preference to farmers" as inspectors and city workmen. The primaries of the Third ward independent party were supposed to have been held at 105 North Twelfth street last night. A Bre representative visited the place and found two men sitting amidst shoemaker's imple-ments. The most talkative of the two men informed him that no actual election taken place, but that two or three men had met and chosen a delegation. The names of the latter were subsequently telephoned to The Bee as follows: John O'Connell, B. McCabe, J. H. Blake, F. S. Grasty, M. C. Sweeney, C. W. Bigelow and J. B. Corcoran. Albright s Choice, sure money, A DAWES COUNTY PROTEST.

Reforms Demanded in the Matter of Timber Cutting Prosecutions.

United States Attorney Baker is in receipt of the following petition, which is signed by numerous citizens of Crawford, Dawes county, and vicinity: Sm-We, the undersigned, business men and bankers of Crawford, together with other residents of this vicinity, who are not their residents of this Vicinity, who are not in any way personally connected with the troubles which we hereby ask to have assuaged, do beg that some other way be devised in your office whereby complaints against 'timber cutters in this county may be investigated carefully before obliging men to go to the great expense of traveling to Omaha and back again for the purpose of clearing themselves. In making this request we would selves. In making this request we would say that in almost all cases timber has been cut for the purpose of meeting the immediate demand of our farmers, for their fuel and sheds, and with a hard winter coming on, the fear of being obliged to make, the expensive trip to Omaha will cause many to suffer. We would also state that for years the people have been told by the United States timber have been told by the United States timber inspectors that in cases where wood and lumber was for personal consumption no action would be taken by the government, and the work that has been done, which is now causing so many arrests, has been done with that understanding. The character of men that have been informing on these parties is such that the cases should be carefully investigated here before being taken to Omaha. It is mostly a scheme by a combination of a few men to extract money from people who can be frightened, and it is to cause a great deal of suffering.

Mr. Baker said that he had no desire to persecute any one, and would not be a party to any scheme to revenge some personal spite; neither did he intend to prosecute persons who cut timber for their revenue. ons who cut timber for their personal use, for use on their property or for firewood, but he had been reliably informed that a large number of people in that region were cutting timber to sell again and he proposed to make warm for them. If any persons in Crawford or anywhere else had any knowledge that certain persons were cutting timber for the purpose of sell-ing it, or were attempting any blackmailing ing it, or were attempting any blackmalling scheme, they should at once inform him of the fact and assist him in bringing the guilty persons to justice.

An Animated Scene at the Galleries Last Night.

A flood of light carefully directed by 300 ingeniously arranged reflectors against the nundreas of beautiful paintings upon the walls, and a throng of richly dressed people wandering through the galleries, presented an animated scene at the first annual display of the Omaha Art Exhibition association in the Steele building, corner of Thirteenth and Harney, for several hours last evening.

The exhibit has opened most auspiciously, and there is every indication that the people of Omaha thoroughly appreciate the rich treat that has been prepared for them. To satisfactorily see the entire collection at one virit is out of the question, and many have already made their second and even third visit. The building has been so com-fortably heated, brilliantly lighted and sup-plied with elevator and tellet room conven-iences that it presents unusual attractions, and it will speedly become quite the thing to pass leisure evenings there

The surroundings are certainly all that could be desired, and numerous chairs and comfortable seats have been arranged in all the galleries for the convenience of visitors. The management has carefully catered to the comfort of all ages and con-ditions, and last evening witnessed the spectacle of young and old, the wealthy por-tion of the community and those blessed with a smaller portion of the world's goods, ming-ling in a community and those blessed with ling in a cosmopolitan throng, seeking pleasure or instruction, or both, and none of them unsuccessful in their search.

Congenial little groups were drawn to-gether in the corners, discussing the pictures or current topics of interest; comely matrons visited agreeably with their friends sur-rounded by the beautiful paintings of the Bongcaureatt gallery; bankers and business men forgot their stocks and bonds and put in the time very satisfactorily as critics of art, while scores of the younger members of so-ciety wandered carelessly up and down dis-cussing art and the prospective events of the coming season with surprising impartiality Among those who were noticed in the gal coming season with surprising impartiality.

Among those who were noticed in the galleries last evening were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Fred McConnell, Miss Lizzle Isaacs, Miss Jackson, Miss Chambers, Ned Hall, Dr. and Mrs. Luddington and Miss Mary Luddington, Mr. Andrus, Charles Clapp, Dr. Edward Summers, Frank Hamilton, Clinton Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dietz, Miss Williams, Mr. and Mrs. E. The Second Infantry band will give prome nade concerts is the galleries on two even-ings of each week during the time that the exhibition is open.

DEBUT OF A BURGLAR.

John Johnson's Remarkable Performance in the Thieving Line.

John Johnson is a Swede about twenty-five years old, who made his debut last night as burglar. He says that he never stole anything before, and judging by the manner of his attempt last night it is easy to believe that he is a novice is the business. It seems that Johnson wanted to make a reputation as a burglar in short order, and he certainly succeeded. About 9:30 he was walking past John Baumer's jewelry store at 314 Farnam street, when he suddenly hurled large rock, almost as big as a man's head, through the show window and then reached through the show window and then reached in and took out a gold watch, a silverine watch and several silver watch cases. He placed the goods in his pocket and started westward on Farnam street in a brisk walk. It happened that the night watchman, Fred Lindburg, and J. Klug, a watchmaker, were in the back part of the store when the stone was thrown through the front window. Lindburg at once drew his revolver and hurried out on the street, but the thief would have made his escape had it not been for some gentleman in the crowd who kept an eye on him and pointed him out to the watchman, who ran Johnson down by the time he reached Fourteenth down by the time he reached Fourteentl street, and assisted by Officer McMahon Mr Landburg took the jewelry thief to the police station.

Johnson seemed to be laboring under a spell of temporary aberration. He said he committed the robbery for the purpose of being sent to the penitentiary. He seems to have some great trouble resting heavily upon him, and shows other evidences of in-sanity, which may be feigned, but which seem to be genuine

AMUSEMENTS.

Since last seen in Omaha Gilmore's 'Twelve Temptations' has been wonderfully improved. There is lots of go about the performance now given, and the audience last evening at the Boyd leat the inspiration of their applause to the scenes and incidents attendant upon the development of the story.

Like all spectacular productions the greatest stress is laid upon the cenic environments and the ballets. There are a number of beautifully executed scenes, some of the leading scene painters in the country having contributed their ability to the well nigh perfect ensemble. The ballcts are varied and very pretty, several new features being introduced, which in this age of innovation cannot help but be appre-The characters incident to the dramatic portion of the performance are fairly well taken, although there are no strong personages in the cast meriting more than a mere gen-eral mention, with one exception, Ed J. Connelly, who quite overshadows his associates in the rele of Snoro Appropos. It is a very pleasing interpretation that he gives and softened much that was decidedly com-Miss Conway, who is entrusted with the role of Bright Eyes, should sear in mind that the public is not as well acquainted with the lines of the part as herself, and if she will only speak a little slower and modulate her speaking voice just a trifle her performance will be much more satisfactory.

But the "Twelve Temptations" aims to be nothing more than a spectacular performance and in this regardit serves its purpose well. Maggie, the midget mother, and her tiny rosebud babe are attracting large crowds to the Eden Musee. This wonderful being is but two feet tall, yet perfectly formed, perfectly developed and a mother of the tiniest, cutest little baby imaginable. Peter Sampson, the strong man, is the center of attraction to all athletes. His feats of strength are wonderful. He snaps wires, chains and cables as easily as an ordinary person would snap a whip cord. The performance in the Bijou theater is exceptionally good. Deaves' Royal Marienettes render a pleasing and amusing entertainment. Slaskey, the wire artist, is a wonder. The comedians are laughable in the extreme. The show is first
