Three Atlantic Boys Meet a Horrible Fate in a Diving Sandbank.

FELL AND FRACTURED HIS SKULL

A Probably Fatal Accident Which Befell an Intoxicated Man at Cedar Rapids—Other Hawk-eye State News.

ATLANTIC, Ia., Nov. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—Willie and Millard Talty, sons of Jack Talty, aged respectively nine and six years, and Fred Hawley, aged six, son of Dr. Hawley, were killed today by the caving in of a sandbank in the west part of the city.

Five or six small boys were using the sandbank to play in, and had tunneled a cavern several feet under the sand. They were digging still further in when the bank caved in, burying the three boys named under three feet of sand.

The alarm was given by the other boys, and willing hands were soon at work digging out the unfortunate victims. The bodies were recovered after twenty minutes. Life was not quite extinct, but the boys died in a few minutes. The affair has cast a gloom over the entire community.

Hypnotized Against Optium.

SAX FAYETTE, Mo., Nov. 27.—Frank Edwards, a young optimist, found the hour of correction, claims to be cured of the vice by hypnotism, excited by Dr. Brown, the jail physician. Brown is a man with a singularly large eye and great mesmeric force. He determined to try to hypnotize Edwards because he feared the prisoner would become insane from cravings for the drug. He obtained such complete control over the man that he had enjoyed the first refreshing sleep he had known for years. He gained flesh and lost all desire for "dope," which had been necessary to his existence for sixteen years. A self-prosper who did not believe in his reform offered him some opium, but it made Edwards sick, although before being hypnotized he was a confirmed opium addict. Physicians are undecided about the permanency of the effect, but Dr. Brown will make experiments on other delinquents and test his theory.

A Big Debt.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—Pottolan presented the budget committee report on the financial situation of France, showing the estimated debt of the country to be 30,300,813,564 francs nominal capital, and 22,824,948,669 francs actual capital; the nominal rate of interest is 3.48 per cent, and the actual rate is 4.92 per cent. "This," continues the report, "is the largest public debt in the world, but the French credit is sufficiently solid to allow French stock being reckoned at 4 per cent."

Over Extended Suffrage.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27.—The prime minister today introduced a bill providing for the extension of the franchise. This action is a complete surprise. The radicals are greatly elated and workmen, who intended to inaugurate a general strike as part of the universal suffrage movement decided to remain at work. The streets today were thronged with people and rejoicing is general.

IN THE COMMONS.

The Irish Question is Argued in Its Various Phases.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—In the commons today Spencer asked the government, in view of the recent financial crisis, to introduce a bill to amend the bank act by providing for the issue of 50 notes. Balfour introduced the Irish land bill. He said the government's policy was the same as in 1889 but for simplicity the bill had been cut in half. Both portions, however, are practically the same as in the bill of 1889. One variation of the present bill from that of last year was that it met in some degree Parnell's views in regard to the privilege of purchase. It excluded all private grazing farms and farms whose tenants did not reside on them. A limit of twenty years purchase, objected to last session, has been removed. In regard to increasing the power of the local authorities Balfour said it would be absurd to leave the communities under the incitement of agitators to determine whether they should adopt a remedy going to the root of the agrarian discontent. If they were to give local control in any form it ought to be by the plebeian of the rate payers, enabling them, under safeguards of the ballot, to vote upon the question of granting a portion of the guaranteed fund for each county.

Lalouchere moved an amendment against pledging the imperial credit for the purchase of land until the country should give consent at the general election. Lalouchere's amendment was carried 201 to 177. Gladstone, Harcourt and Morley walked out before the vote was taken. Parnell and all the Parnellite members walked with the government. The bill was then given a first reading and cleared for the government supporters.

PERILS OF THE DEEP.

The Captain's Story of the Wreck of the Steamer Falcon.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—The steamer Pennsylvania arrived at her dock today and reports that the British steamer Falcon, from New York to Glasgow with a cargo of 2,000 tons of coal, was abandoned on the 15th inst. in a sinking condition, with her bow stove and bilge-ways and sails gone, having encountered very heavy gales. The captain and crew of fourteen were taken off with difficulty by the Pennsylvania and landed here. Captain McMillan of the Falcon told the following story:

"We sailed from New York on Sunday, November 2. From the start we had bad weather, which gradually increased to heavy gales. We stood the blow until the morning of November 15, when we sprang a serious leak. Heavy seas continually rose over the vessel, smashing the forecastle, carrying away the ventilators and pitching the vessel in a most ominous sea. The engine room and skylight smashed. Through this tons of water poured, putting out the fires. A fresh fire was struck by burning the boards and wood, but the water soon extinguished this also. We were now in serious danger from the water rapidly gaining in the hold, and with no steam to heat the donkey boiler, the vessel was liable to fill and sink at any moment. All our life boats had either been washed overboard or damaged to such an extent that they were left in the water. The only resource left us was to keep the vessel afloat until we could be picked off by some vessel. Accordingly, the hand-pumps were manned and an attempt made to keep the water down. At midnight, after hours of hard work, the discouraging discovery was made that the water had gained on us. The fact that the steering gear was useless left the vessel unmanageable and she lay in the trough of the sea where the waves were breaking over her decks, one monster wave seeming to literally bury her under water. The crew of the Falcon had almost given up when the Pennsylvania, with a cargo of the Pennsylvania attracted their attention.

SAGE REBUKES ADAMS.

He Characterizes the Latter's Address as Very Unhandsome.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—It is quite evident that the Gould-Sage party which yesterday went into power in Union Pacific affairs did not enjoy the farewell address of Charles Francis Adams. Mr. Sage was seen last night after his return from Boston and said:

"The honor of Mr. Adams' address was almost unshared. There had been no public criticism of his management made by any of the directors, notwithstanding the fact that he was running the road to ruin. A change in the management was simply a necessity to save the property, and Mr. Adams' speech was a piece of spite work. I did not hear it myself, but I was not far from the board, and some of those who had been his own directors denounced it as a most unhandsome thing and were disgusted at the display Mr. Adams made of himself. One of them said to me: 'It is a shameful fact that Mr. Adams has been trying to run this great property by means of a few of his own friends and a dozen or so of Harvard graduates who know nothing more about railroads than a backwoodsman. The new members of the board were necessary to save the road from a ruin that must have come within a year.'"

"Mr. Adams says in his address," continued Mr. Sage, "that he has been president of the road for seven years, and that during that time the actions of the board of directors have been in every case unanimous. That is simply a lie. The fact has been the Union Pacific and is responsible for its condition. It is not as if he should justly expect the board to do what he would do. The roll was increased by 4,000 tons in nine months; what personal interest he had in the Kansas smelting works, favor of which a discrimination was made in the rates for shipping bullion and a half-dozen other matters that might be required to be taken care of. We are not taking hold of the Union Pacific for the fun of the thing. I am in it, not for pleasure or financial profit, but to help to save the property. The condition of affairs was such that we had to take hold of all the directors are in sympathy with the plans laid down by Mr. Gould."

"That was another piece of spite work. Mr. Adams says that he could not maintain the system and he does not seem to want any body else to. That is the only construction that can be put upon the passages of his address that relate to the political aspects of the rights and relations of the Union Pacific system."

Gould on Adams.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Tomorrow the Tribune will print an interview with Jay Gould, in which he says ex-President Adams of the Union Pacific is a theorist who conducted many affairs of the Union Pacific without the knowledge of the directors. Gould said he learned when last in Kansas City, that Adams personally owned control of the stock yards there, and while the railroad was carrying in their live stock at bare cost of transportation, the stockyards earned $1,000,000 the past year. Such action as this he said, would never be permitted under the new management. He believes the Burlington and Rock Island will both come into the plan for securing better results from western railway business. No further changes, he said, were to be made in the Union Pacific.

THE POLITICS OF NEW YORK.

Senator Fassett Thinks Hill Can Have Whatever He May Ask.

SMITH M. WEED FOR THE SENATORSHIP.

New York Not Yet to Be Ignored—The Influence of Indiana—Mr. Fassett's Smile—Confidence of Speaker Reed.

WASHINGTON BUREAU THE OMAHA BEAR, 513 FOURTEENTH STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 27. Senator Fassett of New York, who is here on his way south, tells some interesting gossip about politics in New York state. He says that Governor Hill can be United States senator or can be re-elected governor or can have the New York delegation at the democratic presidential convention in 1892, and he thinks that he will decide to take the senatorship with a view to having something permanent in case he fails to be elected president. If Hill decides not to take the senatorship he will elect Smith M. Weed in his place. Reed, Fassett says, is a Hamilton democrat, a high tariff man, and Hill agrees with him on this issue. Cleveland has the following of the better class of democrats and the business men of New York, but Hill controls every democratic organization from Tammany to the township clubs throughout the state and will control the convention that names the delegates to the presidential convention. "New York and Indiana," said Mr. Fassett in conclusion, "will send Hill delegations to the convention. The time has not come when New York will give up either party and Indiana is also a great doubtful state. These two delegations may be able to swing the election. They certainly will have great weight. The only way in which Mr. Cleveland's friends can break the force of a solid delegation is to send to the convention 2,000 or 3,000 of the best democratic doctors, lawyers and business men, the cleanest, most respectable men in all New York, and let them loudly proclaim that they are the people, and we are for Cleveland."

"I do not know," said Mr. Fassett with a smile, "that this would be of any effect, but the experiment might well be tried."

REPRESENTATIVE DUNNELL WOULD BE.

Representative Dunnell of Minnesota, who is the chairman of the apportionment committee of the house of representatives, has reached Washington today. His bill to re-appoint Dunnell will pass a re-appointment bill at the coming session, no matter what the result of the election. He does not intend to increase the ratio of population, but rather the number of representatives, and suggests from 300 to 306 as the probable number of the next house, instead of 392, as at present. This number would allow the older states to retain their present representation and give the new states the additional congressmen that they are entitled to because of their increase of population. Speaker Reed, in conversation today, endorsed what Mr. Dunnell said, and spoke with great emphasis with regard to the passage of the apportionment bill. When informed that the democrats intended to pursue a policy of desperate resistance, he replied: "Well, we'll see to that."

AN OPINION ON THE INDIAN SCARE.

Colonel Thomas M. Vincent, assistant adjutant general, United States army, now on duty at Fort Snelling, Minn., is of the opinion that among the Indians who are now giving so much trouble at Standing Rock and Pine Ridge agencies, the most dangerous are the red brethren," remarked Colonel Vincent. "demonstrated pretty clearly that the Indians are fond of bragging, and especially when they see the whites. They are not to be taken for granted. They are a very crafty and treacherous race, and they are being victimized by the Indians and hence his telegrams to the Indian department. For the matter, I was inclined to treat the matter pretty much as a joke, but the scare until reports were received from Agent McLaughlin and then matters began to assume a serious aspect, owing to his experience and long residence among them. McLaughlin is a pretty good judge of the Indian character, and when he sounded the alarm he was right. He is a man who has a remedy, as was shown in the appointment of 500 good Indians as scouts, for like his big brethren, an Indian is pretty apt to be impressed with a white man's word if he has authority. These new men will be invaluable not only in ferreting out and preventing any trouble, but will also be a good example to the other Indians who have not been so fortunate as to be awarded a uniform and brass buttons by the government."

ROSS LEADS.

The following was the score at the close of the race at the Coliseum last evening:

Castellar Sunday School Scholars.

The Sunday school scholars of the Castellar street Presbyterian church gave expression to their thankfulness last night in a programme of song and recitation over the partial completion of the new church which stands at the corner of Sixteenth and Castellar. The new edifice, about forty feet square and the old building is joined to the south side, forming a very convenient and commodious Sunday school room. The outside work on the building is finished and the first two cells of the interior are now being finished on the inside. Temporary desks and a rough platform were provided last night for the accommodation of the first audience that met there. The programme was a success, and the new building will cost when completed, about $3,500, and will be practically free from debt.

A Horse Stolen.

A fine, large gray horse belonging to E. W. Dixon, who lives at 3817 California street, was stolen from the residence of H. A. Dowd at 311 North Twenty-fifth street last night about 11 o'clock. He was hitched to a buggy and was secured by a strong strap about his neck to a ring in the sidewalk. The animal is valued at $300. The letter "D" is in the nose of the bridle and Mr. Dixon's name is upon the harness. The horse will weigh about ten hundred pounds. There was a fine Afghan robe in the buggy.

A. O. U. W. Party.

The members of the North Omaha Lodge No. 109, Ancient Order of United Workmen, gave a very pleasant party at Goodrich hall last evening, which was attended by 125 couples. At midnight a supper was served in the spacious dining hall, after which dancing was continued until early this morning. The special feature of last night's party was that it was for the purpose of celebrating the first anniversary of the lodge.

KILLED WITH A HAMMER.

An Atchison Man Murders His Wife in a Terrible Manner.

ATCHISON, Kan., Nov. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—George Weston, an English express driver aged fifty-five, murdered his young wife, aged twenty, by beating her on the head with a hammer some time this morning. He appeared in the city market this afternoon about 1 o'clock, and said he had had trouble with his wife and wanted protection. The officer, supposing it to be only a family row, paid little attention to it. Weston then left and another express driver drove him out to his home west of town, where they were met by Weston's two sons, who armed with pistols, refused him admission to the house, and threatened to kill him. Weston was then brought back to town and turned over to the sheriff. He had a hatchet and a hammer and found a negro cook named George Onans concealed in his wife's room. The pair escaped, but the woman came back last night, and Weston shot her with a hatchet and killed her with a hammer. She has his second wife. The coroner is investigating the case.

DEED.

Remains will be taken to St. Louis for interment this afternoon at 3 p. m. Brief service at Maul's undertaking rooms, 1417 Park street, at 2:30 p. m.

AMUSEMENTS.

Hoyt's satire on the thousand and one petty superstitions of the time, which everybody, but believes in more or less, "A Brass Monkey," was the Thanksgiving attraction at the Boyd, and the screaming farce was welcomed back to Omaha by crowded houses both afternoon and evening.

A number of new faces appeared in the vaudeville, and in the main, quite merited the enthusiastic applause of the audience. The course of the play, George H. Martin, the Jonah displayed a versatility which was equal if not superior to any of the other comedians who have been identified with the part. He has a singularly expressive face and is as truly delightful in the touches of pathos which Mr. Hoyt has thrown into his comedy as he is in the flashes of merriment which he constantly throws to the surface, requiring the actor to be an athlete as well as a clever farceur. His imitation of an Italian waiter, delivering an after dinner speech upon George Washington was an exceedingly charming bit of work and won the audience because of its faithful and inimitable manner of its delivery.

M. L. Hockett plays Dodo Work in a thoroughly artistic manner and is his original character. His performance is a masterpiece of work, and while not particularly strong in the part, still makes considerable out of it.

There are a number of new faces in the cast, and their dances and marches are very delightfully done.

The Two Dakotas.

The Black Hills country has been flooded with counterfeit silver dollars. North Dakota has 1,234 old soldiers who draw pensions and South Dakota has 3,617. Her railroads are running openly at Tyndal, paying the owners of $20 each per month for the privilege.

The tie in the sheriff in Brown county between Messrs. Eisenhild and Bowler was recently settled in favor of the first named, the republican candidate.

A golden eagle weighing thirty-five pounds was killed a short time ago on the Sisseton reservation. The bird stood three and a half feet high and measured nine feet from tip to tip.

Sturgis citizens feel that the death of A. H. Harris, the representative of the syndicate of agents, is a great loss. Harris was a native of waterworks and a note fine to Fort Meade, arrangements for all of which have been perfected, will indefinitely postpone their construction.

A few weeks ago Burt Skinner, up in the Burleigh county part of the Glencoe neighborhood, met with a big streak of good luck, a whole hog, which he covered with a net in a dig a well. After getting down about five feet a little water came in and he went out. When he returned he found a heavy flow of water was running over the top, and it is still flowing, furnishing water to all the stock in the neighborhood.

RETURNED FROM THE FRONT.

A Man Who Found Pine Ridge Altogether Too Monotonous.

"Pine Ridge was too monotonous for me," said R. V. Goodrich, who returned to Omaha from the scene of the Indian trouble last evening. "I went up there expecting some excitement, but I was so fully disappointed. There were lots of Indians and plenty of soldiers, but nothing occurred in the week that I was on the ground to stir a man's blood. If one could have believed all the stories heard, though, his hair would have stood on end every day and his scalp would have been raised every night. A gang of the most picturesque I ever saw was gathered at the agency, and each man tried to tell a little tougher yarn than anybody else. Many of these prevaricators were Indians and a few were whites, and it was hard for me to distinguish between the true and the false. The newspaper correspondents have simply given the news as they have gathered it from various sources, but they have not given the sensational reports half the luridness with which the alleged facts were reported to them."

"I hardly think there will be any trouble in the new future. There may be, but I had no previous experience with the Indians, but those at Pine Ridge certainly do not talk or act warlike. If all the news would leave the agency I expect the exact truth would soon be known in regard to the situation."

Will Sustain Parnell.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Timothy Healy and Parnell had a conference today. The feeling among the nationalist members is more favorable to Parnell than yesterday, and the opinion prevails that they will sustain him.

Healy is very reticent and refuses to say anything about the Irish leader's intentions. Parnell appears to be in a buoyant spirit and a splendid health. A noticeable incident occurred in the commons when Parnell went to the office of the Slocum law by closing the liberal benches and he late ally studiously ignored him. It is stated that if Parnell remains in the leadership he will endeavor to get the members will offer themselves for re-election in order to test the feeling of the electors.

Will Ask Him to Resign.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—It is understood that at Monday's meeting of the Parnellite members a resolution will be proposed recognizing Parnell's great services, but calling upon him to resign the leadership.

Parnell's Views.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—One of Parnell's closest personal friends declared that Parnell regards the movement to expel him as a radical reform for his support of royal grants last summer, and that he will resist to the last this attempt to destroy the independence of the commons. He said that them a mere appendage to the liberal party.

Parnell and Gladstone.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—[Special Cablegram to THE BEAR.]—Sir William Marriott, a conservative, speaking at Brighton, said that the rumors of a speedy dissolution of parliament were baseless. Lord Salisbury, he declared, would never take advantage of social scandal or a domestic quarrel among his opponents. Mr. Shaw Lefevre, speaking at Marylebone, said that Englishmen had no right to demand that Parnell should resign. He had gained their present position rather by defying than by submitting to English opinion. Mr. Gladstone felt that Parnell's continuance in the leadership of his party would defeat the home rule movement and practically end his own work.

Eaten by Wolves.

SALT LAKE, Utah, Nov. 27.—[Special Telegram to THE BEAR.]—A horrible case of suicide was discovered at Eureka about 5 o'clock last evening. Mrs. Hannafin and her little daughter were returning home from a visit and when near the graveyard, just north of town, came suddenly upon the terribly mutilated and decomposed body of a man. The remains were brought to town and an inquest held. At the inquest was brought out the fact that the remains were those of a man named Harrington, who had been missed from the camp for six weeks. Eighty-five dollars worth of clothing was found in the pockets of the body. The body was so mutilated by wolves that it was only recognized by the clothing. A brother of the unfortunate man who is now working in camp testified to the identity of the remains.

Parnell Complains.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Press association says Parnell considers he has been unfairly treated by some of his colleagues who practice a policy of ostracism to him. He also feels strongly about Gladstone's attitude and is more determined than ever to remain. If Monday's meeting opposes him he will appeal to the Irish people. The Dublin Freeman's article says Parnell will make a manifesto to the Irish people and meanwhile asks them to suspend judgment.

The Division in the British Parliament.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—[Special Cablegram to THE BEAR.]—The Chronicle, commenting on the division in parliament on Mr. Labouchere's amendment, says that Mr. Parnell has speedily given the Gladstonians a Roland for their Oliver. Regarding the new Irish bill the Chronicle says: "It is probable that Mr. Balfour will prove more squeak in committee."
