CAVALRY WAITING MARCHING ORDERS.

Plenty Bear Comes in with an Alarming Story-Iwo Thousand Armed Indians Dancing near Roseoud -Pillaging the Farmers.

PINE RIDGE AGENCY, Nov. 28.-Little Wound is in and reports his inability to control his bands in the interest of peace. The cavalry expects an order to march tonight on the Rosebud camp on the Percupine, although General Brooke is reported as being In favor of waiting until the Sixth crualry reaches Fort Meade and troops can be placed at Forest City above Pierre.

Sitting Bull Deflant.
MANDAN, S. D., Nov. 28.-Word comes from Sitting Bull's camp from different sources that he is dancing his men more vigcrously than ever and he is compelling the children to join in the dance. He is reported to be more hostile and determined to fight than ever. This afternoon two cavalry troops arrived from Fort Custer and proceeded to Fort Yates.

THE STORY OF PLENTY BEAR.

He Says There are Two Thousand Dancers at Wounded Knee. PINE RIDGE AGENCY, S. D., (via Rushville, Neb.) Nov. 28.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—The first ripple of news that we have had today came at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Plenty Bear, and old-time friendly Indian who lives at Wounded Knee, twenty-five miles northeast of here, came in with an alarming report to Agent Royer. He stated that there were 364 lodges, being over two thousand of Indians at Wounded Knee, and that they had resumed the ghost dance with many warlike accompaniments. He said they were formed in the regular war dance proper and were swearing vengeance whites for conspiring o stop the latter. They have taken an oath to resist interference if it costs the last drop of their hearts' blood. Plenty Bear said that he witnessed the dance in person and that Little Wound, who visited the agency here only yesterday, and said that his band had stopped dancing, was joining in it hotter than ever with his entire band. It was further stated by Plenty Bear that the deviltry consisting of burning the houses of settlers and stealing stock was still going on and that great loads of recently slaughtered beef were coming in every hour all last night. The First Blood.

PINE RIDGE AGENCY, S. D., (via Rushville, Neb.,) Nov. 28.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE. |- The first blood of the campaign was shed last night by Benjamin Rowland, a government scout. He was attacked and stabbed with a butcher knife in the hands of Antone Herman, who had been drinking heavily. Both are halfbreeds and brothers-in-law. Herman was captured last night and is row behind the bars of the agency guard house awaiting his trial.

The entire police force, numbering 100, turned out this morning to arrest Swing-Rosebud, but on going to his tepeethey found that their bird had flown to Wounded Knee creek, where the Rosebud Indians are camped. It is reported that they are still committing depredations and are in no hurry to come in and report. Private Morris, Com-pany B, Ninth cavalry, was thrown from his horse and sustained internal injuries. He will probably die.

RAIDING THE COUNTRY. A Lawless Band of Indians Pillaging Near Rosebud Agency.

Roserup Agency, S. D., (via Valentine, Neb.) Nov. 28 .- Special Telegram to THE BEE.]-Lieutenant Colonel Poland, Twentyfirst infantry, has assumed command of the forces at Rosebud. The colonel has had long experience with the Sloux. Rigid discipline is enforced to keep the soldiers from alarm ng the Indians. Word is being sent to the Indians that no injury is to be done any at home. The present danger is peculiar. About fifty young men are raiding the whole country, destroying everything, breaking all school houses and mission chapels. These are at large and are having a good time. They opened a house of R. P. Whiton White river, an ex-farmer Rosebud, stole a gold watch and chain given to him last New Years by friends at Rosebud and a large quantity of groceries.

This gang can break up at any time after doing very destructive work or by allying themselves to the hostiles can destroy all th hav and horses on the reserve. Few runner are coming in and no authentic news as yet All the friendly Indians from the hostile region are now on the Little White river five miles from the agency. The weather is very fine and troops in good health.

To Join Buff do Bill. Pittsbung, Pa., Nov. 28 .- [Special Tele gram to THE BEE.]-A party of six Indians passed through this city today en route t the far west to join Buffalo Bill on the mis-sion in which he has just started, to run down the much talked of Messiah and quiet the hostile redskins. Wild Horse Bill was the title of the scout who had charge of the party. The others all agree with him in saying he did not think there was much danger of an outbreak before spring as the Indians would not care to break up their villages and go on the war path in cold weather.

Lower Brul-s Dancing.

Washington, Nov. 28 .- Acting Indian Commissioner Belt today received a telegram from Agent Dixon at Crow Creek agency, South Dakota, saying that none of his Indians ad yet been dancing. A small ban I of Lower Brules near the Rosebua reservation had been dancing and he had dispatched a force of police and scouts to stop it. He has also called home all the Indians having passes to leave the reservation, and says be considers it impossible to be surprised in any out break the Lower Brules may make.

Broke Up the Dance. CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Nov. 28 .- The Lower Brule Indian police started in to break up the ghost dances last night and today eight leading dancers are in jail at the agency. Another dance is reported as organizing for tonight and the police are ready for it. Affairs were lively for a time but the police are too much for the new adherents of the Mesiah craze. No dancer of an outbreak is siah craze. No danger of an outbreak is feared.

A Dakota Scare.

BRISTOL, S. VOICE OF THE PRESS.

Both Parnell and Gladstone are Handled Without Gloves.

LONDON, Nov. 28 .- It was reported that the Gladstone counter manifesto would comment at great length on matter. The bomb has been exploded in anger and Parnell turns against his fellow conspirators to save his own political life. The manifesto has rendered the prospects for hannesto has rentered the prospects for home rule worse than at any time since 1885. The Daily News says: To Parnell's ex-cited feelings every man's hand seems against him and he set his hand against every man. This is the last fatal dis-service which obliterates many if not all his incomparable service. The News appeals to the Irish clergy and people not to allow Parnell to drag down the home rule cause in his own fall by a be-lief in his serious misapprehensions of their English friends.

The Chronicle says: Parnell's most powerful blow is the revolution of the abject paralysis of the Gladstonian party over the land question and Morley's confession of their in-ability to assist the sufferers from the plan of campaign. The manifesto clearly shows that Parnell is not a person with whom any statesman can venture to hold confidential re-lations. Irish ingratitude in politics is proverbial, but never before was it avowed with such cold, calculating cynicism.

The Standard says: The manifesto is bighly damaging to the credit of Gladstone and Morley as straightforward statesmen. No English politician will ever trust Parnell again, but he has chosen the right line to win back the financial regard of Irishmen.

The Times says: The manifesto shivers forever the supposition that Parnell can ever again be treated as a trustworthy friend or honorable foe. It is probably the most shameless document the English public life has seen since the days of the revolution The Times thinks however it will probably effect its purpose and refers to the severity of the blow inflicted on Gladstone's imprac the able schemes.

In case the Irish nationalist members at the meeting on Monday favor Parnell, a movement will immediately be started among the liberals to give English reforms prece-dence over home rule, and a meeting to ad-vocate reverting to the programme of 1885 will be summoned.

PARNELL WILL NOT BUDGE.

He Insists on Remaining at the Head of the Irish Party.

SOME INSIDE HISTORY MADE PUBLIC.

The Price Ireland was to Pay for Bome Rule-The Great Liberal Charged with Seeking Revenge.

London, Nov. 28 .- Parnell's manifesto to the Irish people, which was issued tonight, is very lengthy. He begins by saying: "The integrity and independence of a sec tion of the Irish parliamentary party having been apparently sapped and destroyed by wire pullers of the liberal party, it has become necessary for me as the leader of the Irish party to take counsel with you, and having given you the knowledge which is in my possession, ask your judgment upon a matter which now solely devolves upon you to decide. A letter from Gladstone to Mr. Morley, written for the purpose of influence ing the decision of the Irish party in their choice of a leader, and claiming for the liberals and their leaders the right of vote upon the choice is the immediate cause of this address, the purpose of which is to remind you and your parliamentary representatives that Ireland considers the independence of her party as her only safeguard within the constitution and above and beyond all other considerations whatever, threat in that letter, repeated so insolently on many platforms and in numerous newspapers. compels me to put before you information which until now has been solely in my possession, and which will enable you to understand a measure of the loss with which you are threatened unless you consent to throw

me to the English welves now howling for my destruction." Parnell then tells how at Hawarden last November he received from Gladstone the details of that gentleman's and his colleagues' proposal with regard to home rule in the event of the next general election favoring the liberal party. Upon the subject of the retention of Irish members in the imperial parliament Gladstone told him in order to conciliate English public opinion it would be necessary to reduce Irish representation from 103 to 32. Upon the settlement of the land question Gladstone intimated that while he would re-Gladstone intimated that while he would re-new his attempt to settle the matter by im-perial legislation on the lines of the land pur-chase bill of 1886 he would not undertake to put any pressure upon his own side. In other words, that the Irish legislature was not to be given the power of solving agrarian difficulties. With regard to the control of the Irish constabulary it was stated by Glad-stone that in view of the necessity of concilating English public opinion it would be necessary to leave this force to the appointment of its officers under control of imperial authority for an indefinite period, while funds for its maintainance would be compulsorily provided out of Irish revenue. A period of the or the province of the or the or the province of the or the province of the or the or the province of the or the or the province of the or the province of the or the or the province of the or iod of ten or twelve years was suggested as the limit of time during which the appointment of judges and resident magistrates should be retained in the hands of the imperial authorities.

Passing to his own expressions on these rassing to his own expressions on these points which, Parnell says, represent his views then and now, with regard to the retention of Irish members, he holds that with the concession of full powers to an Irish legislature equivalent to those enjoyed by a state of the American union, the number and position of members so retained would be come a question of imperial concern and not pressing or immediate importance for the in-terests of Ireland; but that with the important and all-engrossing subjects of agrar ian reform, constabulary control and judici-ary appointments left either under imperial control or totally unprovided for, it would be the height of madness for any Irish leader to imitate Grattan's example and consent to disband an army which had cleared the way to

"I further undertook to use every legitimate influence to reconcile Irish public opinion to the gradual coming into force of new privileges and the postponements necessary English opinion with regard to constabular ragish opinion with regard to constabiliary control and judicial appointments, but I strongly dissented from the proposed reduc-tion of the number of members during the interval of probation and pointed to the absence of any suitable prospect of land settle by either parhament as a constitutiona and overwhelming drag upon the prospects of permanent peace and prosperity in Ireland.

At the conclusion of the interview, Parnel was informed that, pending the general elec-tion, Gladstone and his colleagues had agreed that stlence should be preserved with regard to these points of difference. The absence of any provision for the settlement of the agrarian question; of any policy on the par of the liberal leaders, Parnell says, filled him with concern and apprehension. On the in troduction of the land purchase bill by the government at the commencement of last session, Morley conferred with him, and hav-ing regard to the avowed absence of any strongly advised Morley against any direct challenge of the principle of state aid in land purchase and that they should direct their forts on the second reading to the assertion of the principle of local control. In this Morley agreed with him, but was at the same time hampered by the extreme section of his led by Labouchere, and in a subs quent interview impressed upon Parnell the necessity of meeting the second reading of the bill with a direct negative and asked him to undertake the motion.

"I agreed on condition that I was not to attack the principle of measure but confine my self to wcriticism of details. I think," says Parnell, "this was false strategy, but it was trategy adopted out of regard to English prejudices and radical peculiarities. I did the best possible under the circumstances and several days' debate on the second reading contrasts favorably with Labouchere's recent abortive attempt to interpose a direct negative to the first reading of a similar bill

Just before the commencement of this ses ion Parnell had another interview with Moriey and impressed upon him the policy of the oblique method of procedure with reference to the land purchase, and the necessity and importance of providing for the question of local control and limitation in the applica tion of funds.
"He agreed with me," says Parnell, "and I offered to move on the first reading of the bill an amendment in favor of this local con-trol, advising him, if this was rejected, it might be left to the radicals on a second read-ing to oppose the principle of the meas-ure. I left Morley under the impres-sion that this would fall to my duty but in addition he made a remarkable proposal. Referring to the probable approaching victory of the liberals, he suggested some considerations as to the future of the Irish party and asked me whether I would be will-ing to assume the office of chief secretary for Ireland, or whether I would allow another member of my party to take the position. He also put before me the desirability of filling one of the law offices of the crown in Iseland by a legal member of my party. I told him, amazed as I was at the proposal, that I could not agree to forfeit it any way the independence of the party or its members; that the Irish people had trusted me because they believed the declaration which I made at Cork in 1880 represented my conviction and that I would on no accoun depart from it.

"I consider that Mr. Morley's proposal, members of parliament today's resolution was adopted declaring that Mr. Parnell ought to retire from the frish leadership. continued Mr. Parnell, "that we should allow ourselves to be absorbed into English politics, was one based upon an entire miscon-ception of our position. In conclusion Mr. Moriey directed my attention to the plan of Will Stick to Cork in Any Event. London, Nov. 28.- Special Cablegram the campaign. He said it would be impossible for the liberal party when it attained power to do anything for these evicted tenants by direct action and it would also be impossible for the Irish parliament, under THE BEE.]-It is stated that even if Parnell is outvoted at Monday's meeting he will stick to his seat for Cork and harass the liberals the powers conferred, to do anything for them, and flinging up his hands with a gesture of despair he exclaimed: 'Having been in Tipperary I do not know what to propose.' I told him this question was a limited one; funds would be available from America and elsewhere for the support of those tenants as long as necessary and this difficulty should not be allowed to interfere with the general interests of the country."

THE NEW RAILROAD COMBINE. It Will Ask the Amendment of the Interstate Law. NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE.]—The great compact among the western railroads will, according to the World of this morning, be executed within a few days. It will be the most extensive arrangement of the kind ever formulated. All the roads engaged in through competitive traffic west of Chicago will be parties to it. If there are any dissenting roads they will be denied prorating privileges until they fall into line.

The compact, in effect, will, continues the World, be the same as the old trunk line pool. The total traffic will be divided among the roads by percentages. A clearing house will be established, to which the business of the roads will be reported. Any road which carries more than its percentage will have to pay over the excess to the pool, any road which falls short of its percentage will have its deficiency made up. Differential rates will be allowed to the roads less advantageously situated in order that they may secure in the natural course of traffic their allotted modicum. No read will be allowed to make exten-sions without the consent of an executive ommittee, consisting of representatives from all the roads.

The compact is to last for five years, according to the present plan. The meeting to agree upon it will be held in New York within a few days, probably the first of iext week. Hallroad managers have already begun to arrive for the purpose of attending it. S. H. H. Clark, general manager of the southwestern system, and Mellen, general manager of the Union Pacific, are now here. President R. R. Cable of the Rock Island vill arrive tomorrow. President C. P. Hunt ngton will appear for the Southern Pacific resident Thomas F. Oakes for the Northern Pacific and George C. Magoun, chairman of the Atchison board of directors, for that road. The representatives of the other lines have not yet been named. It is proposed to ask for an amendment to the interstate commerce law which will re-move all possible obstacles to the scheme The ground upon which the appeal is to be made is that only by pooling can stability of rates be secured, and that only by stability of rates can discrimination among shippers be prevented. The abolition of the long and short haul clause will also be asked.

Directors of the Richmond Terminal. New York, Nov. 28.—[Special Telegram to THE BEE,]-At the annual election of the Richmond Terminal company on December 9 the complexion of the directorate will be completely changed by the five members coming in. AN EXUBERANT ARKANSAS DELEGATION.

A Possibility That the Rivers and Harbors Bill will Remain in the Background-A Sanguine Missourian Peers Into the Future.

WASHINGTON BUREAU THE OMARA BEE,) 513 FOURIERNI STREET, WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 28. There is likely to be an exciting score in the house of representatives on Monday. The democrats are feeling very "pert" as they say down south and will make a demonstration for the benefit of Speaker Reed and the republicans as well as for their own gratification. The immediate occasion and excuse for the demonstration will be the swearing in of Clifton R. Breckinridge of Arkansas who was unscated by the votes of republicans in the last session because the opposing candidate in his district, Mr. Clayton, was assassinated, and because of the outrageous frauds perpetrated there. Mr. Mr. Breckinridge has been re-elected to the present congress as his own successor. He feels that he has been fully vindicated and rejoices greatly. A party of Arkansas democrats have accompanied him to Washington to assist in the celebration of this fact and propose to decorate the city of Washington with very vivid colors. On Monday they will ge to the capitol in a body and having no respect for the rules of the house or the authority of the czar, will make their presence known to all concerned. It is quite likely that the rebelyell will be heard in the corrider of the capitol.

RIVERS AND HARBORS WILL PART WELL.

The wry faces which are made over the annual passage of a big river and harbor bill will be spared this year, as there is little or no prospect of such a bill going through or even being urged. The short session will have too much on its hands to permit of the long study and discussion which a river and narbor bill requires, and, furthermore, there is a disposition in the repulican congressional ranks owing to the state of the finances to leave the oig appropriations for the next democratic house to pass. The situation has become so well understood that Senstor Frye of the senate committee on commerce, has told the secretary of war and the chief of engineers that no bill will pass, General Henderson of Illinois feels the same way, so that the chance of river and harbor bill at the coming session are nil. There will be little delay in river and harbor improvement by this failure to pass a new bill. The old act was passed so late at the last session that the funds were not available until navigation was about to become so well understood that Senstor not available until navigation was about to close, so that this appropriation intended for last year's work will be ample to carry forward operations next summer, though it will not last through the succeeding summer, when the next bill will be acted on. General Casey will confine his recommendations for river and harbor improvements to these cases in which the last appropriation anticipated a continuance of the work and succeeding appropriations. Improvements which may be meritorious, but which are not now started, will be left for some future congress to look after. A MISSOURIAN'S PREDICTION. Representative Mansur of Missouri, who arrived from home today, says that the democrats will elect the next president by the largest majority ever given to any man run-ning for that office, and he has no doubt who that man will be. "The people of my state," he said, "and through all the west, for that matter, are wild about Cleveland. Nobody else will do for them. They will not listen to the name of any other candidate." Repre-sentative Caswell of Wisconsin explains that the school question and the tariff caused the earthquake in Wisconsin. THE ENTRY CANCELLED.

Assistant Secretary Chandler today re-versed the decision of of the commissioner of the general land office in dismissing the conthe general land office in dismissing the con-test of Albert Darrington against the timber culture entry of Henry L. Dehart, The land involved is the northwest 14 of section 17, township 32, range 57 west, Valentine, Neb., land district. The assistant secretary, after a careful review of the case, decides that Deharts entry should be cancelled.

CAPTAIN TAYLOR'S REPORT.

He Advocates the Taking of Measures to Equip Cavalry Troops. WASHINGTON, Nov. 28 .- Captain Taylor of the ordnance department in charge of supplies to the militia, strongly urges the passage of the pending bill to promote the efficiency of the militia. He calls attention to the disparity in the numbers, between the cavalry and infantry militia; he says the cavalry is one of the most difficult arms to improvise, and some steps should be taken to encourage the fourtlation of new and faster cavalry organizations in the militia. He recommends congress to appropriate for the placing in each state which has more than 5,000 organized militia at a point the governor may indicate and where stables and forage can be provided at the expense of the state, of sufficient horses, not to exceed seventy-five for each state, to mount a troop of cavalry, with detachments of regular cavalry soldiers to care for them and non-commissioned officers as instructors. Captain Taylor speaks of the necessity of a reserve of horses in our service, which is recognized in nearly all foreign countries and which we have not. He also touches upon the feasibility of a horse census and legislation to prevent the country being depleted of ani-mals which may be urgently needed in the event of war.

At present there is nothing to prevent At present tarters all of our available animals and undoubtedly at different times large numbers have been shipped out of the country. The difficulty of obtaining suitable cavalry horses has alarmingly increased the past fifteen years.

Captain Taylor also urges the passage of a bill authorizing to the states and territories a supply of field guns to encourage the formation of artillery companies. London Financial Matters.
