MARCH FROM THE ROCKIES. How it Was Made by the Seventh Infantry of Denver. THE ROSTER OF THE REGIMENT.

Conflicting Orders Which Cause the Command to Remain Over a Night in the Gate City.

Last night, agreeably to the announcement in The Bre the Seventh infantry arrived in the city at the Union Pacific depot. They had come from Fort Logan, the beautiful post, nine miles from Denver, named in honor of the here of Atlanta and a number of other engagements in the late war.

They embarked at the fort at 11 o'clock on Wednesday and left the city on a special train at 2 o'clock of the same day. 'The run to this city was uneventful save in the matter of delay and contradictory telegrams. These at times tested the patience of the boys and at other times caused them to wonder when the object of their destination would be made known to them. The command comprised the following companies:

B company, Captain T. S. Kirtiand, Lieu tenant G. S. Young and Lieutenant F. H.

Sargent, C company, Captain J. T. Van Orsdell, Licutemant G. McIver.
D company, Captain F. H. M. Kendrick and Second Licutentant Robert Alexauder. E company, Captain L. F. Burnett and Sec-ond Licutemant H. T. Ferguson.
F company, Licutemant D. A. Frederick and Licutemant J. R. M. Taylor.
G company, Captain William Quinton, Licutemant D. L. Howell and Licutemant A. P. Buffington.

P. Buffington. These companies comprise 253 men. They were under the command of Colonel Henry C. Merriam, brother of Licutenant Merriam, who six years ago stood at the head of the marksmen of the army. He is well known in this city, and in fact was married to a young hady who for years had made this city her home. He has bee, sick for some time, but because tensorities in Idaho will employ here present speculation in Idaho will enable him to retire in a double sense and enjoy the honor which his career as a soldier and marksman have earned for him. Colonel Merriam himself is the inventor of the Merriam knapsack, a contrivance which removes the weight of the soldier's pack from his back and imposes it upon his hips. This mflords a relief which soldiers greatly appre-ciate. The knapsack, however, is being experimented with.

Lieutenant A. B. Johnson, a pright, capa-ble, young and experienced officer, acted as adjutant, while Lieutenant L. D. Greene, well known in this city when he was alde-de-camp to General Crook, acted as quarter-

Major R. M. O'Reilly is the surgeon ac-companying the command. He has been in the army since '64 and it seems as if he is the thorough and accomplished gentleman to have round when hospital stewards are in

The train bearing the command consisted of six touris; sleepers, in which were quar-tered the men, the Pullman "Transit," one flat car, two baggage car, one stock car containing four horses and four mules and one car containing a redeross ambulance. When the colonel was asked how he expected to get along without wagons, he re-marked they would have to do the best they could until they could get to Pierre and replace their own nine wagons and re-place their own nine wagons and mules which they had allowed to go with General Forsyth and his Seventh cavalry when it passed through Denver on its way to the front.

The men were in excellent spirits, notwithstanding that they had subsisted mainly on Innches along the journey, and when they learned that Quartermaster Greene had telepraphed to this city to have seventeen bar-rels of hot coffee, more or less, ready when the train should arrive, they felt about as happy as a bevy of kittens in a basket of

The regiment had left Denver under the impression that upon its arrival in this city it would be given horses and otherwise equipped for the campaign. Later a telegram was received by the col-onel stating that it had been suggested by mether, who has also left home with the avowed intention of finding a "solid man." The father says that he is too poor to travel about over the country looking for his daughter and requests that she besent bome in shackles. The girl is still confined in the city jail, together with Nora Ransdall who was arrested at the same time. Both are terribly deprived and announce their determination to continue in their downward course. They object to being taken home or to the reform school.

J. Jermain, son of a former well known cithen and character, was run in by Officer Murphy last evening and locked up on the charge of intoxication and the indecent exposure of his person on the street. Jermain has been in the city for several days enjoying a protracted spree. He lives in the country. The Dodge Light guards will give their opening party for this season on Dec. 30, The affair promises to be a very brilliant one and will undoabtedly make the holidays pass more pleasantly to those who attend. The committee are C. E. Woodbury, J. W. Atwood, C. H. Ogden, R. W. Bixby and D. L. Ross.

An officer from Denison, Ia., was in the city last night looking for a sixteen-year-old girl who had eloped with a fellow named John Christenson. Christenson is a married man, and he deserted his wife and family of three or four children and eloped with the young girl, who is his wite's sister. They were not found, but it was ascertained that they stopped on Sunday night as a Lower Broadway hotel and took the motor for Omaha Monday morning.

A short time ago an attempt was made to a stort folks from hading sand away from property of which J. W. Paul claims owner-ship. Complaint was made by J. F. Hunt, who was said to be incharge of the property, and several were brought before Justice Schurz on the charge of malicious trespass. The accused were acquitted by a jury, new two of them, Martin Williams and Lindsey, have commenced suit against Hunt, in the superior court, claiming from him $5,000 each on the ground that their arrest and prosecution was without any reasonable cause, and that it was for the purpose of annoying and tantalizing them.

A vicious runaway occurred on North Eighth street yesterday morning. The team was attached to a lumber wagon and had been frightened almost to death by the upsetling of a load of hay which fell on them and almost covered them up. On the corner of Eighth and Avenue C they collided with a lamp post and wrecked one of Uncle Sam's letter boxes, scattering the mail it contained pretty well over the street. The only other damage was done in a collision with a bugg driven by Mrs. W. C. Boyer, of 2022 Avenu bugg: D. The lady was thrown from her buggy but escaped injury. Her horse was slightly hurt and her buggy was broken. The run away team was captured on Mill street.

Wm. Smith, who was arrested for stealing lumber from one of the bill boards belonging to Billposter Nicols and fined for the offens at the morning session of the police court of

Wednesday, uttered threats against the man who preferred the charge and the witness testified against him. He was rearrested upon complaint of Nichols, who asked the court to put, him under bonds to keep th peace, but afterwards withdrew the charge This encouraged Smith in prosecuting h determination to get revenge, and yesterday morning when he met the leading witness againgt him, A. C. The warrant was served and Smith was brought before the judge, who had given him a lement sentence the day previous. When the evidence was all in the court kept his word, and imposed a fine of $25 and the costs made it reach over $30. Smith could not pay, and will work it out on the streets.

Fred and John Barnes, living in Hazel Dell township, have notified the police that they will give $40 reward for the dotection of the thief who has been stealing corn from their promises. They are able to give a pretty good description of him. He is about six feet tall, of rather slim build, dark complexion, pock marked in the face and walks with shoulders elevated. He has a bay team. One of the horses is blind, and the off animal has a white stripe down his forchead, and is also lame. The wagon is supposed to be a White water. It has a double set of sideboards, and the top boards are made of common lumber. The fellow has been hauling the corn to Council Bluffs.

A very narrow escape occurred on Broad-way near the Ogden house yesterday after-noon. A man driving a team attached to the unning gear of a wagon was proceeding alongside the track, but far enough from i not to be hit by a motor. He was so bundle up that he could not hear the bell o a car which was approaching him in the rear, and just as it came near to where he was, he carelessly turned to cross the track without looking behind him. The motorman tried to stop the car, but be-fere he could do so the wagon was struck and shoved along several yards. The was suddenly tumbled off his seat, but tunately at one side of the track, and the team proved docile enough to behave them-selves until the wagon could be righted. Luckily the man escaped injury, and the damage to the wagou was comparatively nothing.

O. H. Lewis, a painter, was arrested yes

O. H. Lewis, a painter, was arrested yes-terday upon an information sworn out by George Meschendorf, charging him with ob-taining money under false pretenses. Lewis was boarding with Mrs. Warner, on Vine street, and has assisted in car-rying the meals of the city prisoners to them at the city jail, Mrs. Warner having the contract to feed them. He has also been doing a portion of Mrs. Warner's marketing, and by that means has become accuainted and by that means has become acquainted with several of the business men with whom the woman trades. Yesterday he went to Meschendorf's butcher shop and told the pro-prietor that Mrs. Warner desired the loan of 55 until Monday, when she would return it with her weekly bill. The money was given him and the fact communicated to Mrs. Warnon and the fact communicated to Mrs. War-ner. She repudiated the transaction. Lewis had a hearing before Justice Schure and was bound over to the grand jury, but last night the matter was sottled in some manner and the charge was withdrawn. The cases of the Maher boys, Forgrave and Gallager, charged with assaulting A. McEnturf and H. C. Pearson, the Minder Scotchmen, were called in Justice Schurz court vesterday morning. Only one of the defendants was ready for trial, and that was Gallagher. He has, insisted from the start upon an immediate trial and was very anxious to meet his accusers. When he was arraigned the court asked the prosecuting witnesses if they had ever seen him before. if they had ever seen him before, and they both at once asserted that they never had, and that he asserted was not in the saloon when the row occurred. He was promptly discharged, but took time to tell the court how it happened that he was arrested. He was merely passing by and heard the row, and was looking through the door when an officer came along and saw him just as the crowd poured out of the place. He thus became mixed up in the melee without being in any manner connected with it or responsible for it. The other cases were taken before Justice Barnett on a change of venue, and the dates of hearing fixed for the 12th and 30th of December.

THE COUNCIL. Wheeler, Morearty and Lowry Exchange Courtesies.

The first business of the council session last night gave Morearty and Majer Wheeler a chance to exchange courtesies. It was in the shape of a petition signed by several bundred citizens requesting the selection of Mr. William Bushman as a member of the public library board, succeeding Judge Savage, Mr. Morearty moved the election of Mr. Bushman. Major Wheeler offered an amendment postcoming consideration of the matter for one week until the library board should officially notify the council of a vacancy in the board. Then Mr. Morearty made a speech-of his

A resolution being considered when Mr. Lowry asked that the paper be read again. A gentleman was sitting at Lowry's side who was not a mem-ber of the council, and Wheeler offered the suggestion that if Lowry would keep out-siders from the inner circle of the council he suggestion that if Lowry would need out in siders from the inner circle of the council he might hear what was going on. Lowry re-torted that Wheeler's action and remark were discourteous and uafair. The city treasurer reported the presence in his hands of $19,575 of the sum-advanced by the Union Pacific and B- & M, to pay the damages assessed to the property owners by the construction of the Tenth street viaduct.

A resolution accompanied the report trans-ferring the amount to the general fund. Lowry opposed this resolution and said he was not in favor of berrowing money from the railroad companies to pay overlaps in-curred by the council.

The matter brought out a discussion and the city attorney's opinion was called for. He replied by saying :

"The council has no more right to take the money in that way than it has to go out and garrot people on the streets." The matter was referred to the finance committee.
