MURDOCH AND THE BURGLAR.

A Thrilling Midnight Experience with Bold House Breaker.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LOYAL LEGION.

An Eloquent Speech Delivered by Governor Boyd-A Jail Breaker Captured-Other News from the State Capital.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 16.- Special to Tim Ben. |-Mr. J. M. Murdoch, the well known commercial traveler living at Twenty-first and L streets, had a most thrilling experience last night with a burglar, Mr. Murdoch got home late and went to bed about midnight. He was just sinking into slumber when he was awakened by a noise at the window opening out on the roof of the porch. He seized his shotgun and stole cautiously up to the place to find a burglar attempting to effect an entrance. He shoved the muzzle of the shotgun into the face of the startled housebreaker and told him that he must surrender or suffer immediate death. The burgiar saw that Mr. Murdoch had the drop on him and accepted the former alternative. The fellow begged Murdoch not to kill him, and the gentleman informed him that he would spare his life if he would jump from the perch and allow Mr. Murdoch to conduct him to the police station.

Murdoch hastily donned his clothes and rushed to the front door, but found the burglar disappearing through the front gate. No attention was paid to the cry of "halt," and Mr. Murdoch emptied the contents of one of the barrels of the shotgun at the fugitive. He brought the fellow down, the shot taking effect in the hip. The fellow dropped his revolver and burglarious instruments and Mr. Murdoch again captured him and gathered up the articles he had dropped.

Meanwhile Mrs. Murdoch, who was paralyzed with terror, thinking her husband was murdered, began to utter a series of piercing shricks. Mr. Murdoch, thinking that the burglar was too badly injured to again attempt to escape, went back into the house to assure his wife that everything was all right. He again returned to his prisoner a few minutes later and was startled to see him disappearing up the street. He fired again, the shot taking effect and making the fellow bite the dust a second time.

At this juncture a cart drove hurriedly up to where the wounded burgiar was lying and a powerful man with a hat pulled over his eyes jumped out hastily, lifted the prostrate man into the vehicle and, laying lash, the two drove off. This was the last seen of them. Mr. Murdoch turned the burgiar's revolver and the burglarious instruments over to the LOYAL LEGION.

The Nebraska commandery of the Loyal Legion held its fifth annual reunion at the Lincom hotel last evening and it proved to be one of the most brilliant ever held in the

It was the first time that the Lincoln hotel had been formally opened to the public, and a more splendid assemblage could not have been selected to participate in the housewarming.

The magnificent foyer, the elegant parlors and the glittering dining hall are admirably adapted for social events.

As is knewn, the Loyal Legion is a social organization confined to gentlemen who have beed commissioned officers in the army. The session last evening therefore called together the cream of the social circles of the state.

session last evening therefore called together the cream of the social circles of the state.

The reception was held from 8 to 10, and at the latter hour the bugle call was sounded and the gallant officers fell into line with their handsome wives and charming daughters. The doors of the dining hall were thrown open and a dazzling scene presented itself. The palatial hall was lit with the refugence of a hundred electric lights. the refugence of a hundred electric lights, and the snow white walls glistened like marble. Three long tables laden with silver and crystal reflected and multiplied the clectric jets. Smilax was gracefully entwined about the chandeliers, while on every side tropical plants and flowers of every hue transformed the place into a garden.

Over one hundred and fifty guests sat down to the tables and enjoyed the elegant At 11:30 the commander called the gay company to order and a feast of oratory and music followed. music followed.

Lieutenant George E. Pritchett read a paper on "The Capture of Fort Fisher." General John B. Dennis presented a most interesting address on the life of General Alfred H. Terry, Major Joseph H. Paddock responded to "The Dawn of Peace," and Hon. G. M. Lambertson paid a glowing tribute to the "Loyal Legion."

After a few remarks by John M. Lambertson paid a glowing tribute to the "Loyal Legion."

After a few remarks by John M. Thurston, Governor Boyd came forward in response to numerous calls. The governor said:

Gentlemen of the Loyal Legion: I take pleasure in being with you this evening and joining in cordial fellowship with the members of your organization and its invued guests. The Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States by its very name proclaims itself a patriotic institution, and as such commends itself to every true lover of his country. I take it that your order means more than the mere perpetuation of war. The mories. I believe its purpose is to inspire a love for country, a loyalty to good governa love for country, a loyalty to good govern-ment, and a fidelity to our free institutions.

In these grand sentiments we can all join ands and be brothers.

In the narrow walks of politics we may be known as democrats, as republicans, or as independents, but in the broad domain of patriotism political distinctions vanish and we are American citizens, one and united. we are American citizens, one and united. The perpetuation of our government depends upon the cultivation of patriotic sertiment, for the true lover of his country is ever ready to lay down his life for its preservation.

"But, gentlemen, 'Peace hath her victories no less than war,' and the dying words of the immortal Douglas sounded forth as true a patriotism when he teld the people to obey the laws of their country as did the lips of the dying Mulligan when they uttered in foe-ble tones, 'Lay me down and save the flag.'

"For several years before and during the war I lived on what was known as the frost."

war I lived on what was known as the front-ier, but my sympathies were with those in front. Every pulsation of my heart was in-tensely American; my every thought for the preservation of the union. And I yield to none—not even those whose ancestors were here in revolutionary times—in devotion, al-legiance and loyalty to the United States of America.

"While I can not, in the words of Daniel Webster, say, 'I was born an American,' no Roman ever took greater pride in saying, 'I am a Roman,' than I in saying, in the language of Webster, 'I live an American, I shall die an American.'"

A telephone message was received this merning from Council Bluffs stating that W. H. Robb, the young man who escaped from the city jail on the night of January 4 last by digging out through the wall of the big cage in which he was confined, was under arrest them. Each had nothing to say but stoutly in which he was confined, was under arrest there. Robb had nothing to say, but stoutly refused to come back without requisition pa-pers. These are being prepared and an offi-cer will be sent after him this evening or tocer will be sent after him this ovening or tomorrow morning. Robb was arrested in Omaha about three weeks ago on the charge of stealing a gold watch from Henry Burcham, a stock dealer of Hickman, the crime being committed in Saunders' saloon during fair week. Robb acknowledged having had the watch, but claimed to have won it from Burcham at a game of cards. His trial was partially concluded, overtures toward a settlement having been made, but the money was slow in coming. Robb tired of waiting, and in company with William Robberts, charged with petty larceny, but who, it is thought, was fearful of being caged for something else, they broke out and skipped. Nothing has been heard from Robberts.

NEBRASKA'S RICH NEIGHBOR. A Land Where Golden Nuggets Slumber in the Hillside.

For years the cast has held the attention of the American people, both in regard to political matters and material wealth. But the arena of active opperations has been transferred to the great valley of the Missourl and the rugged mineral fields of the further west. Active measures are being taken to secure an extensive systems of irrigation, and eastern capital is flowing westward to aid in developing the vast min-eral resources of the new states of the mountain region. Any intelligent person who will make even a casual examination of this field will be forced to the conclusion that the mining operations of the west are in their infancy, with magnificent possibilities in the future. To the citizens of Nebraska the development of no one of these mineral states is of more importance than its neighbor to the northwest, Montana. And perhaps no state of the whole mountain region has brighter prospects as a producer of precious and baser metals than Montana.

The development of the mineral resources of Montana means a permanent home market who will make even a casual examination of

The development of the mineral resources of Montana means a permanent home market for Nebraska hogs, cattle and grain, and a great community of consumers contiguous to a great agricultural state. The state of Montana in 1890 produced one-third of all the precious metals mined in the United States, and at the present rate of development, and considering the richness of the ore taken out, it is safe to say that in 1891 she will produce it is safe to say that in 1891 she will produce one-half of the entire output of the precious metals of the United States.

One of the most promising mines lately dis-covered is the Mineral Hill mine, mention of which was made in THE BEE last October. At that time it was not much more than a facing. Later developments prove it to be a regular bonanza. This mine is located on Indian creek, in Jefferson county. Just south of it is Butte, the greatest mining camp in the world. It is only a few miles from the famous Granite Mountain and Bimetallic silver mines and Luy Gould's mining district is ver mines, and Jay Gould's mining district is only twenty miles distant. This mine was discovered by M. E. Pinney, one of the company has been formed, with Mr. Pinney as president. The mine has been opened and extensive operations are now going on. The claim is 1,500 hundred feet in length by 600 feet in width. Samples of ore were taken from the entire frontage, which assayed $3.75 in silver and $4 in gold, to $546.25 in silver and $90 in gold per ton. The result was astonishing to the owners themselves. Since November 1 a road has been built through the times and warm the silver and the silver an

Since November 1 a road has been built through the timber and over the mountain to the mine, and substantial boarding houses for the employes, snaft house, blacksmith shop, ore houses, etc., have been erected. A shaft is being sunk and cross sections will be made to ascertain the quality of ore at different depths. This mine, which is located in the best mining region in the world, has peculiar advantages not always met with in mining countries, viz, an abundance of timber right on the ground, and untimited water power within a few hundred feet of the shaft. This description of a mine which is a bonazza to its owntion of a mine which is a bonanza to its own ers, and which will yield them more wealth than Cræsus ever possessed, gives an idea of the rich state Nebraska is neigh-bor to, the mutual benefits of which should enlist the interested attention of Nebraska's citizens. The B. & M. railroad has built a line almost diagonally across this state from southeast to northwest, and the Union Pacific taps this region also, thus giv-ing ample opportunities for exchange of pro-ducts, which will be like factories to the one and cornfields to the other. Mr. Pinney, the fortunate gentleman above mentioned, is an old resident of Nebraska City and well known all over the state. The importations into this country during 1890 show 90,130 cases of G. H. Mumm & Co's. Extra Dry, being an increase of 27,000 over the previous year, evidencing the high appreciation in which this wine is held for its excellent quality. It is recommended by the most eminent physicians in this country for its purity, small amount of alcohol and wholesomeness, while for a fine dry champagne, "G. H. Mumm & Co's. Extra Dry is considered by connoisseurs as unsurpassed.
