A Flood of Water Takes Possession of Lower Main Street.

CAUSED BY A BURSTED WATER MAIN.

Another War Between Attorneys-A Patient Tries to Levy on His Physician's Income-Minor Mention.

A twelve-inch water main bursted yesterday afternoon near the corner of Main street and Willow avenue, and the result was the serious flooding of the streets and filling of some of the cellars of adjacent business houses. The most serious damage was done to the building on the northeast corner, occu pied by Dr. Clark as a dental office and Pete Morris' dining hall. The break was immediately in frant of this building, and the water not being able to force its way up through the frozen earth and the granite pavement followed the service pipe leading into the building. The sidewalk was torn up, the cellar flooded and the foundations of the building undermined. The break occurred about 2 o'clock and it was nearly 5 before the water could be turned off on account of the difficulty the waterworks employes experienced digging away the snow and ice to find the stop boxes. Main street was covered with a thick sheet of ice that reached from Willow avenue almost to the Rock Island depot. Cross streets were also flooded, occadepot. Cross streets were also flooded, occasioning considerable annoyance to people on the streets. The elevators in the Brown building and the Merriam block were stopped, and a good deal of inconvenience was experience by people whose service pipes were fed by the Main street main.

No extra pressure was on the mains at the time and there is no explanation for the sudden break. Workmen were engaged all night in requiring the broken pipe. in repairing the broken pipe.

After Flickinger's Scalp.

Attorney Benjamin of Avoca filed a couple of papers in district court yesterday which make some startling charges against the firm of Flickinger Brothers. The case is that of Crangle vs George H. Maish and Chariotte Maish, administrators of George H. Maish, the history of which was given in these columns a short time ago. The case as it now stands is a petition for rehearing, Crangle claiming that the witnesses upon the strength of whose testimony judgment was rendered against him, have since that judgment found that they were invelged into making false testimony by a misstatement of facts. Flickinger Brothers have acted as attorneys for Maish ever since the case was started in the district court seven years ago, and they have had charge of it ever since, taking it through the supreme court on an appeal. Benjamin, who has manipulated the other side, now comes to the front with an amendment to his former petition, in which he states that Charlotte Maish, Flickinger's alleged client, claims that she was appointed executry of the estate of George H. Maish on June 1, 1888, and that she never authorized Flickinger Brothers to appear as her attorneys nor did they have any authority from her husband before his death. She claims that she never knew of the bringing of the suit until last Thursday, when she met Mr Benjamin in Des Moines and he told her of it. She says that Curmins & Wright of Des Moines are the only ones who are authorized to appear as her attorneys. She further alleges that when the property was sold by the sheriff it was bid in by Flickinger Brothers for $5,300. No part of this amount, she claims, was ever received by her from Flickinger Brothers.

A motion was also filed by Benjamin, asking the court to compel the Flickinger Brothers to show by what authority they have acted as attorneys in the case. Flickinger Brothers asked for ten days in which to file an answer, and this was granted them.

The Flickingers deny that there has been anything fraudulent on their part. They claim that they were employed by a Rock Island law firm to look after the case at this end of the line, and consequently they had no dealings with Mrs. Maish whatever. That is the reason, they say, why Mrs. Maist never authorized them to act as her attorneys. They are confident that when the case comes to trial they will be able to make all their transactions appear in an honorable light.

The city council met last evening with all the members present except Alderman Everett, with Mayor Macrae in the chair. The first part of the evening was devoted to reading and allowing bills, among which were the following: City officers, $687; special clerks in city offices, $190; marshal's department, $251.70; fire department, $1,330; electric light company, $1,015. The bill of the police department was the first to meet with decided opposition. It was for $1,547.46. Alderman Smith of the police commission said he had not signed the bill because, according to his arithmetic, thirteen patrolmen at $70 ought to amount to $910. Some discussion over the police force was then indulged in, some of the aldermen thinking that the force was furnishing too many men with jobs. Finally the bill was allowed as claimed. The engineer's bill also caused some discus-ion. Wind said he heard that a man in the engineer's department had been drunk most of the time during last month, and he would like to know whether the report was true.

like to know whether the report was true. The bill was laid on the table until an investigation could be made.

F. W. Loomis presented the bill for the advertisement which was inserted in the allostrated West. Alderman Wood explained the bill. He stated that a contract had been entered into with the Illustrated West company by which the city was to have a null several pages long and to take 5 000. a puff several pages long and to take 5,000 copies for di tribution, for which the city was to pay $250. Some of the aldermen was to pay $250. Some of the aldermen kicked, saying that the part of the con-tract referring to the distribution of the 500 copies had not been ful-filled. Mr. J. J. Steadman stated in behalf of the company, that he had left the 500 copies with the business men, and that if they had not been distributed it was not his fault. He understood the contracts had been signed and the work was to be pushed, and now he wanted to know whether that was the case, so that he could know what to do on his side of the case. The mayor informed him that he had waited awhile, at the request of the city attorney, before signing the contracts. ne was going to do about it, and after a while, thinking that no further action was going to be taken by the enjoiners, he had signed the ontract, and the work was to be pushed as

Alderman Knepher moved that a light be placed on or near the Indian creek bridge on Sixth street. Alderman Casper wanted to amend by adding a light at the upper end of Kaepher street, and Knepher amended again by adding another at the corner of Sixteenth street and Sixth avenue. Casper said there was no sixth avenue. Casper said there was no need of a light at the corner of Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue. Mikesell said there was. So did Smith. A short, but spirited debate then ensued, after which Alderman Casper moved that the clause relating to the corner in question be stricken out. The motion was lost. Knepher then wanted to vote on each part of the motion separately, for fear that if the whole were dumped together he would lose his beloved Sixth street lamp. Again war came to the front. Knepher and Casper were both on the floor at the same time, sawing the air vigorously, and for a few minutes the audience looked on with fear and trembling, expecting every moment to see blood flow. Finally by mutual agree-ment it was decided to vote on each separ-

Whose motion shall be voted on first! was then the question to be settled. Casper wanted to settle the Knepher street matter first, so that if Knepher cut his throat he could do the same when it came to voting on the Sixth street light. For the same reason Knepher wanted to settle the Sixteenth street and Fifth avenue question first, so that he could have a whack at Casper on the Knepher street proposition. Again things grew interesting. During the melee in some way a motion was carried to vote on the Sixth street light first. The result of the vote was that Knepher's plan was snowed under by

has met with great success runs a risk of not being fully appreciated by comparison with what has already become a favorite. It is safe to say that the "All the Comforts of Home," which was last night presented at the Boyd for the first time in the city, was a pleasant surprise to all who had been amused by that other elever play of William Gillette's, "The Private Secretary." If there is any choice between the two plays it must be said that "All the Comforts of Heme" is the better. In this the interest is maintained There are no streaks or spasms It is full of climaxes of a ludi of comedy. crous character and the numerous funny sit uations produce a perfect epidemic of merri-ment. That is due to the skillful manner in which the comedy is constructed. But with out a competent company of players the eleverness of the author would not be shown to advantage. That Charles Frohman's com-pany last night interpreted the play in the spirit in which it was written there can be no question. All the actors seemed to get as much fun out of the peculiar complications as the big audience which packed the house and was in a roar of laughter that was almost continuous from beginning to end.

Some of the players are old favorites here, like Henry Miller, who is always good. He and Samuel Edwards had the lion's share of the work to do and their efforts were highly appreciated. Miss Marie Greenwald, who had one of the serious roles, made a decided hit and in a love-making scene was a charming ingenue. The plot, though a simple one is a new conceit on the stage and its effect s heightened by its naturainess and probability as an experience in real life. From a practical standpoint and judged by results there are no weak points in the play and there certainly was nothing lacking last night in the acting. The absence of anything approaching horse-play is a pleasant innova-tion in a comedy drama and in "All the Com orts of Home" the fun is of a wholesome kind One of the pleasing features of the cutertain-ment was the cutre act programme rendered y Mr. Salisbury and his orchestra. The lescriptive funtasia "Gipsy Life" is one of those musical compositions that relies upon the imagination and combining good musical construction without the usual rattle-trap auxiliarles generally used in descriptive pieces. The popularity of Mr. Salisbury's orchestra is not confined to Omaha alone, as they are engaged for their second season at the Grand hotel, Mackinac Island, Mich., the coming summer and it is safe to predict they vill repeat the success they attained last "Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me great relief in bronchitis.
