DISCUSSION ON THE BARRUNDIA AFFAIR.

coinage, weights and measures to sit during the sessions of the house was granted. The army and pension and appropriation bills were sent to conference.

After consideration of some other business the house went into committee of the whole on the legislative appropriation bill.

In a general debate the Barrundia case was revived by Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, who defended the action of Commander Reiter. The public reprimand administered to the commander by the secretary of the navy, he said, was unwarranted and unjust. Mr. Dal zell a firmed that Guatemala had a right to zell allitmed that Guatemala had a right to arrest Barrandia while on board the Acapulco. "Was there," he asked, "one law to be followed when we faced Guatemaia, and another when we faced Great Britain, France or Germany!" He said "nay." The killing of Farrandia could not do the American flag any harm. It never had been the function of correlar its area to now its government by our flag, it was not now, it never would be, to protect criminals, to defeat the administra-tion of justice, to defy the well recognized principles of international law.

Nessrs. Lodge of Massachusetts and Dolliver of Iowa defended the action of the sec-

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 .- In the senate today the house bill to revise the wages of certain employes in the government printing office was passed with a substitute providing for an advance for night employes. A conference was asked and Messrs. Manderson, Hawley and Gorman appointed conferees on the part of the senate.

Messrs. Dawes, Plumb and Gorman were appointed conferees on the part of the senate on the fortification bill.

The naval appropriation bill was then taken up. The first amendment reported from the committee on appropriation was the following: To enable the president to cause careful soundings to be made between San Francisco and Honolulu for the purpose of de-terming the practicability of laying a telegraphic cable between these points, $20,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, and the president is hereby authorized to direct the use of any vessel or vessels belonging to the United States in making such survey. The item of $25,000 for equipment and The item of $25,000 for equipment and arms for the naval militia in the various states was challenged by Mr. Carlisle and explained by Mr. Hale as applying to certain states that had organizations for drilling and training for the naval service just as the land militis had for land service. Mr. Carlisle opposed the item. He thought it merely the beginning of a bounty system. The matter was discussed at great length. The paragraph was amended to read "for arms" instead of "equipment and arms," and agreed to—31 to 15.

The next amendment was one providing for a dry dock on the Columbia river or on Mr. Allen moved a substitute, fixing the

No action was reached on the amendment.

A message from the president with correspondence relating to the conduct of Commander Reiter was presented and referred to the committee on naval affairs.

Shot at a Sneak Thief.

Frank Dickinson is not an unqualified success as a sneak thief and burglar. He entered the room of R. A. McCrone and W. L. Edwards at 1616 California street about 7 o'clock last evening, and was discovered by the regular occupants of the room on their return from supper. He tried to hide behind a dresser, but finally remarked that he was drunk and guessed he was in the wrong room." Williams coincided in this view and reached for his revolver, whereupon the stranger dashed down the stairs and up the alley with Williams in close pursuit. A bullet whistled past the fugitive's ear and he surrendered. He was turned over to Officer White.

The prisoner gave the name of Frank Dickinson and said his home was in Indianapolis and that he arrived here Saturday. He denied having been in the house, but was positively identified by both Williams and McCrone. Two coats which he had taken from the room were found upon him when he was overhauled. A charge of burglary will be preferred against him. return from supper. He tried to hide bein the Rodgers Case. About four weeks ago the member of THE Bue staff who reported the Indian trouble for this paper had occasion to spend a day or so in Rushville, Neb., twenty-five miles from the seat of the disturbance. Stopping at the same hotel that he did was a small sized, rather boyish-faced young man, apparently twenty-two or twenty-three years old, who had lost his left arm. He was well dressed and sat around the office a great deal, but seemed averse to talking with any one. Tite only time that THE BEE man remembered having heard him talk at all was when some one asked him how he came to lose his arm. His reply was, as near as it can be recalled, that while engaged in a mock battle as a member of a home military company some-where in the east, his arm had been shot off by the premature discharge of a cannon. It is also remembered that when some one sug-gested that he deserved a pension the young man replied that he was receiving a small pension from the state on account of his dis-Time passed on. THE BER man completed Time passed on. The Bas man completed his work, and returning to Omaha, resumed his routine duties in the local department of his paper, which among other things included daily calls at the county jail in search of news. Yesterday afternoon when he called at the county prison, Jailor Lynch raised a window and in reply to the inquiry as to what, if any news he had, answered:

They have brought that young man Rodgers, the would be suicide, up here from the city jail. He says that while they have prevented him thus far from taking his life, he won't be failed any longer, but will now starve himself to dath—and he seems to mean just what he says,"

The fact that this much-written-about young man had hit upon a new plan for tak-ing his life was, in itself, a good little item and inasmuch as the reporter in question had never seen Rodgers he went into the jail to see him.

"Come into the private office and I will larger to "said Jailer have the guards bring him in," said Jaller Lyuch. The caller complied. Presently a scuffle in the corridor was heard, accompanied by such protestations as, "I don't want to see him," "I don't want to see the reporter at all." Alternating with the protests were laughter and remarks by the guards, who ex-claimed, "Oh, come along. You've seen lots of reporters since you come to Omaha, and you needn't be afraid of this one, for he won't hurt you."

"Yes," said the person first heard, "but I don't want to see that reporter," with empha-sis on the "that." Another minute and a bovish faced young man with only one arm was brought to the door of the private office. "Why, come on in here, young man," re-marked The Bee man, "nobody is going to

The prisoner, dressed in blue overalls finally came forward and took a seat beside the reporter, who noticed that the reluctant young man was eyeing him very sharply.

"I hear you've adopted a new fad—going to starve yourself to death," began The Bee man as a starter.

Without paying the slightest attention to the remark, and after gazing at the reporter several minutes, he remarked in a firm and very emphatic tone: "Mr. —, don't you know me!" To hear a man whom he thought he never heard of before call his name was astonish-ing beyond expression to the reporter, who replied:

"As I look a second time, and very closely, your face does look somewhat familiar." "You saw me at Pine Ridge agency !" said Never!"

"In a tent across from the hotel," replied

Rodgers. "lapossible. There were only hospital and officers' tents across from the hoter. Now tell me," continued the reporter, "the name of the proprietor of that hotel." The prisoner gave a name wholly different Rodgers couldn't name one at the agency.

"To change the subject," said the reporter, "have the papers here been treating you about right thus far in your trouble!"

"No, sir, they have not. They have been saying that I have confessed to all sorts of things. I have confessed to nothing. They have catled me a horse thief. When I get out of this I will make it hot for them."

"Then you have changed your mind about killing yourself—are not going to commit killing yourself—are not going to commit suicide like a coward, but you are going to brace up, face the music and fight your way out of these suspicions?"

The young prisoner blusued to a carmine when he realized how he had trapped himself as to his statement of his intentions. Finally he said:

"O, it's all this way: There is a mighty strong case of circumstantial evidence against me in the death of that girl you have read about in that letter of mine that was published. Many a man has been hung on purely circumstantial evidence. I've been roaming up and down the world for three years trying to get away from having to meet that case of circumstantial evidence, but I know just about where a trial under it will end. You've never had such a load to carry. If you had you wouldn't blame me for thinking strongly of taking my own life."

One Per Cent Government Loans. PALMYRA, Neb., Feb. 10.-To the Editor of THE BEE: In your weekly issue of the 4th you ask the pertinent question, "What benefit do the people who are not farmers receive from this arrangement?" You answer "None." Allow me the privilege as a member of the Nebraska commonwealth to give you my views in relation to this matter.

Farmers, as a branch of the community, cannot be benefited or injured without i affecting every other branch in the business world. To confirm this view of the question I will quote W. Bence Ione, in Macmillan's Magazine for 1880, on the much vexed problem of Ireland's wrongs: "In the past year tenants have awakened to the value of draining, and the loans at 1 per cent last winter from the government did great good." Again he adds: "Practically these loans were a most successful step." Right here we have a precedent of government loans by a monarchial government at 1 per cent for a useful purpose, and also a confirmation by a senator to the fact that such a policy was of great good and that it was a most successful step. You conclude with the deleful comment, "It is difficult to think that any sane man could beworld. To confirm this view of the question conclude with the deleful comment, "It is difficult to think that any sane man could believe that such a measure can ever have the endorsement of the American people." For one I endorse the English precedent for the simple reason that an Irish landlord declares it did great good and was a successful step.

LESS THAN A THOUSAND REALIZED.

Frank Kaspar Got the Planters' House and Dennis Cunningham His Shop-Tom Murray's Bids Were All Bettered.

The announcement that the old frame buildngs which have long been an eyesore to merchants and others in the vicinity of block 86, would be sold at auction at 10 o'clock yesterday, caused a motley crowd of would-be buyers, curiosity seekers and noodiums to congre gate at the corner of Sixteenth and Dodge streets at the hour named.

Before the sale commenced the crowd amused itself by exploring the old Planters' house and a few of the neighboring structures. Many of the rooms in the old caravansary were still occupied and the tenants craned their necks from the windows like a lot of hornets looking to see what stranger had disturbed them in their avocation. All of the other buildings on the block were occupied, in spite of the notices to vacate which had been served upon them about three weeks ago. In only one instance were the occupants making visible preparations to vacate, and that was the two-story residence on Seventeenth street.

Promptly at 10 o'clock Ed Allen mounted the steps at the entrance to the Planters iouse on Sixteenth street, and published the notice and terms of the sale in a loud voice, The noise attracted many passers by and in a few moments the sidewalk was completely blocked. Custodian Alexander was on hand and Clerk Crumb was present to keep a rec ord of the sales.

Prominent among those in the crowd stood

Thomas Murray, Joe Redman, Mike Lee, Frank Kasper, H. K. Burket, Dennis Cunningham, L. Woodworth and E. R. Overall. All of these occupied positions near the auctioneer and all had "blood in their eye." After announcing that the brick kitchen at the rear of the Planters' house would be sold separately bids were invited on the old frame

Tom Murray opened the ball by offering $25 as a starter. This was quickly followed by a raise to $100, and for a few moments the bids rolled in at a rapid rate, the ratio of increase gradually growing smaller. After considerable coaxing the offer was raised to $225, and was knocked down to Frank Kaspar at that

The crowd then surged along to the next The crowd then surged along to the next building on the north, the two-story, tumble-down structure occupied by a barber shon and a chinese laundry. This was started at $25 by L. Woodworth, and raised slowly to $40, being sold to E. R. Overall.

The next building, occupied by Dennis Cunningham's blacksmith shop, was started at $5 by Tom Murray. Joe Redman raised him $3, which caused Murray to withdraw. The price was gradually raised to $12 and sold to Dennis Cunningham at that figure.

The old familiar "blue burn" was the next

The old familiar "blue barn" was the next n order and was started at $10. This was quickly doubled by Tom Murray, who started through the building to size it up. Mean-while the bidding was raised slowly and painfully by $1 bids until $53 was reached. Mur-ray would not see this bid and it was knocked off to Andrew Bertel. The next was a one-story building, glo rious in a fresh coat of bright red paint. It was occupied as a meat market, which was in full blast. Ten dollars was the starting point and several moments of haggling raised this to $25. Mr. Alexander said "Let her go," and Herman Trottner was recorded as the purchaser.

Another one-story building was next, occupied as a clothing store. This was started at $15 and was turned over to Joe Redman The two-story building occupied by a barber shop and a cirar store was the last or Sixteenth street and was started at $25. This was raised slowly to $37 and sold to Nick Rush at that figure, By this time the crowd bad increased until there were about six hundred citizens congre gated at the scene and these were led back to the rear of the Planters' house and the bidding commenced on the brick kitchen. This was started at $15 and was raised slowly to $30, being knocked down to Fritz Miller. The old Byron Reed massion on Dodge 1 was started at $25 by L. Woodworth. For a few moments the bidding was spirited but $43 was the limit and Andrew Bertel was the happy purchaser. The last building to be sold was the two-story residence on Seventeenth street, the best so far of any of the buildings, and $100 was offered before the auctioneer had reached the ground. This was quickly followed by $150, $200, and so on by fifties to $400. From that point the amount increased gradually by small bids until $489 was reached and the sale closed at that figure, C. D. Woodworth being the purphaser.

Woodworth being the purchaser. This closed the sale, which had occupied forty-five minutes and on which $991 had Under the terms of the sale the buildings must be removed within thirty days, the hole filled up and the lots left clear.
