SOMEHOW BLUNDERED.
 Mansfield, the Notorious Crook, Escapes the Law's Clutches.

Harry Mansfield, who got into R. S. Roers, is again at large, and somebody is to blame. He was arrested about two months ago for stealing, and was sent to the county jail to board out a fine of $100 and costs. At the time he was sent to the county jail it was known that he had robbed several houses in the city and had stored the goods with Helle Brandson, on North street. The officers at the city jail saw that when Mansfield was taken to the county jail to board out the $100 fine a warrant for his arrest upon a charge of burglary was sent along. It is strongly believed that Mansfield, the notorious crook, had a plan to get Mansfield out of the county jail. This is denied by Judge Lynch. He says that there was no warrant sent with King's Mansfield, and when King's Mansfield had escaped, which occurred last Thursday, he was released.
