

THEIR POLITICAL LIFE ENDED.

What the Future Has in Store for ex-Senators and ex-Representatives.

RESULT OF THE NOVEMBER AVALANCHE.

Pathetic Sketches of the Men Who Were Snowed Under in the Memorable Campaign of '90 The Uncertainties of Politics.

Washington, March 3.—[Special Correspondence of The Bee.]—The fifty-first congress closed yesterday and now nearly two hundred statesmen who have been eating $5,000 each year out of Uncle Sam's coffer...

Many of them have lost public service so long that they have lost their identity at home. Their business has gone to smash, their minds and minds are out of training...

One hundred and seventy odd members have been defeated for reelection and a full dozen odd senators have been driven from their cushioned seats upon the cruel charities of the hustling world.

Everywhere I go I see the evidence of walling and gnashing of teeth, and it is only the fewest of the great men who have decided upon their plans for the future and are satisfied to go back to their homes.

The ousted senators are in the best shape. Senator Farwell is rich. He has his contract for the big state house in Texas set to settle up the 7,000,000 acres of land which he is said to have gotten from it...

Senator Spooner will go back to his practice of law. He was a railroad lawyer when he was elected to the senate and he is said to have one of the finest legal minds in Wisconsin...

Senator Ingalls remains reticent. He has not decided whether he will edit a newspaper for $25,000 a year, give a series of lectures on the scenes of the United States, or continue his legislative sessions...

Senator John J. Ingalls still remains reticent as to his plans. He has not decided whether he will edit a newspaper for $25,000 a year, give a series of lectures on the scenes of the United States...

As to southern changes, George Barnes of Georgia, the fastest man in the lower house, will return to his law practice at Augusta...

Blair, Hampton and Evans will all go back to their homes and they will, more or less, pay attention to their farms.

Blair has a little farm up in New Hampshire where he says there are the most beautiful scenery in the world, but where they produce more than crops...

Evarts will go back to his practice and he will probably spend a good many of his winters in Washington. He has a good-sized farm in Vermont and he bought another big one down on the Potomac a few years ago...

Senator Moody of South Dakota is the lawyer of one of the biggest mining companies of the Black Hills, he gets big fees and his salary from this company amounts to more than he receives from the United States senate...

What Gil Pierce will do no one knows. He may blossom out as a first class lawyer, may start a paper at his new mine, may be a member of his state or run a first class book agency establishment...

McKinley and his farm. I met Major McKinley in the Elliott house last night and he is to be expected to be intended to practice law or run for the governorship of Ohio...

Will some one repeat the golden text? called out the Sunday school superintendent. "Willie McGinnis will you repeat it?"

SHERMAN AND JOHNSTON.

Recital of the Story of Johnston's Surrender Near Hillsboro, N. C.

AS TOLD IN GEN. SHERMAN'S MEMOIRS.

How Johnston Received the News of Lincoln's Assassination—Its Stunning Effect Upon Sherman's Army.

On the morning of April 14, 1865, General Kilpatrick reported from Durham's Station that a flag of truce had come in from the enemy with a package from General Johnston addressed to me. Taking it for granted that this was preliminary to a surrender, I ordered the message to be sent to me.

The results of the recent campaign in Virginia have changed the relative military condition of the belligerents. I am, therefore, induced to address you in this form, the most direct and straightforward manner.

On the morning of April 14, 1865, General Kilpatrick reported from Durham's Station that a flag of truce had come in from the enemy with a package from General Johnston addressed to me.

That a basis of agreement may be reached, I then sat down at the table and wrote out the terms, which I thought concisely expressed my views and wishes, and explained them to the officers and men of the staff.

Nothing of interest happened at Raleigh till the evening of April 23rd, when Major Johnston, with his headquarters, arrived at Hillsboro, N. C. and he was met by me there.
