IT DIDN'T HOLD HIM.

Involuntary Masquerading of a Boy Being on Roaming.

Samuel Sharpen is a ten-year-old boy and attended school at the Sisters of Mercy convent on South Fourteenth street. His father is dead and his mother lives in South Dakota, so he often goes to the jurisdiction of the sisters. Samuel is not satisfied with the arrangements at the convent, and has been in the habit of running away every time he could escape. To prevent his periodic departures, his mother dressed him in male clothes, thinking that the lad would be ashamed to impersonate in feminine garb. In this they were mistaken, however, for yesterday the boy ran away in his costume of skirt and apron. He found his way to the West Omaha depot, where he was taken into custody in the depot policeman and sent to the police station.

The boy is a rugged, healthy child and is about as graceful in girl's clothes as a Texas steer would be in a suit of armor. He was very easily detected the fact that he had not dressed in the customary habiliments of his sex and he felicit very much charged when accused of masquerading in girl's clothes. He was returned to the convent in a penitent state of mind.

De Witte Little Early Risers, only pills to cure dyspepsia, sour stomach, bad breath.

THE ASSISTANTS ARE ANGRY.

War in the Teachers' Camp Over the Superintendent's Recent Order.

PRINCIPALS GIVEN GREATER POWER.

PROMOTIONS AND PUNISHMENTS. INTERESTING ARMY CASE AT PRESENT.

—The Biscuit Trust Grabbing Up Omaha Dist.

After the close of the present term of the public schools, Superintendent James proposes to show more about the assistant teachers than ever before.

To carry out this object he has had printed a list of questions, which have been sent to the principals that they may report upon the teachers who are working under them. The name of the teacher, the grade she teaches, her native state, what education she receives, where and how long she has taught will be the basis of the report.

Besides this the principals will report upon the teachers and their ability in the following:

Discipline—Ability to maintain quiet in school; ability to make pupils sit and stand properly; power to command and hold attention; ability to understand children's difficulties; tact, resources for meeting difficulties; tendency to be sympathetic; ability to secure prompt and regular attendance; ability to secure the sympathy and cooperation of parents; tendency to thoroughness in discipline instruction; Preparation of lessons before teaching them; direction of presentation of a subject; clearness of presentation; ability to arouse interest in study; ingenuity in planning devices; ability to keep records; frankness in giving information; ability to instruct the class while teaching individuals; tendency to economy in time; movement; tendency to teach the pupils rather than the subject; tendency to thoroughness in taking notes; tendancy to be systematic in respect to acquaintance with methods of instruction; success in teaching reading, language and composition; arithmetic or numbers; penmanship; drawing; success in teaching music and other studies; success in making intelligent and strong thinkers.

Spirit and temper of the teacher—Amiability of disposition; fondness for children and sympathy with them; fondness of manner; variety of interests; patience; conscientiousness; punctuality to duty; effort to prepare lessons; ambition to exceed success in character building; in respect to friendly relations with parents; tact in dealing with parents; sympathy with the principles of education; respect to the principles of education; tendancy to improve when criticized; as a reader of educational literature; as a reader of general literature.

General knowledge—Refinement of mind and heart; personal appearance; attire; effect of bearing—manners; quickness of apprehension; enthusiasm and fervor; in respect to social standing in the community; respect to agreeableness as a person to be associated with; to what grade is she best adapted.

To say that a large number of the assistant teachers are displeased with the new order would be putting things in their mildest form. They say that the new order will work a great hardship upon many of the teachers as it will allow the principals to help their pet teachers to keep their places, while those who are not so fortunate will be the sufferers.

PROMOTIONS AND PUNISHMENTS.

ARMY CASES Interested Over New Orders and Regulations.

The department board appointed to examine applicants for promotion is now in session at Fort Omaha.

Seventeen aspirants for promotion have been notified to present themselves for examination.

The board consists of the following officers: General Wheaton, Major Bacon, Major Bonham, Dr. Hartson, Dr. Speer and Recorder Waring.

The recent order issued by President Harrison, in compliance with a bill passed by the last Congress, suspending the right of the department to "certain violations of army regulations," is believed to be a very salutary measure by prominent officials of the department. The process of punishment for offenders not punished by death is left entirely to the judgment of the commanding general trying the case. This caused a wide variance of punishment for the same offense, as all commands through the same glasses. The recent order is a sort of statutory regulation fixing the punishment and leaving the matter of evidence out to the court. The commanding general, however, can, if he sees fit, impose a greater punishment than the court martial.

The board of the real estate exchange who had the pleasure of their places of business yesterday met at the exchange rooms at 4 o'clock and discussed the financial situation.

The books of the exchanges show that there are many members who owe from $25 to $200 each. Although Secretary Wilson has made repeated efforts, he has been unable to collect these amounts. The exchange now proposes to call a meeting of the general public and has announced a mass meeting for Saturday evening.

The principal object of this meeting will be to raise funds for the purpose of saving Omaha.
