Example of the Kansas Railway Men to Be Followed Here.

PROTECTION FROM UNJUST LEGISLATION.

A Mass Meeting to Be Called-Battling With Snow Blockades-Railway Notes and Other Personals.

A mass meeting of rallway employes will be held next week -to organize an association comprised of railway men in all branches of the service for the purpose of taking a hand in the enactment of legislation favorable to Taitroad Interests.

At this meeting a committee will be ap pointed to confer with similar associations in illinois and Kansas and learn their plans of peration.

The railway employes in this city are greatly agitated over the recent railway leg-slation and are ruefully contemplating a radical cut in wages, which they say is bound

The officials are reticent as to the course to be pursued by the roads if the bill becomes a aw but throw out dark hints of a radical reduction in train service, etc. The leaders in the scheme to organize the railroad men state that there are about three thousand railroad men in the state, all of whom will join an association to further their own interests, and they expect to exercise a powerful interest on legislation. A call for the mass meeting will be issued

In a few days and the meeting will be held at some central point. It will not be a secret meeting but will be open to all interested in the matter.

Snow Bound.

The snowfall in the southern part of the state was very general and has blocked traffic in that section almost completely. The B. & M. passenger train was derailed in a snowdrift at Superior Wednesday and the track has not been cleared.

The Missouri Pacific central branch is blocked and a dispatch from the superintend ent of that division this morning stated that the line would be open this evening. The pay car on the Union Pacific is in a now blockade near Tobias having on board Paymaster Sutherland and Superintendent Blickensderfer.

The Eikhorn passenger train on the Supe-lor branch was abundoned and the road has not been opened yet. The snow in that section was very damp and heavy and about eighteen inches fell on All the roads have started snow plows and trenuous efforts are being made to clear the tracks. In most places it is necessary to re-move the snow by hand with shovels, Notes and Personals.

A Scotch terrier is a regular deadhead on the Kansas City road. He only rides on first class trains, and spends his time on the road. He is a Council Binffs dog, but is equally at home at Kansas City home at Kansas City.

There is another rumor that Meegan & Harding, brokers, have an option on the Inand sait company's plant for $200,000, and that the Union Pacific, or officials in it, are back of the scheme. The idea is, so it is claimed, for the railroad company to control this industry, and thus put its own goods at actual cost of transportation into Montana. The scheme is, however, stoutly denied.

South Omaha Robbers at Work-Magie City Notes.

Thieves entered C. A. Sobotker's tobacco store and stole about $25 worth of stock. The ruilty ones are evidently babitues of the place and, taking a key out of the rear door sometime during the day, had no trouble get-ting in at night. Night Watchman Murphy discovered the door opened and his approach must have scared the thieves away. Several hundred dollars worth of valuables were not

HARD WORKING BAPTISTS.

Zion's Pew Club and Its Well Attended "Symposium."

The Zion Baptist pew club held a "graded symposium" in the Sunday-school room of the First Baptist colored church, corner of Fifteenth and Davenport streets, last ovening. The proceeds of the entertainment are to go towards the purchase of seats for the new church corner of Twenty-second and Grant streets.

Bishop Newman, General Cowin and Clint Brainard were down on the programme for short addresses. General Cowin had been called away to Lincoln late in the afternoon. Mr. Brainard in his address spoke of the great and good work of E. B. Lovejor, Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison and John Brown in their efforts to bring about the abolition of slavery, Following Mr. Brainard, Bishop Newman spoke for a few moments. The bishop com-plimented the colored race on the progress it had made, not only in educational matters but in church work. He called particular at-tention to the church work in the south and predicted greater progress every year. The programme was interspersed with music and singing, and ended with a well served supper.

Coulter's Last Triumph.

Superintendent Coulter of the police and fire alarm system yesterday put a new switchboard into the fire alarm office.

The new board is a fine piece of mechanism and is the invention of Mr. Coulter. It is in reality a fingerboard, and works similar to a typewriter. The instrument is used for tak-ing the calls of the patrolmen. Four circuits are in use in this department, and the great advantage of this new instrument is that while talking with one patrolman another cannot interrupt by calling up. The whole apparatus was made in Omaha, and is simi-lar to one used in the police department in Cincinnati, but has many improvements over the Cincinnati machine. Superintendent Coulter has every reason to be proud of his new instrument.

Colonel flenry's Return.

Colonel Guy V. Henry of the Ninth cavalry arrived yesterday from Fort Robinson, where he saw his company of colored troopers once more comfortably established in their quarers, after many months of severe service on the frontier in the vicinity of Pine Ridge Colonel Henry is sunburned and tanned by the wind, and shows the effect of life in the field. He said the march home from Pine Ridge was very severe, on account of the deep snow. The drifts in some places were very deep and the sun shining on the snow produced such a glare that the men were almost blinded and were badly sunburned. Colonel and Mrs. Henry will spend several days in the city.

A List of Little Crimes That Cause Great Trouble. Fred Folsman was brought to the station ast night by Special Officer Miller. Folsman was caught stealing a sack of coal from a Union Pacific freight car standing on the track at Sixth and Jones streets. Folsman told the officer that he had lived in Omaha for twenty years, and as he had a large family, was out of work and money, he had to steal the coal in order to keep himself and amily warm. Harry Martin and a pal went to the resience of Mrs. Engle at 32314 South Tenth street Wednesday alternoon and engaged a om. Thursday morning they left, taking with them $4 in cash and a lady's gold watch, the property of Mrs. Engle. Martin was ar-

The metal recovered was all Union Pacific brass and was found in the woods near Twenty-third and Spring streets. The detectives lay the theft to the McDonald gang which have been stealing railroad otals lately.

An Englishman's Caesk.

I heard an amusing story some days ago as to how an Englishman who was visiting this country at the time of the Astor-Willing wedding managed to get his name in the papers as one of the guests, says the Wilmington News,

It seems the Englishman made his headquarters in New York, where he is pretty well known, and enjoys the com-pany of a few chosen friends upon his stated visits to this country. He happened to be in the metropolis at the time the wedding was talked about, and jokingly said that he had received an invitation. His acquaintances looked at him in blank amazement. Not one of their set had been invited to the ceremony. and they secretly wondered how on earth the Englishman had managed it. Curi-osity finally predominated, and after considerable hesitation the question was put point blank, when the Englishman laughingly said it was a joke; but, said he: "I'll bet any one here that I can go he:

over to Philadelphia as one of the guests The bet was taken with considerable odds in the Englishman's favor. Several days before the swell ceremony oc-curred the Londoner secretly ascertained where the Astors would stop when in the city. Accordingly he came over and selected a suite of the best rooms obtainable at the same hotel, and when the wedding guests began to arrive he came with the crowd, accompanied by a valet and a goodly amount of luggage. He was at once set down as an Astor guest, and his English manners and accent, which were closely observed, were greatly in his favor. When the reporter came around to get the list of names the Englishman took special pains to see that his name was printed correctly, and although he never went near the wedding he had the cheek to retarn to

New York and claim his bet. All the evidence was in his favor, as both Philadelphia and New York journais gave publicity to his name, and his friends to this day do not know that they were shamefully duped.

New Elixie of Life.

The oyster cocktail will, according to a New York Herald connoisseur, revivify a corpse and stimulate the jaded taste of a man of leisure. As an offhand drink, however, it does not fall in the same class with other cocktaits, inasmuch as alcoholic liquors do not enter into its composition.

It is made as follows: The juice of half a lemon is strained into a large gop-let, to which is added a dash of tobasco sauce, a teaspoonsul of pepper sauce, a trace of vinegar, a pluch of salt, a sug-gestion of red pepper and a slightly larger quantity of white pepper. This entire array forms but the seasoning for the liquor of half a dozen freshly opened succulent Blue Point oysters, which is next added to the contents of the glass, and completes the cocktail.

The idea of the newly devised drink is to combine the preliminary cocktail and the first course of a dinner. With this end in view half a dozen oysters are sub-merged in the liquid and allowed to stand for a brief period, after which they are drawn forth singly with an oyster and enten

The balance of the liquor that remains in the glass serves the purpose of washing down the repast. The other courses of the dinner follow.

Upon completing a dinner thus begun the other novelty, frapped cafe royal, is in order. It consists of three-fourths of black coffee and one-fourth of brandy, frapped in a cooler, and drunk while the mixture is yet in a semi-frozen state. It is very potent.

After a dinner begun with an oyster tom, for everybody soon became convinced he was impervious to duck and turkey shot fired from the modern breech-loader. George Gaines stood within thirty-five or forty yards of the fox, and after emptying both barrels of his shotgun at it, declared the animal did not even quicken its pace. A dozen men shot at the spectre fox and not one of them seemed to disturb it in the least. John Lindsay, who can kill a quait or break a clay pigeon nearly every time, has emptied his favorite breech-loader at least a dozen times broadside into the spectre as it hopped along and without any effect. John says it's a phantom and he knows it, as no living thing can escape him in that many shots, or in half that many shots. Half a dozen other good shots have tried the spectre. Many believe it to be the famous spectre fox so aptly described by the poet. Whittier. Whether it's a phantom or a real flesh-and-blood fox, there is one thing certain, everybody who has tried to shoot it has made a complete failure

The Highest Types,

The New York Times of March 8,1891. says of Harper's periodicals: Whether reated, each one as an individual production or generally as a class, Harper's periodicals represent the highest types of American literary and illustrative work. When on the part of many whose profession is to cater to the reading pub-lic there is a tendency to meet more than half way a taste which is by no means healthy, and coarse matter is provided, garnished with bad pict-ures, the blunting of the artistic sense is of small moment when compared with the abasement of the moral one. Never have the publishers of the Magazine, the Weekly, the Bazar, or Young People lowered that high standard which was assumed in their first numbers. Modifications and improvements have, of course, followed, and today it is difficult to conceive how they could be bettered. Looking at the literary side alone, the best known writers at home and abroad contribute to these publications. the proper presentation of subject, pictorially, leading artists furnish their designs to be translated by wood cuts, or process, whichever method shows better PRIVATE DISEASES the illustrative idea. Brice and Secretary Foster.

The New York Recorder says that it was Charley Foster of Ohio, the new secretary of the treasury, who started in life the new senator from this state, Calvin S. Brice. He lent Brice $20,000, and the latter lost the money in some sort of speculation. Thereupon Brice went to Foster and told him that the cash was gone, offering him at the same time a note for the amount.

Foster took the note, tore it to pieces, and said: "My dear boy, your note is no good if your word isn't. A few years later Brice had made the beginning of his pile. He bought a scrap of railway here and another scrap there until he controlled a continuous line all the way from Ohio to Chicago. With this he made such a show of competition against the Vanderbilt system as to compel old William H. Vanderbilt to buy out the whole busness at a profit to Brice and his backers of about a militon dollars. Vanderbilt said that it "would not have cost more had it been nickel-plated," and hence the road got the name of the "Nickel Plate," which it has since retained. To compliment him upon this stroke of work Brice's friends presented him with a gold scarf pin representing a broken safe with burglars' tools alongside it, a little ruby serving to represent the light in a dark lanters. The souvenir was intended to symbolize the successful attack upon the Vanderbilt coffers. Senator Brice has never worn it, though he keeps it as a treasured reminder.

France Generous to Its "Vets."

A curious story came to light at the trial of an old man by the name of Lambert before the Assize court of the Seine on a charge of embezziement. He appeared to be almost dying, and was so weak that he could hardly walk. His voice was very feeble and he was stated to be seventy years of age. Lambert has been for fourteen years cashier in the shop of a lace merchant, his salary being 150 francs per month. During the last nine years he had embezzled the sum of 25,000 francs in small sums, falsifying the books to cover his faults. He plead guilty to the charges made against him. In the course of the evidence it appeared that he was an old soldier. He had served for twenty-one years, had been through seven campaigns, and had been wounded. At the time of the Franco-Prussian war though exempt on account of age, he rejoined the army and went through the whole campaign. The circumstances under which he came to commit the fraud were very sad, as it was proved that he had not taken the money for his own benefit, but for that of his stepson, whose follies he had to pay for. Under these circumstances and after a most moving oration by his council, the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal, which was warmly applauded in court.

The Drop on John L. Atlania Jourad'. BIRMINGHAE, March 3.-A story has just come to light here of how Champion John L. Sullivan had his enthusiasm as a fighter dampened a few days ago by a Tallapoosa county man. Sullivan was on the train going from Columbus to Montgomery. He was "full" as usual. Lee Smith and another gentleman, both of whom are guards at the state convict farm, happened to be on the train. On learning that John L. was aboard they went to Duncan B. Har-rison and asked him which gentleman was Sullivan. Harrison pointed out the champion, whereupon Smith approached him and said: "Is this Mr. Sullivan?"

"No," replied John L., arousing from his slumber and looking angrily at his questioner, "that's Sullivan over there," continued the champion, pointing at Harrison.

Smith turned to Harrison, when the latter pointed again to the boxer, who had thrown his head back on the seat in repose, and reiterated the assertion that he was Sullivan.

"You can't fooi me; you are John L Sullivan," said Smith, turning again to the slugger. "Yes, I am," shricked Sullivan, as he sprang to his feet in a rage, which alarmed every passenger on the coach; "and I can lick any d-d man in the car," he continued, at the same time drawing back his fist to strike young Smith.

Quick as a flash Smith drew a long ugly revolver, and in an instant it was cocked and leveled at the slugger's head.

"Hit me if you dare and I'll blow your brains out," coolly replied Smith. John L. concluded-not to pit his physical strength against cold lead, and he quietly sank back on his seat.

> Fox A l'hantom. During the past winter more foxes have been seen and killed near Sweet Springs, Mo., than in any two former seasons combined. Asal Vickery, who lives four miles southwest, on Black-water, reports the loss of thirty-seven pigs destroyed by the foxes. Several other farmers have lost a number of pigs by Reynard's raids. As yet no or-ganized movement has been made to ria the country of these pests. Mr. Vickery and his son, however, have shot and killed no less than five since Christmas. though the killing of this number does not seem to have diminished the supply in the least. Nightly raids and midnight onslaughts upon the pigpen continue just the same and pigs diminish accordingly. Many a sty with a litter of fine pigs at sundown could furnish nothing but bloodstains and bones the next morning. This state of affairs continued until he who loves to chase festive Reynard came upon the scene to destroy the destroyer. But fox hunters, as a rule, do not care to catch their game, but rather to spare it that the chase may be enjoyed another day. But whatever the intention of these hunters who have come here from twenty miles around, they have not succeeded in capturing a single red bushy-tail of the billis.

Apparently all their chases have been after the same fox. Growing tired of the chase they at last decided to post some of their party and shoot Mr. Rey-

Vengeance Flavors Brandy.

"Among the saloonkeepers of Vilna the superstitutious belief prevails that if a piece of rope wheron a person has hanged himself be put in a barrel of brandy, those who taste of that brandy will be possessed of an indomitable de-sire for drinking As soon, therefore, as they hear of a suicide by hanging they come in large numbers to the house where the misfortune occurred and offer large sums for the rope which is taken from the neck of the unfor-" This is the latest canard pubtonate. lished in Novoye Vremya for anti-Semitic purposes.

Wanted it Off His Mind.

A Lansing (Mich.) man applied for a warrant against himself for assault and battery. He said he had been in a fight and he wanted to get himself convicted and fined, because the fellow he licked wouldn't be able to attend to the case for some time, and he wanted it off his mind.
